1922 Southeastern Fair Proves Great Success

LEADERS PLEASED AT GREAT SUCCESS ATTENDING EVENT

Attendance Figures Expected to Exceed Those of Any Previous Lakewood Exposition.

GREATEST FAIR SOUTH OF OHIO, SAYS MILLS

Georgia Crop Diversification and Animal Production Greatly Boosted by Exhibits, Officials Say.

The greatest fair in the southeast came to an end Saturday when the Southeastern Fair association closed its gates upon an exposition which is declared to have set a new standard for brilliancy and magnitude of exhibits. Attendance figures were not available Saturday night as officials were engaged in checking up receipts until a late hour.

Thousands of tickets to the fair had been disposed of in downtown booths, and as far as could be determined, attendance figures will stand as good as those of any previous years, or eclipse them. It was apparent that officials were exceedingly pleased with the success of this year's fair.

Discussing the fair Saturday night, President Oscar Mills stated that he was well pleased with the showing the fair had made, and expressed his belief that it was the best south of Ohio during the present season.

New Height Attained.

"The 1922 fair was the culmination of what we have been striving for since the beginning of the first Southeastern fair," he asserted. "The present fair reached a height never attained by any other southern exposition, and our great success is due to the thousands of individuals and enterprises that have taken a most active interest in the fair's activities."

Attendance of out-of-town people, especially farmers, was better than in former years, and their representation in the live stock and poultry divisions only goes to show the widespread interest that is being taken in the Southeastern fair by Georgia and neighboring states."

Approximately $90,000 will be paid out to the different exhibitors. Merchants throughout the city have cooperated splendidly with the fair association this year, it is said, and have put up many of their products for prizes. Cash prizes together with the merchants' prizes have served to draw the biggest array of exhibitors that have ever taken part in the fair.

The third international stock-judging contest brought boys from all over the United States. A team of Georgia boys won the contest and will receive as a prize a trip to Chicago, where they will visit the international live stock show.

Boost to Agriculture.

Diversified farming and the use of modern machinery were given a big boost in the wide range of farm implements displayed by prominent manufacturing concerns of Atlanta and the southeast. Practical demonstrations of the use of these implements were conducted by experienced men throughout the ten days' run, drawing large crowds of spectators.

Of special interest during the fair was the state bread contest, which had an exhibit in the Administration building, where break-making was carried on before the eyes of visitors. The contest, which has been in progress since summer, started in the rural districts and ended in a contest between the districts. Ten teams of three girls each, representing the ten districts, were in the final contest and will receive as their prize a trip to Chicago in order that they may visit the international live stock show.

The canning club, which has been conducting a contest of somewhat the same nature, will offer the winning team a trip to Chicago, where a national contest will be staged. The winning team of the national contest will receive a trip to France, where it will become the duty of its members to teach the French some of the American arts of canning. If the Georgia representatives are fortunate enough to make the best showing, they will receive the trip, which is estimated will cost between $12,000 and $15,000.

Hated of Wealth Primary Influence In New Brunswick

Money Is Compelling Factor in Sentiment Concerning Double Murder Mystery.

Following is the third story by Beatrice Harding, noted magazine and newspaper writer, on the Hall-Mills murder at New Brunswick, N. J. In this story Miss Harding reveals how money and fear are combining influences toward fixing popular suspicion upon principals in the mystery.

BY BEATRICE HARDING.
(Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution.)

New Brunswick, N. J., October 20. This town is after Mrs. Frances W. Hall, wife of the slain pastor, like a pack of wolves. You ask why and the answer comes with startling sameness: "Because she's rich—she doesn't care for the poor." Yet her friends will tell you otherwise.

The hate is hate. Not because she is suspected in the mystery of her husband's death and that of the woman who died with him, but because she represents money.

Of Dr. Hall there is but one opinion—liking, admiration. He had been poor. He was pleasant to everyone, uncritical. Met you today and remembered you tomorrow. Didn't object to baseball on Sunday and liked to dance.

Strange Contradictions.

Mrs. Mills, nubile in position and obsessed by the desires which destroyed her, is little spoken of. There appears to be almost no popular regret for her tragic end. Outside of her neighborhood and church circle, few knew her even by sight. With the mass she is negligible. She was poor.

Strange, these contradictions—and all of money.

In New Brunswick they are talking behind closed doors. There are those who have important disclosures to make and they are silent—or hiding. Among the members of the congregation of St. John the Evangelist you feel the spirit of fear.

The women of it are strong in defense of their dead rector. They say piously: "He was a lovely man—so kind—so good to the poor—so thoughtful of the sick—always brought them presents."

"Whose money paid for these?" you ask—silence or a shrug of the shoulders.

Men Keep Silent.

The men, who obviously have in mind, refuse to talk and make excuses to get away.

Why?

If doubt exists in the minds of members of that congregation of the truth of the published statements, why do not some of those members come forward and give their evidence? There is much more to be told. The church of St. John the Evangelist stands a mute symbol of faith, defenseless, smitten by a shocking scandal and an unsolved murder, for which a state of vicious feeling condemns a woman. Somewhere in New Brunswick the truth is known.

Money is playing a large part in this affair in other ways than grafts far that is the evidence, the influence. That and very little more.

U. S. OCCUPATION OF SAN DOMINGO ENDED SATURDAY

Provisional President Takes Oath of Office as Island's Independence Is Restored.

HARDING SENDS BEST WISHES FOR REPUBLIC

Ceremony Is Staged in Supreme Court Before Diplomatic and Consular Dignitaries.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, October 21.—Juan Bautista Vicini Burgos took the oath of office as provisional president of Santo Domingo before the supreme court of justice here today, ending American occupation. The ceremony took place in the presence of the representative of the president of the United States, diplomatic and consular officers and high officials, and was accompanied by popular demonstrations of gratification over the restoration of independence.

HARDING SENDS BEST WISHES.

Washington, October 21.—The hope of the American people for a reign of peace and prosperity in Santo Domingo was expressed by President Harding today in a message sent to the new provisional president of the island republic, Juan Bautista Vicini Burgos. The message was as follows:

"On this day when you assume the office of chief executive of the provisional government of the Dominican republic, I wish to assure you of the hearty good will of the government and people of the United States, and to express sincere hope for the success of your government and for the peace and prosperity of your country."

"Permit me, personally, to felicitate you upon your selection for the high office upon which you enter today and to express my best wishes for your personal welfare."

PLAN INDICTMENTS IN CHOIR MURDERS

Two Witnesses to Slaying of Rector and Choir Singer Reported Discovered.

New Brunswick, N. J., October 21.—Developments in the investigation of the murder of Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills tonight centered about the sitting of the Somerset county grand jury at Somerville Monday, when it is learned, indictments against at least two persons, probably a man and a woman, will be asked by County Prosecutor Beckman.

Confident that he has built up a stronger case than is generally believed Prosecutor Beckman today questioned several of the newer figures in the mystery. He disclosed nothing of the results, nor the identity of the two persons, said to be eye-witnesses of the double slaying, upon whose testimony he is believed to rely greatly in obtaining the indictments.

Two persons were questioned today, one a maid in the Hall home and the other a vestryman in the rector's church. The latter, Ralph V. M. Gossline, who was examined in his home by Prosecutor Beckman, was reported to have accompanied a young woman home from the X. M. C. A. on the night of the murder. Whether in so doing, he chance upon known evidence of the crime, either in passing the grave at the cemetery.

The governor's staff has been summoned and will meet at the capital building at 1:30 Sunday afternoon.

Returning From Barbecue.

The officers were returning to Atlanta in a car driven by Lieutenant H. A. Heine, after attending a barbecue at Jackson, given by Major George E. Mallet, of the quartermaster's corps, and Captain E. F. Sutton, commander of the Jackson rifles. The affair was a semi-military fete and was attended by officers from various parts of the state.

Whether it is upon these witnesses that Prosecutor Beckman intends to build the case he will present to the grand jury Monday, or upon discoveries not yet made public, is not known. He expresses confidence of obtaining an indictment, however, saying he has "something" to justify his action in bringing the case before that body.

Right of Governor To Pardon School Board Members Denied

Springfield, Ill., October 21.—The Illinois supreme court, in an opinion handed down tonight, denies the right of Governor Small to pardon members of the Chicago School board who were recently ordered fined and imprisoned on charges of contempt of the Cook county circuit court.

The court directs that the fine be collected and that the board members be sent to jail.

COX NEAR DEATH FOLLOWING CRASH AT GRIFFIN, GA.

Major Received Internal Injuries, as Well as Fractured Collar Bone and Broken Ribs.

MILITARY HONORS PAID TO TWO VICTIMS

Body of General J. Van Holt Nash Will Lie in State at Capitol This Morning.

Men Ordered to Report.

All men belonging to companies E, F, G and H, and headquarters company of the Georgia national guard, are ordered by their respective commanders to report to Lieutenant Hooper Alexander, at the Armory Sunday morning at 7:30 o'clock for final instructions relative to the funeral detail incident to the death of General Joseph Van Holt Nash and Lieutenant H. M. Butler.

Major Charles H. Cox, who was severely injured in the automobile accident near Griffin Friday evening, in which General Joseph Van Holt Nash and Lieutenant H. M. Butler were killed, is near death, according to a statement issued by hospital authorities at Griffin late Saturday afternoon.

After a preliminary examination of Major Cox's injuries Friday night, surgeons thought he would live. Later it developed that he received internal injuries in addition to a fractured collarbone and three broken ribs. His condition was described as extremely critical, but the slightest hope for his recovery. Major Cox's mother was summoned to Griffin, and is at her son's bedside.

At 1 o'clock Sunday morning The Constitution was told over long distance phone that his condition was still critical. Although there had been a noticeable rally since earlier in the night, he was still unconscious.

Bodies Arrive Here.

The bodies of General Nash and Lieutenant Butler were brought to Atlanta Friday night, and were met by a military escort.

The body of General Nash will lie in state at the capitol building Sunday between 9 o'clock in the morning and 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The body of General Nash was removed to the home of Mrs. Charles L. Gately, 960 Peachtree street, his mother-in-law. The funeral arrangements are in charge of H. M. Patterson & Son. Lieutenant Butler's body was taken to Decatur where funeral arrangements are in charge of A. S. Turner. Details of Lieutenant Butler's funeral have not been definitely determined.

Two persons were questioned today, one a maid in the Hall home and the other a vestryman in the rector's church. The latter, Ralph V. M. Gossline, who was examined in his home by Prosecutor Beckman, was reported to have accompanied a young woman home from the X. M. C. A. on the night of the murder. NEW LIQUOR RULES AT SEA IN EFFECT BEGINNING TODAY

Extension of Time Granted to Lines by President Harding Expired at Midnight.

VESSELS VIOLATING LIABLE TO PENALTIES

Decision on Suits to Enjoin Enforcement Is Expected From Judge Hand Tomorrow.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, October 21.—Provisions of the liquor statute held by Attorney General Daugherty to prohibit transportation and sale of alcoholic beverages on American vessels anywhere and on foreign vessels within three miles of the United States coast, became effective tonight at midnight.

The extension of time ordered by President Harding to permit ship lines to arrange their affairs to conform to the ruling expired at midnight and enforcement officials declared suggestions for a further extension had not been approved.

It was considered probable that several days would elapse before customs and prohibition forces would have at hand specific instructions as to the scope of their authority under the Daugherty opinion, but this, it was declared, would have no effect on the operation of the law. A foreign vessel sailing with inhibited cargo after today, it was said, would be liable to the penalties fixed by the Volstead act if and when she entered American coastal waters bearing that cargo.

For American Ships

American ships, under the ruling of the attorney general, which received the formal approval of President Harding, are prohibited from "possessing" liquor, regardless of where they are in operation. The ban was made operative as to shipping board tonnage as soon as the ruling was published, though time was allowed for the disposal of any illicit stocks on board vessels of the fleet then at sea.

Enforcement officials are hopeful of a decision coming from the federal district court in New York—where the new interpretation of the law is under fire by both foreign and American lines—before the arraignment of a vessel in violation of the ban necessitates punitive action against the ship, the agents and her master, as required by law.

It is pointed out that only vessels which clear from foreign ports as follows:

REPUBLICANS PLAN RAID ON TREASURY

Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, October 21.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Recent reliable assurances from the white house of the president's plan to press action on the ship subsidy bill in an extra session, probably about the 20th of November, has resulted in republican leaders of the several congressional blocs getting their pet measures ready for a grand raid on the treasury.

Bloc leaders believe efforts to put through the subsidy will offer a splendid opportunity for bringing forward an omnibus postoffice construction bill, together with other pork barrel legislation. It is estimated that if they get what they want the raid on the treasury would range between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000.

Returning to Washington after the November elections, flush with victory or save from defeat, members of congress would have a certain disregard of political consequences, for the immediate present, at least, it is said. To be called in extra session for the

BY PAUL STEVENSON.

By a unanimous vote the members of the subcommittee of the state democratic executive committee Saturday afternoon voted that Judge J. I. Summerall, of the Waycross circuit, was legally re-elected to that office in the recent primary over his opponent, W. J. Quincey, of Douglas county, and dismissed all claims of Judge Quincey to the position. This action was taken after a two day session of the committee at the Andley hotel and it ended up the work of the new state committee until after the meeting of the state convention in Macon October 28.

The outstanding political development of Saturday came when it was learned that an organized fight is being waged in all parts of the state against the ratification of the amendment creating Peach county in the

A Little Series of Homely Talks--No. 7

How We Are Helping Georgia,

As Seen By Others—Kindly Comment Which is Appreciated

It is always gratifying to know that one's efforts are appreciated when one is trying to render people a service. The L. W. Rogers Company started out in this campaign of advertising to offer some suggestions to Georgia producers which it hoped might be helpful.

If you have been reading these bulletins you have noticed that while we have had to criticise in some instances, still we have found a number of things about which we could offer words of praise—because there are MANY THINGS made in Georgia that are MADE RIGHT, and from time to time we are going to tell readers of these bulletins about them.

But you cannot help people to correct faults unless you point out those faults to them, and then suggest some remedy.

And in offering a series of advertisements, such as we are now running in the daily press of Georgia, in which we are compelled to mingle criticism with praise, it is pleasing, indeed, to know that what we are saying is meeting with the commendation of thousands of people and is proving helpful and constructive to Georgia.

Just to show that Georgia is warming up to some of her possibilities—that we have created—and are creating—attention and interest to the importance of making Georgia a great producing and marketing state, we quote below some kindly comment from various sources:

Every Farmer in Georgia Should Read It

Oakhurst Plantation,
Hamilton, Ga., Oct. 10, 1922.

Mr. Scott W. Allen, Atlanta, Ga.—
Dear Mr. Allen: When a fellow says or does things that help another he should be commended. Your potato article, run in the daily Georgia papers, I hope will be read by every farmer in Georgia, as it is good advice, and given at the right time—now digging. A few of us got together here a few months ago and organized a storage company, and have about completed one of the best and most up-to-date storage houses in Georgia. Being one of the directors, I brought up your article today and suggested that we see that our house manager did not allow such calls as you mentioned to be stored, except in separate room made for storing home consumption. If I can have my say—and we are all of the same mind as to your suggestions—we will start right and not try to fill our house with trash. We will be prepared to store onions and other things.

Thanking you, and with best regards, yours truly,
J. H. SURBER.

Macon Banker Expresses Appreciation.

Macon, Ga., October 18, 1922.

Mr. Scott W. Allen, Vice Pres. and Gen. Mgr.,
L. W. Rogers Co., Atlanta.
Dear Mr. Allen: I am writing this letter to express my appreciation of the fine articles appearing in the papers over your signature.

Helping Georgia to Help Herself

The City Builder, official organ of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, says editorially:

Georgia has perhaps never had more valuable or more comprehensive advice given to her than that being offered in the series of self-help advertisements now appearing twice a week in several of the leading dailies of this state, signed by Scott W. Allen, Vice President and General Manager of the L. W. Rogers Company, of this city.

These advertisements are in the nature of a series of "Little Homely Talks," and are intended to stimulate the manufacturers and producers of Georgia in the creation of higher quality goods.

Particularly is the advice and suggestions of the Rogers Company directed to the grower and producer of food products—products with which the Rogers Company are especially familiar.

Mr. Allen, who is one of the splendid young business men of this city, and a man who is largely responsible for the wonderful success in recent years of the Rogers Company—declares that his company is typically a Georgia concern—made up of Georgia money—and every one connected with it, from the highest to the lowest, vitally and earnestly interested in the growth and happiness and prosperity of this state.

He declares that his company wishes it were possible to buy from the producers of this state the great bulk of goods handled by their 150 grocery houses in Georgia. He calls attention to Georgia's advantages—her excellent climate and soil—the ability of her people to raise and produce good edibles—fruits and vegetables especially—practically all the year round.

Putting Georgia Ahead
Commenting editorially on our campaign, The Atlanta Constitution said, in part:

In its "little series of homely talks," which appear in the advertising pages of The Constitution from time to time, the L. W. Rogers Company is contributing to Georgia farmers, manufacturers and marketing agencies some mighty wholesome advice on how to encourage a demand for Georgia products—advice which is as timely as it is wholesome.

The outstanding point made in this series of advertisements thus far is that industrial Georgia is suffering today not so much from a lack of quantity of production—in consideration either of the variety of its products or of the volume of its output in any particular line—as from inferiority of the general quality of the various commodities which its products are for sale to the buying public.

In other words, the first point is, the buying public demands quality—and it will buy only the best of quality in a given commodity, all other things being equal, regardless of where it is produced.

Therefore, if producers in another state offer for sale in Georgia an article of commerce in competition with a similar article of Georgia production, but of superior quality, the home product inevitably will suffer from the lack of demand.

Georgia unquestionably suffers, too, not so much from the lack of quality in its raw products as from the inferior condition in which many of those products reach the market—which, of course, is a question, not of production, but of sorting, wrapping, packing and general preparation for the retail saleroom.

In what it is doing in this series of advertisements—not, as it declared in its first "homely talk," in a spirit of "carping" and "fault-finding," but in a spirit only of constructive, helpful criticism of customs and practices that should be changed—the L. W. Rogers Company is rendering a magnanimous service to Georgia.

And it is a service in which not only every newspaper, but every other merchant, every manufacturer, every farmer and every commercial or business organization in this state should co-operate—and for which every citizen of Georgia should feel grateful.

We are receiving scores of letters and comments similar to the above, showing that our campaign is appreciated and will bear fruit.

Splendid Publicity For Georgia

(Attention, Mr. Allen).
Gentlemen: Allow me to congratulate you on the splendid publicity you are giving for Georgia. That I read every word of your ad is evidenced by my finding the most interesting item (at least to me) on the next to the bottom line, where you state that you have seven stores in Columbus. (Follows a matter personal). Yours very truly, J. K. ORR.

Certainly On the Right Line

Arlington, Ga., October 9, 1922.

Mr. Scott W. Allen,
Atlanta, Ga.:—

Dear Sir: I have read with interest your ad in Constitution of the 8th. You wrote more wisely than you can imagine. The largely press has done nothing to help the poor, uninformed producer to meet the conditions that have followed the advent of the boll weevil in Georgia. As a result, thousands of good white people of Georgia are moving to the trucking lands of Florida. I travel Florida regularly. The land in Georgia, with leadership, will grow many kinds of truck much better than Florida—the reason: Florida has markets depopulated. Cotton can be made in Georgia, with intelligent use of calcium arsenite. The press is asleep. All of us get together to stay in Georgia—unless and all—had better get on the job and try to develop for the grower markets for truck of all kinds, and provide leadership for people who want to try to grow it. Lettuce, beets, carrots, rutabagas, turnips can be grown as profitably in south Georgia as a winter crop as in Florida. All it needs is somebody to start the ball. Success to you. You are certainly on the right line. No less than twenty families have gone out from this immediate section to south Florida in the last few months. Yours truly, J. E. TOOLE.

Statement By Sons.

The statement issued Saturday by Dr. W. B. and Dr. T. D. Vinson follows:

"We are speaking to the people of Georgia to let them know exactly how we feel about the way the case terminated. We both were shocked and surprised when we were told that she had been committed to life. We were hurt and always will be hurt, for we have not received justice."

"Our father was killed in cold-blooded murder. It was planned and plotted and if anyone should suffer she should. The jury who tried her thought she should be freed, and we think so. Our father's life was just as dear to him as any woman's is to her."

"The papers have stated that we were pleased with the verdict. It is absolutely untrue. We have never agreed and never will agree for her sentence to be changed to life. If a man kills he will be hanged, and why not a woman? A woman should suffer for her crimes the same as a man."

"We have been fighting this case from the beginning until now and will continue to fight it. We shall still insist on a death penalty. We are not prepared to state what our course of procedure will be but some step will be taken."

"We were not even notified of what was to take place, and have not been notified yet. In fact we were handed a dirty, rotten deal. We were expecting justice and see what we got? If they send a person to prison for life, and let him stay there like this, it will be a different tale. If we send a woman to the state farm for probably a year or two and then set her free."

"Is that justice? No, never. No date was set for a hearing on a new trial. If a new trial is granted to a person then there should be a trial."

SOUTHEASTERN FAIR CLOSES SATURDAY

Half a hundred Georgia girls Saturday were awarded prizes for their work in the state girls' fair competition, won by Joseph Barrow & Son, with close competition by Elmer Schrict & Son, Lincoln and Leeseter Sheep.

The swine exhibit proved to be one that could compare with any throughout the country. Heretofore the exhibit has been made up of many exhibitors from outside the state of Georgia, but this year fully 90 per cent of exhibitors were from the Cracker state. All of which speaks well for Georgia, officials affirm, and goes to show the progress this state has been making in recent years along the lines of agriculture.

President Mills is expected to issue a statement about the middle of next week in which he will discuss many of the features of the fair and also announce tentative plans for the 1923 exposition. He also intends to give out the official attendance records for the fair during the coming week. The figures checked over so far point to a greater attendance for this year than ever before.

Brilliant Collection.

Exhibits said to be of great excellence in many departments to be on view with the show at great national expositions were entered at the 1922 fair. The agricultural building was crowded to capacity. Every inch of available floor space was put to use in the liberal arts and administration buildings, and many new buildings which were erected for any overflows in the livestock and poultry divisions were filled.

The fair association encountered more difficulty in finding adequate room for the many exhibits than ever before.

Faced with the prospects of a still larger fair in 1923, fair officials have already in mind a great expansion program, which, if put into effect, will place the Lakewood grounds on a parity with the great fairs of the country. Prominent exhibitors are so anxious to have the fair in general this year that they have already signified their intention of returning next year with the best exhibits they have ever offered. Clerks in the main office were kept constantly busy Saturday issuing checks to the prize-winners.

Many Amusement Features.

The fair this year held more amusement for visitors than any previous year. The great variety of nature fairs, the exhibits, the midway, flanked the famous midway, and between the various shows and concession booths every available inch of ground was put to use. The famous Johnny J. Jones shows lived up to their reputation, bringing many new shows with them which had never been presented before at the Lakewood colony. New thrillers such as "the rainbow tunnel," "the flying birds," and wild west shows helped to make up the greatest assemblage of amusements ever presented at the Southeastern fair.

The free acts put on in front of the grandstand were the best the Southeastern fair has so far offered. Six acts made up of many well-known vaudeville stars performed afternoon and night. A special attraction was the "Girl in Red" and her diving horse, "Klatawah." This girl makes a 40-foot plunge on her mount. The "Royal Hussars," who are of vaudeville fame, supplied the musical program.

A program of fireworks proved the nightly attraction to the throngs of visitors.

Races Big Drawing Card.

The races presented at the Southeastern fair have been declared the best that have ever been presented at Lakewood and probably in the whole south. The races, which ran the first three days of the fair, featured some of the best drivers and most famous cars in the country.

Horse racing the last week of the fair drew thousands upon thousands of fans from all over the south, and the program which the fair officials laid out was the greatest ever enjoyed by the Southeastern exposition.

Sheep Awards.

The sheep exhibit this year was the greatest the fair has ever enjoyed. Sheep from many states were entered and the competition was exceptionally strong. So great and so many were the entries that room which was allotted them was filled to capacity and space in another department had to be utilized.

M'ADOO ATTACKS NEW TARIFF LAW

Peoria, Ill., October 21.—International co-operation to prevent war and a sound basis for agriculture are among the biggest problems confronting the nation, William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury declared here tonight in an address. He charged that the republican administration had by a policy of deflation, destroyed production and aggravated the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill.

"It is estimated that the cost of living to the American people will be increased by the Fordney-McCumber bill $4,000,000,000 per annum, of which only $400,000,000 will go into the federal treasury," he said.

The speaker charged that the farmers of the bill pursued to destroy American foreign trade and keep the American market for monopolists, declaring that destruction or restriction of foreign trade "does direct and irreparable injury to the American farmer and workingman."

"With his foreign market cut off," Mr. McAdoo said, "the farmer must dump his surplus on the home market at ruinous prices. Similarly, with foreign markets restricted, manufacturers do not work to capacity and the workingman is affected, he said.

"International co-operation must be substituted for national isolation," the speaker declared, and every effort must be made to re-open and to preserve for ourselves access to the European markets and the entire world.

"Unless some intelligent plan for preserving peace in the world is finally secured, America will be constantly menaced by the possibility of new European wars which may involve us more seriously than the war of 1917. This can be done without compromise of America's sovereignty and without jeopardizing America's safety."

DEMOCRAT MAJORITY IN HOUSE PREDICTED

Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, October 21.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Democratic gains of approximately 100 members—which would give the next house of representatives a democratic majority, were estimated here today by Representative James V. McClintic, of Oklahoma, chairman of the speakers' bureau for his party.

Chairman McClintic picks 24 states including Maryland, from which reports indicate a gain. These projected gains range from 14 in Ohio, 11 in New York, and 10 in Mississippi, to gains of only one in such states as Utah, Massachusetts and Iowa.

There are now 131 democrats in the house and a gain of 100 would give the party a membership of 231. McClintic's estimate is that there is a member here and there in states other than the 24 named, so their closer figures are democrats 223, republicans 212, in the next house. Republicans' headquarters just as confidently predict they will retain control of the house by a majority ranging from 50 to 75. According to Representative McClintic, a "spell of cold weather will be the election day all material to the democratic party." The Oklahoman figures that a freeze along the first week in November will remind the voters of empty or nearly-empty coal bins and the republican administration will be blamed for not settling the coal strike in the early summer.

"If there is a freeze-up," contends McClintic, "the people will then realize who is responsible for the coal shortage. In addition to other shortcomings of the republican administration, the country will be reminded that it failed to function and bring about an earlier settlement of the coal strike and this realization will help the democratic party.

The marriage will take place as soon as Mathilde attains the Swiss legal age.

Mathilde has engaged Fraulein Setzer, daughter of the manager of the island, as her companion. She and her fiance often take long horseback excursions to neighboring towns and castles.

J. D. McClintic, of Tuscaloosa, was elected lieutenant-governor for Alabama, and John Zimmerman, of West Palm Beach, lieutenant-governor for Florida.

After using Stuart's Calcium Wafers you will note that they remove that so often get into the skin to cause pimples, blackheads, blotches and such complexion disfigurements.

Then the calcium is a natural aid to skin repair and health.

You skin not only improves but there is a general appearance of firmer flesh, your face will fill out to its natural lines if thin, because the action of the calcium sulphide in these wafers stimulates the transference of the red arterial blood to where the veins or stale blood has become impure and must be returned to the circulation.

You cannot get this wonderful result from cosmetics or drugs nor can you have a clear, beautiful complexion without this wonderful transference. So when you are near a drug store ask for a 40 cent box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers, far better and more certain of the results you want than the yeast and vitamin drugs.—(adv.)

DAUGHERTY TELLS WHYS OF POLICIES

Attorney-General Defends Record in Office in Speech to Home-State Voters.

Canton, Ohio, October 21.—By making his only campaign speech to the voters of his home state, Attorney-General Daugherty tonight vindicated in a convincing manner his position at Washington. He defended his course in the Chicago injunction proceedings and in the prosecution of war frauds, and declared that, despite "accusation and calumny," the department of justice would proceed to perform its duties as it sees them under the constitution.

In the strike emergency, the attorney-general said, the federal government used the injunction as the least drastic means at hand for rescuing the country from the grip of civil war. He ascribed some of the blame to "the radicalism and character" of prominent labor leaders, and some of it to "hard-boiled" railway executives, and who would not have acted under the circumstances "should be impeached."

Declaring the real purpose of attacks on the department's record in war frauds investigation was to force the hand of the government and prematurely disclose important evidence. Mr. Daugherty said such assaults had been made by the department's inactivity, but because certain spots had been touched by the suits already used.

Chemical Foundation Case.

"We would have heard little criticism of the department of justice," he said, "had it not been discovered that a case like the Chemical Foundation case for the first time in history was assigned by public officials to companies which they themselves had organized, was under investigation, and the part played by those involved also was being scrutinized by government agents."

The attorney-general recounted the difficulties encountered in war fraud prosecutions in the face of scattered evidence of which he said the previous administration did not avail itself when the time was opportune. He said his own administration had gone to work as soon as it was installed.

"As soon as it became known how effectively the work was going," he continued, "the storm broke." The officers of the department, he said, condoned behind a smoke screen of calumny created for their own escape, and the real reason for the attack was, in every instance, withheld.

The men against whom both civil and criminal proceedings have been brought were using the ignorant and the notoriety seeker to make charges in the open that nothing was being done by the department of justice already been touched by the suits already used.

Reason for Activity.

"The real reason for their activity was the fact that things were being done."

"A congressional investigation was demanded. Why? Because they could then, as they thought, disorganize us and compel us to produce the evidence prematurely and thus dissipate the government's efforts to bring and try the cases in a dignified way."

Summing up the record of the department under his administration, the attorney-general said more than 400 cases are undergoing liquidation, that 150 dealing with wartime frauds were in the hands of United States attorneys throughout the country, and that 13 fraud indictments already had been returned. Within the past year, he said, the department had begun 9,646 civil and 60,000 criminal prosecutions, while adjudication and settlement of cases had come into office to total nearly $8,000,000.

Mr. Daugherty prefaced his defense of the rail strike with an assurance that he was no enemy of honest organized labor.

Friend of Labor.

"I am your sincere friend and will not deceive you," he said, addressing the laborer directly, "but you make a mistake when you set up rules in conflict with the rules, laws and constitution of our common country."

"Your 'principles' trouble lies in your 'great' danger, and in the radicalism and character of some of your most prominent leaders. Your security lies in the constitution of the United States and in the laws of the United States and in the good opinion, by you deserved, of all the American people. There is no quarrel between labor and the government."

"A few irreconcilable railroad executives who insist upon calling them 'hard-line' might also with considerable benefit to the cause of privation and misery at home. That undermined their spirits and courage."

"It was vital for the ministers here to sustain a spirit which would clear the road to victory. I claim this government did everything a government could do for that purpose. We did our best to promote unity at home and in the forces, to sustain the morale of the rights of all the people—workers and employers, and every man, woman and child in the country, that the government, in its rightful capacity, took a hand."

"Another step the government could have taken was to have called out federal troops. That would have been a sorry day, but it would have been done and necessity compelled. Appeal after appeal had come to Washington for troops, but they were withheld."

TO UNVEIL SHAFT HONORING MOTHER OF GEN. PERSHING

General John J. Pershing, a congressional committee, Tennessee and American Legion officials present, a shaft was unveiled on armistice day in memory of Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson, mother of General Pershing, at her birth place near Maryville, Tenn. The monument was erected by the Maryville legion post. The stones that form its base were taken from the foundation of the home in which Mrs. Thompson lived. The shaft itself will be of Tennessee marble. General Pershing himself will dedicate the monument.

"We destroyed the great armaments."

Liberated Races.

"It restored Alsace and Lorraine to France. It restored the Italian provinces north of Italy to Italy. These questions, which were a kind of tumor in the constitution of Europe and a source of irritation, an irritation, were removed. We liberated a number of races which for centuries otherwise would be under the rule of the oppressor. In central and southern Europe populations which numbered in the aggregate 20,000,000 were freed by one great act prepared in Paris and signed at Versailles which has given a charter of freedom to millions of people."

"The world progresses. Today all nations are free. The world can now be ended in a few days. If you have varicose veins or bunches, you can start this today to bring them to a normal size, and if you like wise you will do so."

"Just get an original bottle of Moon's Emerald Oil at any dispensing pharmacist. Use it in the morning, evening, and enlarged veins. It is very powerful and penetrating, and only a little is required."

been hoisted at the Carlton "club," Mr. Lloyd George, in opening his speech in defense of his administration at the meeting of coalition liberals here today. "The great combination of men of all parties and countries for the common purposes, the combination which led us to victory in the war, and which was taking us gradually but surely out of our troubles in peace, but because a party was not getting enough out of it, and it is for the people of this country to decide whether party comes first or the lands as well."

"This is the first act in the great drama of peace, and I predict that the democracies of other lands will not continue to bear the burden of central Europe free from that oppression. Conscription disappeared here a few months after the war. It will disappear before many years in other lands as well."

Proud of Irish Peace.

Mr. Lloyd George claimed that the government has erected 181,000 workingmen's houses and that there would be 250,000 such houses when those under construction were completed. The pointed railroads of the country, he pointed out, have been combined into four groups with a saving of 20,000,000 pounds.

"I am delighted," Mr. Lloyd George went on, "that one of the things we have been able to achieve was something which I think has far more to do with the breaking up of the coalition than anything else, and yet it is one of the things of which I am proudest. We have made peace with the Irish race. (Loud cheers.) The feud which had lasted for centuries with one of the most difficult races of the world, the Irish, has been closed by an act forever."

"I know the effect of the peace. Great union statements took part in it. They will not be forgotten by the die-hards, but let them be of good cheer, for their names will be honored forever. (Loud cheers.)

Have Balanced Budget.

Mr. Lloyd George then took up the subject of the re-establishment of the national credit, pointing out that the British were the only people in Europe who had completely balanced their budget.

"The one great test was the dollar. America has practically received all the gold reserve of Europe, and America was in a very prosperous condition. Before the war, if you went to America, you would receive $4.86 for your sovereign. Now the war has cost you over $32.00. Everything you bought in America cost you much more because the purchasing power of the sovereign had gone down."

"We went on reducing expenditure and balancing our budget. Having no deficiencies, what happened?

"Governments can win wars. What governments make it possible for our gallant soldiers and sailors to win victory. Governments can make it impossible for the most gallant soldiers and sailors ever to win. The only claim I put forward on behalf of the late government is that it did everything a government could do to enable our soldiers and sailors to win the war."

"Government can organize material resources and resources in men. They can organize the nation at home and face and sustain their responsibilities. If there is failure at home it means failure on the battlefield. Losses of morale at home is always reflected on the battlefield. They were closely related in the war, and stories at home affected the soldiers in the field."

Germans Brave.

"That is one reason why Germany broke down. Their soldiers were brave. Let us recognize an enemy's courage. But the government of Germany, of privation and misery at home. That undermined their spirits and courage."

"It was vital for the ministers here to sustain a spirit which would clear the road to victory. I claim this government did everything a government could do for that purpose. We did our best to promote unity at home and in the forces, to sustain the morale of the rights of all the people—workers and employers, and every man, woman and child in the country, that the government, in its rightful capacity, took a hand."

central Europe which made the war, Conscription in central Europe is gone. The greatest source of worry and menace in that country has disappeared. Socollow Is Given Life Imprisonment For Holdup Murder Baltimore, October 21.—Walter Socollow, on trial at Towson, Baltimore county, for the murder of William B. Norris in a daylight hold-up in Baltimore last May 18, was found guilty of murder in the first degree today "without capital punishment." The verdict automatically carries life imprisonment.

Socollow was one of a band of five who stopped Norris, a building contractor, and his bookkeeper on a busy street and robbed them of a $7,000 payroll.

Norris was shot down by Socollow, two others of the band are serving life sentences for the deed. Socollow, who is but 19 years of age, was arrested in New York several weeks ago. He was unmercifully hustled out of Supreme Court Justice Martin's court room by Baltimore detectives during habeas corpus proceedings and brought to Baltimore. Their action led to futile representations by the New York authorities for Socollow's return.

GEORGIA ASSOCIATION TO MEET AT ASHBURN

Ashburn, Ga., October 21.—(Special).—George T. Betts, of this city, president of the re-organized Georgia association, today issued a call for the first meeting of the new board of directors, to be held in Ashburn next Friday in the rooms of the Turner county board of trade. The Press association of the second district also will meet here that day.

The first work of the directors will be the selection of a secretary and a treasurer, and the appointment of members of an executive committee and other important committees. These will begin on the association's statewide development program, for which funds for the next three years' work were raised at the recent meeting in Tifton.

President Betts has accepted an invitation to address the newspaper association. The subject of his address will be the "Mission of the Georgia Association in Georgia." Arrangements are being made by a committee from the local board of trade to prepare a dinner for the press association and also for the visiting delegates of the Georgia association.

Under the new laws of the Georgia association adopted at Tifton last Wednesday, each member county will have one director. Every county already qualified for membership or that has indicated a desire to join has been requested by President Betts to meet immediately and elect its director.

PORTLAND GUARDS AGAINST I. W. W.

Portland, Ore., October 21.—(Special).—Portland police, augmented by extra squads, were on duty today against an "invasion" of Industrial Workers of the World, who, according to a statement published by Mayor George L. Baker, have "selected Portland as a center for the beginning of trouble intended ultimately to assume the proportions of a revolution."

According to the mayor's assertion, the purpose of the I. W. W., as explained in hand bills distributed broadcast in Portland, is summed up in these words from the handbills: "Let us organize in the transport workers' union of the I. W. W. with the object and purpose of taking possession of transportation and carrying it on for our benefit."

More than 100 men were picked up by the police last night and of these 67 were held on vagrancy charges.

Field Hand Scene.

peared in Atlanta. "Pote" Gibson was scheduled to sing a song at the minstrel show last Tuesday, but the show was postponed when he heard Wylie West practicing his song, declaring that when he did sing he was not going to permit Wylie to eclipse him as a vocalist. And now, after several months' instruction from one of the best teachers in Atlanta and like number of months practicing in the woods adjacent to Decatur, he is ready to stack his claims alongside of Wylie's and let the audience be the judge.

At that the "Pote" will have to go some gait, because Wylie has a Bert Williams style of song that is particularly suited to his inimitable style, and Billy Haas, who will hold down the other end of the blackface line, will be both seen and heard in a highly humorous selection entitled "The Chicken Rag." The complete program is as follows:

Field Hand Scene.
The curtain goes up at 8 p. m. on a "Plantation Idyll" in which field hands sing "Kentucky Home" and "I'm a Poor Man." This is followed by a dance number which is interrupted by a pair of darkies who desire to be married. W. W. Bateman is the bride, Paul W. Crutchfield the groom, and Roy Abernathy the presiding parson. The act concludes with song and cake walk "Climb, Chillum, Climb." The second is a travesty called "In Roman Days," featuring Frank Luckless as a Roman senator, George Beck as a Roman gladiator and Thomas A. Martin as a Roman matron.

The third act will be a concert by Yaarab temple's Happy Hollow Rubes band, with W. J. Stoddard as director; Frank Cundell, cornet soloist; E. R. Donaldson as "Toots Rakka," a Hawaiian dancer, and Clarence Aldredge as vocalist.

The second part of the minstrel show is produced. Illustrous Potentate W. Bayne Gibson as interlocutor; Wylie West, Billy Haas, Charles Chalmers, Paul Griswold, Tom Martin, Fred Becker, Lewis Flanagan and Tom Laird as end men; Frank Cundell, Clifford Durham, John H. Mullin, Clarence J. Aldred, Clarence W. Wall and Paul W. Crutchfield as balladists. Following are the music numbers of this section:

Songs They Sing.
Medley overture by the company; "I'm On My Way to New Orleans," Paul Griswold; "Just a Little Love Song," Frank Cundell; "Oh, Brother, What Feelin' I'm in," Wylie West; "The Bells of St. Mary's," Clarence W. Wall; "I've Got My Habits On," Tom Martin; selection by Clarence Aldred; "Georgette," Charles Chalmers; "A Picture Without a Frame," Paul W. Crutchfield; "Lay Low, Lizzie," Fred Becker; "When Big Profund Sang Low C," John H. Mullin; "The Chicken Rag," Billy Haas; "In Old Manila," Clifford Durham; "Hello, Prosperity," Bayne Gibson.

The "big beauty chorus" is composed of the following nobles: John W. Waldron, Hal Lacey, Bob Weller, Perry Blackshear, John Burdine, W. L. Callaway, F. W. Burt, B. E. Goodman, W. W. Bateman, T. J. Morris, E. T. Booth, W. M. Bearden, Fred King, N. E. McDaniel, A. S. Sears, Sam Hawley, George W. Grant, Sam Lowe, Ed Lovelace, Harry Grant, Sam Lowe, H. W. Finch, E. G. Cheshrough, E. O. Holtzendorf, W. F. Ison, A. J. Hobson, George Beck, W. M. Lee, George MacMillan, F. E. Van der Veer, C. L. Hardwick, C. V. Logan, Olin Stamps, Ernest Long, Curtis Rutherford, John R. Turner, Paul Reese, E. E. Pollard, Roy Abernathy, J. C. Withers, Joseph Hubbard, R. O. Jones, Virgil Estes, H. R. Bame and John C. Lower.

Tickets for the minstrel show are $1 each and are now on sale at Shrine Nobles and their public headquarters throughout the city. There may be used either night, as there are no reserved seats. This will probably be the only Shrine entertainment open to the public this winter, all the other events of the year being strictly for Shriners and their families. A business session of the temple will be held at Shrine headquarters Monday evening at 8 o'clock to elect candidates and pass on the business of the Shrine business. The ceremonial session will be held on Friday, open to nobles only, and the "fancy party" Saturday evening for nobles and their families only.

Move to Discharge
Suit Is Overruled

Corsicana, Texas, October 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—The overruling of the defendant's motion to discharge the jury on account of Banks' alleged disqualifications as a juror and the admissions by Earle H. Mayfield, the democratic nominee for senator, that he had once belonged to the Ku Klux Klan, featured today's session in the Mayfield ballot injunction suit.

The motion to stop the trial was overruled late today by Judge Scarborough after he had heard Banks, whose disqualification as a juror was attacked by Mr. W. H. Brewster, who swore to the charges which Banks' disqualification was sought.

Brewster testified that there was a meeting of the Corsicana Ku Klux Klan near Keren last night, and the Mayfield injunction suit was dismissed. That there was a "democratic meeting" in this same vicinity last night was also testified to by Alfred R. Young, of Corsicana, who admitted he is a klanman. Young

Gigantic Fraud
Plot Is Charged
On Stolen Autos

Detroit, Mich., October 21.—A conspiracy to defraud a New York bank of several million dollars is indicated, according to federal authorities here in the arrest of Edward J. Sweeney, accused of violating the Dyer law relating to the transportation of stolen automobiles.

Further testified that Brewster told him at this meeting that Banks is said to have made the statement that "Mayfield is a Ku Klux Klan, ought to be in the penitentiary, and his name should not be on the general election ballot."

As to the Ku Klux Klan, Mr. Mayfield said: "he was once a member, but had resigned last January."

He attended Klan meetings during his campaign, but did not make any political speeches at any of them.

"Friends asked me to go to them, and I went," he said.

When Judge Scarborough adjourned court today until Monday, he announced that "we think all the testimony is in." In case it is, argument in the case will start Monday morning.

TWO NEW RECORDS
AT ENGLISH MEET

New Haven, England, October 22.—(By the Associated Press.)—Two new records for gliding were established in the competition at Iford Hill today. Flying without passenger, the French aviator Maneyrolle remained in the air for 3 hours 21 minutes, thus beating by 11 minutes the record made in the German competitions recently by H. P. Pentzlin, of the Hanover Technical school. Maneyrolle won a 10,000 pound prize by this feat, an extraordinary ability was shown by the Frenchman in spite of ever changing winds.

He occasionally glided into dangerous eddies, but always recovered. He flew in a Peyrot monoplane. The other record was in flight with a passenger. In this competition G. R. Olley, gliding in a Fokker biplane, remained in the air for 49 minutes, or 38 minutes longer than the best previous.

Governor Hardwick's weekly paper, The Georgia Cracker, will be started within 60 days, it was announced Saturday.

The governor said the paper would take an active part in public affairs, and in discussing public matters in an informative way. It will not be an organ of factionalism or personal exploitation, he said.

In this connection he said: "I have no idea that I will ever be a candidate for office again. The people have honored me with election to the legislature, to the national house of representatives, to the senate and to the office of governor. I am not a chronic office seeker."

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION, TOPIC OF CHURCHMEN

Burlington, N. C., October 21.—Discussions led by prominent churchmen featured today's meeting of the American Christian convention now in session in this city. Principal among the matters considered during the day was the need for stressing the importance of religious education. Presidents of the seven church institutions of higher learning were present and made brief addresses.

This afternoon the convention held its session at Elon college, four miles from this city. The college is one of the church's schools. Among the speakers were Rev. H. Shelton Smith, of New Haven, Conn., and Dr. Warren H. Peacock, of Dayton, Ohio.

The forward movement of the church was considered at some length at the morning session.

Tomorrow the churches of this city will be filled by visiting ministers.

LUTHERANS TO MOVE BOARD HEADQUARTERS

Buffalo, N. Y., October 21.—The United Lutheran Church in America's convention here decided today a question that has been an issue in the last four years. It decided to establish in Chicago permanent headquarters of the board of home missions and church extension. Offices have heretofore been in York, Pa., and Philadelphia interests had long sought to have them transferred to that city.

The women's society of the church was considered by the convention as the only group that approached before without making a request for an appointment. The women contributed in cash in the last two years $350,000 besides financing mission work of their own.

FAMOUS WAR DOG, BOSTON BULL, DEAD

Los Angeles, Cal., October 21.—Peter, famous war dog, although only a little Boston bull, is dead here at the home of his mistress, Mrs. R. H. Duce.

Peter was credited with having raised a $9,000 war fund in Victoria, B. C., during the world war, by sitting on a table every day for 3 years and speaking for contributions.

He had been awarded a medal from the Canadian field comforts association in England, a life membership in the Canadian Red Cross and four other decorations, including one from the Yukon battalion.

After the war Peter went into the movies and gained more fame.

JUSSEARD AND WIFE SAIL FOR AMERICA

Hayre, October 21.—M. Jusseard, the French ambassador to the United States, accompanied by his wife is aboard the steamer Paris, which left for New York tonight. The ambassador said he was pleased with his visit to France; he went to Geneva and saw the league of nations work. He had great admiration for its program and declared: "It was the American idea carried out by Europe."

In his opinion, although Americans are aloof as observers, they will eventually play an important role in the influence of the league.

"MILLIONAIRE COLONY" HOME LOST BY FIRE

Aiken, S. C., October 21.—Fire of unknown origin at noon today totally destroyed a winter home of Thomas Hitchcock of New York, located in the heart of Aiken's "millionaire colony." The loss has not been determined, as many valuable paintings, tapestries and antiques are known to have been destroyed.

The home was being put in readiness for Mr. and Mrs. Hitchcock, who are scheduled to arrive this afternoon from New York.

IN EFFECT TODAY

midnight tonight come within the restrictions, thus giving a further "automatic stay" of from five to seven days in the cases of most ships on the regular Atlantic routes and of an even longer period with respect to ships bound for the Pacific.

NO FORMAL INSTRUCTIONS.

Absence of formal instructions as to their procedure will not serve as a deterrent on customs and prohibition forces, it was declared, as the regulations now standing are sufficient to permit them to act in cases of suspected violation.

After the officials looked to an early decision from Judge Hand to clear the situation.

Under the policy announced by President Harding, enforcement of the liquor and customs laws at sea would be restricted to the three-mile zone except in cases of ships which had established communication with American territory by their own boats, or in such manner as brought them within the purview of court decisions holding such craft to be legally within the zone, although physically outside

EXPECT DISCUSSION IN SUITS MONDAY.

New York, October 21.—Steamship company officials were confident to that Federal Judge Learned Hand would make public his decision Monday on their suits to enjoin permanently enforcement of the Daugherty ruling, forbidding foreign and American ships from entering or leaving American harbors carrying liquor and beer.

Meanwhile federal prohibition enforcement agents here are restrained from enforcing the federal ruling until Judge Hand's decision has been rendered, it was said. This temporary injunction, however, applies only to ships of the lines to which it was granted—the Cunard, Anchor, White Star, and American, and the American International Navigation company, Royal Mail, Holland-American and Scandinavian-American lines.

Even though the Daugherty ruling were put into effect tonight, it would have little or no effect in complicating the situation, it was said, unless if the judge's decision is delayed. Few if any vessels will have life American and European ports between midnight tonight and Monday, and ships which left today were authorized to carry liquor, under the deferment announced at Washington.

ALL READY.

All the parties are declaring their readiness for the fray and the laborites say that for them the election cannot come too soon. An editorial in the labor organ, The Daily Herald, today fulminates against "the guilt of the Tories, whose representatives in Lloyd George's cabinet were," it says, "mainly responsible for the prime minister's blunders and crimes."

Viscount Astor, the first woman elected to the imperial parliament, was returned in 1919 on the coalition unionist ticket.

DR. BAYLEY CLAIMS IT'S HIS RIGHT.

Viscount Astor says it is for the central conservative association to choose the candidate, adding that his wife is recognized as the candidate both locally and in London. Viscountess Astor, the first woman elected to the imperial parliament, was returned in 1919 on the coalition unionist ticket.

REPUBLICANS PLAN RAID ON TREASURY

verses declare that such action would require an act of congress and that other complications might follow which would tend to confuse the situation.

In addition to the Peach County fight, another political contest will be waged in the general election November 7, this being over the office of pension commissioner. Captain H. Phelps of Atlanta, one of the best known Confederate veterans in the state, will run in the general election against Major C. E. McGregor, of Warrenton, the democratic nominee. It has been stated erroneously that Captain Phelps was a candidate in the recent primary and was defeated. Captain Phelps was not a candidate in that primary but is a candidate in the general election.

be 28. As ratification of the Irish treaty is no longer a contentious matter, it is believed it can be disposed of within the specified time, and parliament is likely to recess early in November. The conservative group into power as a result of the election of their policy will, it is declared, be to concentrate upon "sound administration and economy."

Among the chief features of their foreign policy will be the maintenance and strengthening of the entente with France and a re-casting of the British Near Eastern policy.

The future attitude of Austen Chamberlain and his followers who voted for the coalition is much debated. The leaders of this group met privately last night and discussed the prospects, but different versions of the decision taken at the meeting are given by the political writers of the morning newspapers.

SOME FORECASTS.

One of these is that the coalition unionists will accept the inevitable and range themselves alongside their fellow conservatives.

The other forecast is that Chamberlain and his followers will form a separate group, inspired by a spirit of benevolent independence from the main conservative party, which they will not directly oppose in the election and with which they may cooperate to a certain extent afterward.

This view is not favored by the more extreme Tories who say the coalition unionists have indeed "gone into the wilderness and will wander there some time in oblivion."

GEORGE'S PLANS.

The supposition that they will join the predicted center party under Mr. Lloyd George is now rejected almost everywhere.

Several of the political writers today agree that the center party has been completely abandoned and that Lloyd George will make his appeal to the country when the election campaign begins as a pure liberal and free trader, strong on economy and favoring the leaving of the empire. He is predicted with having at his disposal the coalition liberal machine, whose funds, according to The Daily Mail, amount to nearly 3,000,000 pounds.

Mr. Lloyd George's speech at Leeds tonight is awaited with an interest comparable to that before his Manchester address, for it is felt that much of the whole political future depends on it.

NEW AUTO TUBE SEALS ITS OWN PUNCTURES

A remarkable new puncture-proof tube recently demonstrated in Chicago has caused widespread interest among auto owners. The tube was punctured over a hundred times with large nails without loss of air. It is made in all sizes, fully guaranteed, costs little more than the ordinary tube and is a big, fast seller.

To quickly introduce it, the manufacturer is making special trial offers to a few auto owners in each locality until an agent is appointed.

FORCE OF FULTON IS AIDING DEKALB POLICE IN SEARCH

G. C. Long, Blackjacked by Desperadoes and Robbed of $3,000, Not Seriously Hurt.

DECATUR CITIZENS SIGHT FLEEING CAR

Police Believe the Bandits May Be Gang Recently Mentioned in Telegram From Milwaukee Chief.

With only meager descriptions of the fugitives and entirely without clues as to their identity, authorities of Fulton and DeKalb counties Saturday night were conducting an almost blind but well organized search for the two automobile bandits who secured $3,000 in cash from G. C. Long, contractor, on Ponce de Leon avenue shortly before noon Saturday.

Authorities in neighboring counties were notified to watch for any suspicious characters in a small touring car.

Police Were Warned.

Local investigators advanced the theory that the robbery may have been perpetrated by a gang of out-of-town bandits, recalling that on Wednesday, October 11, information was received by the Atlanta police department to the effect that a big payroll robbery was contemplated here.

It was suggested by men probing the holdup that the original plan of the out-of-town men, which, according to a report to Chief Beavers, was to stage a holdup here on Thursday, October 13, had been abandoned for some reason and that the attack on Mr. Long and the subsequent robbery was the work of the same men.

One week ago Wednesday Chief Beavers received the following wire from J. G. Laubenthaler, chief of police at Milwaukee:

Wire From Milwaukee.

"Have tip there will be a payroll pickup in your city tomorrow: Leader of gang supposed to be stopping in one of your local hotels registered under the name of Cain or Cain. Advise if you get results."

According to Chief of Detectives A. Lamar Poole's inquiry at the various hotels immediately following the receipt of the message showed that no such person as Cain or Cain was registered here.

Remaining consciousness from a heavy blow rendered by one of the robbers, Mr. Long stated Saturday afternoon that one of the men, wearing a khaki uniform, was low and chunky in stature. His companion was of medium height and of a rather heavy build, Mr. Long added.

Halted Near Underpass.

Mr. Long was halted by the two men while driving along Ponce de Leon avenue near the Druid Hills underpass. The driver of the machine, in some kind of a khaki uniform, inquired if the contractor what he meant by driving so fast. While his attention was attracted to the driver, he said, the other man struck the man on the head with a heavy instrument.

A passerby, discovering him in his plight, drove him to Decatur. Coming to his senses, Mr. Long discovered the loss of a $3,000 payroll for carpenters and other workers engaged in constructing houses in Wisconsin park, Decatur.

Decatur citizens declared Saturday afternoon they had noticed a speeding automobile passing through the city at about the time of the holdup, the machine being headed in the direction of Stone Mountain, but no description of the speeders could be given.

Sheriff McCurdy, of DeKalb county, assigned deputies to the chase, but early Saturday night nothing had been learned of the whereabouts of the robbers.

Long to Recover.

Mr. Long, whose skull was at first thought to be fractured, was reported to be in a fairly satisfactory condition at his residence in West End, where he was taken after first aid treatment had been given in Decatur.

Mr. Long had sufficiently recovered from the days of the blow to give a very detailed narrative of his whereabouts Saturday. He had been to a bank in Atlanta to secure funds with which to pay his workmen in Decatur for their week's labor on ten houses on the estate of G. B. Scott.

Near the point where Ponce de Leon avenue passes under the railroad in Druid Hills, an automobile drove up alongside of his machine. Noticing its occupants were inviting his attention, Mr. Long slowed up his machine, he said.

Posed as Officer.

"What do you mean by driving so fast?" the driver of the other machine asked.

That question, and the presence of the uniform, said to be the color of

PEACHTREE LEASE BRINGS $165,000

Convicted Drug Merchants May Appeal Verdict

C. W. Deen, of Lakeland, Fla., Sells Interest in Three-Story Building to Frank Hawkins.

Constituting one of the largest down-town lease transfers in several months, the sale of the 90-year lease on the three-story building at 73-75 Peachtree street, held by C. W. Deen, of Lakeland, Fla., to Frank Hawkins, of Atlanta, for a consideration of $165,000 was announced Saturday by the Burdett Realty company.

The property is situated on the northeast corner of Peachtree street and Auburn avenue, and its tenants pay a gross rental of $34,000 per annum. The structure is known as the Haynes building.

The Peachtree street frontage of $1 feet comprises the United Cigar store, on the corner, and the National Shirt Shop, known as 75 Peachtree street. There are other stores on the 100-foot Auburn avenue frontage.

For the privilege of assuming the long lease, Mr. Hawkins gave $110,000 cash and two pieces of property valued at $55,000, namely, improved property at 55 Decatur street, and a lot at 425 Whitehall street having railroad frontage.

Mr. Deen, while driving along Ponce de Leon avenue near the Druid Hills underpass, was stopped by two men who concealed in cold cream and other cosmetic jars in their home. A raid by police detectives last March is alleged to have revealed about 20 drachms of narcotics, a portion of which was identified as having been stolen from the John S. Daniel drug store several weeks before.

tions of Germany. Germany earned no thanks thereby; however, our conduct during the Russo-Japanese war is another proof of our love of peace.

The same purpose underly my suggestion which led to the Bjorko agreement (July, 1905). It contemplated an alliance between Germany and Russia, which both the allies as well as other nations should be at liberty to join. Ratification of this agreement failed through the opposition of the Russian government (Isolatory).

It remains to say a few words about America. Aside from the gentlemen's agreement already mentioned, which assured America's standing beside England and France in a world war, America did not belong to the entente cordiale created by King Edward VII. At the behest of his government, and, most important of all, America, in so far as it is possible to present to Judge events, did not contribute toward bringing on the world war. Perhaps the unfriendly answer given by President Wilson to the German government at the beginning of the war may have had some connection with the gentlemen's agreement.

American Factors In Defeat.

But there can be no doubt that America's entry into the war, and the enormous supplies of ammunition, and, especially, of war materials, which preceded her entry, seriously hurt the chance of the central powers to bring the war to a successful termination by force of arms.

It is necessary, however, to avoid all emotional criticism of America also, since, in the great game of politics, real factors only can be considered. America was at liberty (despite the gentlemen's agreement) to remain neutral or to enter the war on the other side. One cannot reproach a nation for a decision as to war or peace made in accordance with its sovereign rights so long as the decision is not in violation of definite agreements. Such is not the case here.

Nevertheless, it must be noted that John Kenneth Turner, in his already mentioned book, "Shall It Be Again?" shows, on the basis of extensive proofs, that all Wilson's reasons for America's entry into the war were fictions, that it was far more a case of acting solely in the interest of Wall street high finance.

The great profit derived by America from the world war consists in the fact that the United States was able to attract to itself nearly 50 per cent of all the gold in the world, so that now the dollar, instead of the English pound, determines the world's exchange rate. But here also no reprobation is at all justified, since any other nation in a position to do so would have rejoiced in attracting to itself this increase of gold and of prestige in the world's money market. It was certainly regrettable for us that America did not do this stroke of business on the side of the central powers.

But just as Germany objects with perfect justification to having had her peaceful labors combated by the entente, not with peaceful, but with warlike means, so also she can and must enter constant protest—as she is already trying to do by means of published material—against America's violation of the right at the close of the world war.

Personally I do not believe that the American people would have consented to this; American women particularly would not have participated in the denial of President Wilson's fourteen points, if they could have been enlightened at that time as to the facts. America, more than other countries, had been misled by English propaganda, and therefore allowed President Wilson, who had been provided with unprecedented powers, to act on his own initiative at Paris—in other words, to be beaten down on his fourteen points. Just as Mr. Wilson omitted mention, later on, of the English blockade, against which he had protested previously, so also he acted with regard to his fourteen points.

The German government had accepted Wilson's fourteen points, although they were severe enough. The allies likewise had accepted the fourteen points, with the exception of those on reparations and the freedom of the seas. Wilson had guaranteed the fourteen points.

Fourteen Points Abandoned.

I fail to find the most important of them in the Versailles instrument, but only those expressing the entente's policy of violence, and even part of these in a greatly altered form. Relying on Wilson's guarantee, Germany evacuated the enemy territory occupied by her and surrendered her weapons—in other words, made herself defenseless. In this blind confidence and the abandonment of the fourteen points on the one side, and in the outbreak of the German revolution on the other, lies the key to our present condition.

Preparedness.

The more apparent the entente's policy of encirclement and attack became, the more the means of protecting our welfare should have been strengthened for defensive reasons. This idea of natural and justified self-protection, by means of defensive measures against a possible hostile attack, was carried out in a wretchedly inadequate manner.

According to Turner, the fourteen points, as far back as the drawing up of the armistice terms, were, to Wilson, no more than a means of making Germany lay down her arms; as soon as this end was achieved he dropped them.

Already a very large part of the American people has arrayed itself against Mr. Wilson and is unwilling to be discredited along with him. I am not dreaming of spontaneous American help for Germany; all I count upon is the sober acknowledgement by the American people that it has to make good the gigantic wrong done Germany by its former president.

For the atmosphere of a victory does not last forever, and later on, not only in Germany, but elsewhere, people will remember the unreliability of the American president and look upon it as American unreliability.

That is not a good thing, however, for the American people. To have the policy of a nation branded with the stigma of unreliability is not advantageous. When judgment is passed hereafter on American policy people will forget that Mr. Wilson, unversed in the ways of the world, was trapped by Lloyd George and Clemenceau.

I have met—particularly at the Kiel regattas—many American men and women whose political judgment and caution would make it impossible for them to approve such a flagrant breach of faith as was committed by Mr. Wilson, because of its effect on America's political prestige. It is upon such consideration of national egoism, not upon any sort of sentimental considerations, that I base my hope that Germany's burden will be lightened from across the ocean.

Besides the injustice in the abandonment of the fourteen points, it must also be remembered that Mr. Wilson was the first to demand of the German reigning dynasty that it withdraw, in doing which he hinted that, were such action taken, the German people would be granted a better peace. Before the government of Prince Max joined in the demand for my abdication of the throne, which it based on the same grounds as Mr. Wilson—that Germany would thereby get better terms—(prevention of civil war was used as a second means of bailing pressure on me)—it was in duty bound to get some sort of a binding guarantee from Mr. Wilson. In any event, the statements made, which became continually more urgent and pressing, contributed to war making to resolve to quit the country, since I was constrained to believe that I could render my country a great service by so doing.

Moreover, Germany did not take advantage of a single one of the opportunities that arose for waging war with a sure prospect of success.

I have already pointed out the benevolent neutrality of Germany toward Russia at the time of the Russo-Japanese war.

At the time when England was deeply involved in the Boer war we might have fought against England or against France, which, at that time, would have been obliged to offer help from England. But we did not do so. Also, while the Russo-Japanese war was in progress, we might have fought not only against Russia but also against France. But we did not do so.

In addition to the Morocco crisis already touched upon, in connection with which we set aside the idea of going to war, we also gave evidence of our desire for peace by overcoming the Bosnian crisis by diplomatic means.

When one considers these plainly visible political events as a whole and adduces the declarations of entente statesmen, such as Poincaré, Clemenceau, Isvolsky, Tardieu and others, one is bound to ask one's self, in amazement, how a peace treaty, founded upon Germany's guilt in having brought on the world war, could have been drafted and put through.

This miscarriage of justice will not stand before the bar of world history.

Blame France For 1870.

A Frenchman, Louis Guérard, delegate from Lyon to the Society for the Rights of Man, recently made this statement:

"If one once looks upon events without prejudice, with complete independence and frankness, without bothering about which camp chance placed us in at birth, the following is forced upon our attention first of all: The war of 1870 is a consequence of the war of 1870. For ever since that earlier date, the idea of revenge, more or less veiled, has never left us."

"The war of 1870, however, was prepared and declared by the French government. The French empire, indeed, needed it very badly in order to contend against interior troubles and its steadily growing unpopularity with the public. Even Gambetta, the wild tribune of the opposition, exclaimed: 'If the empire brings us the left bank of the Rhine, I shall become reconciled with it!'" Thus, both it was a war of conquest; nobody bothered about what the conquered populations might have to say about it.

"We shall bend their will to ours!" Thus it is written in the law of the victor!

"And now, suddenly, the opportunity for doing this was to escape France.

In view of the political difficulties and dangers of war caused by his candidacy, Prince Leopold decided him- self ready to withdraw. That is bad! Without a pretext there can be no war!

"It was the same with France as with the milkmaid and the broken pitcher in the fable, only instead of Farewell, calf, cow, pig, hen, it was Farewell, bloody profits, glory, victory, left bank of the Rhine, even Belgium!"—for the latter, too, lay on the left bank of the Rhine which France coveted. No, that would have been too hard, the disillusionment would have been too great, the opportunity must be created anew. The entire chauvinistic press, the entire clan of boasters set to work and soon found a way.

Gramont, minister of foreign affairs, sent Ambassador Benedetti to visit Emperor William, who was taking the cure at Ems, and demand from him a written promise that, in case Prince Leopold should change his mind about his withdrawal, he, William, as head of the family, would take issue against this.

"The withdrawal of Prince Leopold was announced to France in a valid manner and officially accepted by the Spanish government. There could be no doubt as to its genuineness. Nevertheless the Paris newspapers, almost without exception, clamored for war. Whoever, like Robert Michell in the Constitutional expressed his pleasure at the prospects for peace and declared himself satisfied, was insulted on the street. Gambetta shouted at him: 'You are satisfied! What a base expression!' Copies of his newspapers were stolen from the news stands thrown into the river, hurled in his face! Emile de Girardin wrote to him: 'The opportunity is unique, un-hoped-for; if the empire misses it the empire is lost!' Then it was that preparation for the war of 1870 was begun."

Voices like this also, which are not unique either in France or England, must always be adduced as proof that the guilt is not ours.

Mistaken, But Not Guilty.

Our political and diplomatic operations in the course of decades were not, it must be admitted, faultlessly conceived or executed. But where we made mistakes they were caused invariably by the too great desire to maintain world peace. Such mistakes do not constitute guilt.

As I mentioned elsewhere, I even consider the congress of Berlin a mistake, for it made our relations with Russia worse. The congress was a victory for Disraeli, an Anglo-Austrian victory over Russia, which turned Russian anger upon Germany. Yet—think of all that has been done since then to make up with Russia! I have actually enumerated these acts. And Bismarck's sole intention in bringing about the congress of Berlin was, as I have pointed out, the prevention of a great war.

ward Grey were a perfectly frank statement.

The much discussed non-renewal of the reinsurance treaty with Russia, already touched upon by me, is not to be considered so decisive as to have influenced the question of whether there was to be war or peace. The reinsurance treaty, in my opinion, would not have prevented the Russia of Nicholas II, from taking the road to the entente; under Alexander III, it would have been superfluous.

Prince Bismarck's view that the Russian ambassador, Prince Shuvaloff, would have renewed the reinsurance treaty with him but not with his successor, is naturally the honest, subjective way of looking at the matter—judged in the light of fact, however, it does not hold water, in view of what the two parties concerned had to consider at that time. For instance, the under secretary of state of the prince, Count Berchem, stated officially in a report to the prince that the treaty could not be renewed, which meant that it could not be renewed through Shuvaloff either.

"And now, suddenly, the opportunity for doing this was to escape France. In view of the political difficulties and dangers of war caused by his candidacy, Prince Leopold decided him- self ready to withdraw. That is bad! Without a pretext there can be no war!

LEGIONAIRES LEAVE FOR HOMES AGAIN

New Orleans, October 20.—Trains departing last night and today were loaded with returning delegates and visitors to the fourth annual convention of the American Legion, which closed yesterday. The convention opened yesterday with the election of Alvin M. Owsley, of Texas, as commander-in-chief to succeed Hanford MacNider, and other officers.

General John J. Pershing, who addressed the legion convention Thursday and made a brief talk yesterday to the legion women of the auxiliary organization, departed yesterday afternoon for San Antonio. Two members of the inter-aliased veterans' federation, who remained over for the legion convention after the closing of their annual meeting last week, left for Memphis last night.

Upon the recommendation of Commander Owsley the national executive committee reappointed Lemuel Bolles as national adjutant. Mr. Bolles announced that he had retained Russell G. Croxton, of Marion, Ind., as his assistant.

The executive committee also reappointed Judge Robert A. Adams judge advocate; Robert H. Tyndall, national treasurer, and Eben Putnam, national historian.

DOORN VILLAGERS NOT INTERESTED AS KAISER WEDS

Doorn, Holland, October 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—The veil of secrecy that has hidden the life of the ex-kaiser since he took up his residence in Holland becomes more impenetrable than ever before as curiosity increases abroad due to his formal marriage with the princess of Reuss.

This curiosity does not greatly affect the villagers of Doorn. They view the approaching nuptials with an indifference, even of boredom. Nine-tenths of them are austere Calvinists and they look upon pomp and panoply as sinful vanities. Being strict Sabbatarians they disapprove of William's choice of Sunday as the day for the wedding.

But they do not say so out loud, at least, the tradesmen who cater to William's chateau and the workmen who occasionally are given jobs on the estate are extremely reticent about it all.

Even more silent are those in the ex-kaiser's entourage. The few Dutch aristocrats who from time to time are received as visitors to the former emperor's retreat cloak themselves with a heavy silence that the reporter cannot penetrate. All that the correspondents have found out is that both the civil and religious wedding ceremonies are to take place November 5 within the precincts of the chateau and that they will be attended by a Dutch government secretary from The Hague, the governor of the province of Utrecht, the burgomaster of Doorn, a few of the Dutch nobility residing on neighboring estates and about 50 invited guests from Germany, mainly dignitaries under the old regime and army generals.

LOYD GEORGE EAGER TO VISIT AMERICA

Leeds, England, October 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—David Lloyd George has a keen desire to visit the United States and was pleased today when he read news dispatches carrying the announcement of Secretary of Labor Davis that the American Gorsedd, a Welsh society, had invited him to cross the Atlantic for an extended tour. Owing to the political situation he cannot make any definite plans at present time.

Those close to the overthrown premier say he would relish the sea trip and the rest but they do not think he could in any event leave Great Britain before next spring.

Tonight he expects to return to London and help Mrs. Lloyd George with the packing of his belongings, occupying number 10 Downing street, the official residence of the prime minister. In accordance with ancient custom he will leave at the house one article of his furniture. Lloyd George has decided to leave his writing desk. He will also follow the custom of leaving some of the wine and liquors that are in the cellar for his successor.

BUSINESS ADVICE AGENCY IS IDEA FROM DAUGHERTY

Washington, October 21.—Attorney General Daugherty favors the creation of a governmental agency to advise and supervise the activities of business organizations. In a statement prepared for the November number of The Nation's Business, the official organ of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Daugherty says that he approves the plan originating in the department of commerce for creation of such an agency.

He believes that the number of violations of the law by business men can be reduced to a minimum if the government will provide a means of assuring them to keep within the law.

By setting up the necessary machinery to pass on the plans of business organizations Daugherty thinks the American producers will be enabled legitimately to strengthen their hands in search of markets, and at the same time the government will avoid such expensive investigation and litigation.

LARGE PACKING PLANT TO MOVE TO THOMASVILLE

Thomasville, Ga., October 21.—(Special.)—The Waycross Packing plant will move its location to Thomasville in the near future, it was decided yesterday. It was decided to move its operations to Thomasville with W. H. Baxley, of the packing plant, and a number of citizens of the town and farmers.

He applied for a position as baritone in a London church choir and was chosen out of seventy applicants.

He is the soloist at St. Anne's church, Soho, London, which has for generations been noted for the high class of its music, especially in the renditions of Bach.

"Soothing," Miss Segal says.

Miss Segal was quoted recently as saying:

"There is a soothing loveliness about this style of music, and it is a far cry from the rough and tumble melodies that have been sung on the stage for the last few seasons. Mr. Elmer has shown again his remarkable knowledge of what is the trend of public taste in matters musical and dramatic. In this case he has anticipated the revival of the Viennese vogue."

"The basis of the Viennese school is, of course, the waltz and the new Kalmann score it is found in all its charms of lifting, languorous melody and graceful, the flight of a butterfly."

"The nothing, the nothing of audience loves so much as the Viennese waltz." Fritz Kreisler shows his estimation of it by including so many in his programs, and other artists do the same. It is not often that one finds a type of music that appeals alike to great musical artists, critics and also the general public. Personally, and also delighted in the results of operetta, for it is a constant delight to appear in this form of entertainment, which is far more enjoyable than the type of musical comedies that have recently been in vogue."

The bishop, who is presiding officer of the conference, devoted his entire time to pleading for a ministry of the highest type, "true to the Word of God and its teachings," and one that would set an example of right living and draw others to God.

CONTINUES LAW STUDIES.

To this early study of Bach Bates attributes much of his success. During all this period the young singer has not given up his studies, however, and when he had to choose his future career, for one forbade the other. So the dust was allowed to accumulate on his briefs and he commenced to attract attention as a concert singer, as he sang at the big musical festivals at Birmingham, Leeds and Hereford.

Finally in 1915 a London manager heard him sing in a concert and offered him the role of Lied in "Angomore."

"After that engagement he sang the role of Peppo in "The Maid of the Mountains" at the same theater during its long run of three and one-half years.

"After this prolonged engagement Mr. Bates was heard in a revival of "The Shop Girl" at the ever popular Saville Theater. The manager there was in "The Rebel Maid" at the Empire and in "The Golden Moth" at the Adelphi. Of course every actor must have a fad or hobby. Strange as it may seem his only hobby is golf.

The New York Tribune critic paid a glowing tribute to Mr. Elmer when he spoke of the producer as infusing more adroit intelligence and greater energy into his plays than any other of the numerous managers in his particular field.

The play has been described time and again as the last word in the art of musical comedy. The book tells the story of a charming Indian prince who falls in love with a beautiful American prima donna who is singing in Paris.

William La Baron, the author, whose contribution, artistically, views that of B. G. de Sylva, has asked the Red Cross to assist her in locating her son, Eddie Wever, ex-soldier of the world war who served as private with company H, second division battalion, and who formerly resided at 282 West Mitchell street, Atlanta. Any one knowing the present address of the above-named ex-service man will please call the Atlanta chapter, Red Cross, Ivy 0880.

Vital Statistics Showing Atlanta's Industrial and Commercial Resources

Two hundred and fifty million dollars invested in manufacturing enterprises.

Atlanta's banking facilities are: Twenty banks and trust companies, and branches, with combined capital of $11,300,300; surplus and profits, $12,956,000; deposits, over $108,704,412. Total resources of $149,000,000. Clearing house figures for the year 1921 totaled $2,108,957,591.61.

Atlanta owns its city water plant, which is valued at $10,000,000, and has a daily capacity of more than 25,000,000. There are more than 450 miles of mains, and the residence water rate is 80 cents per month. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are being expended upon additions to the fine plant at the present time.

GREAT OPPORTUNITY FOR LINOLEUM PLANT

Jones Discusses Advantages of Atlanta for Manufacturers.

BY PAUL JONES.
With the possibility of establishing a practical southern monopoly upon the finished product, and with the certainty that a large fortune could be realized by the saving freight rates, raw material in addition to legitimate and regular profit to be made upon the manufactured article, it is looked upon as a species of industrial lassitude that business men and capitalists of Atlanta have so long ignored the possibilities held out by establishment of a plant in this city for the manufacturing of oilcloth and linoleum.

In addition to the peculiar advantages held out by nature, which has stored in practically inexhaustible amounts the best of raw materials within 50 miles of Atlanta, this city is so located from a standpoint of geography and transportation and is so richly equipped with natural power and reasonable labor, that these highly profitable products can be manufactured here at great advantage over the eastern factories. In addition a plant located in this city would have a monopoly of the entire southern field.

It is well known that there are mines in Bartow county from which sufficient amounts of oilcloth and barytes (the heaviest and most essential ingredients of linoleum and oilcloth) can be taken to supply the trade for many years to come. It is also known that these products, after being taken from the ground in Bartow county, are semi-prepared and shipped to the east at the cost of something like $5 a ton. There they are manufactured into the finished product and shipped to the people of Georgia and the south with another high freight rate added to the cost of manufacture.

Freight Advantages.

This freight rate, both on the bulky raw materials and on the finished oilcloth and linoleum, could be saved to southern people in part and added to profits of the enterprise in part by establishment of a plant in this city, and as there is no plant of this description within the southern states, a plant here would have a monopoly of the entire southern field. The entire Pan-American field could also be supplied from Atlanta because of its proximity to the port of Savannah.

General annual payroll, $35,000,000.

Atlanta's elevation is more than 4,100 feet above the sea, and its lovely situation on the beautiful Piedmont plateau gives the city a climate unsurpassed both as a winter and a summer resort.

Atlanta is the educational center of the south. Has 125 institutions of learning, including seventy-three high schools and commercial colleges. Millions of dollars have recently been voted by the people for school construction, which will give this city the finest public school system in the south. In addition to the public schools there are Emory University, Georgia Tech, Oglethorpe, Agnes Scott, Elizabeth Mather, Cox college, and the dental and medical departments of the state university.

Atlanta owns its city water plant, which is valued at $10,000,000, and has a daily capacity of more than 25,000,000. There are more than 450 miles of mains, and the residence water rate is 80 cents per month. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are being expended upon additions to the fine plant at the present time.

Atlanta is served by seven big railway systems, with sixteen trunk lines entering and reaching out from the city to all portions of the southern states.

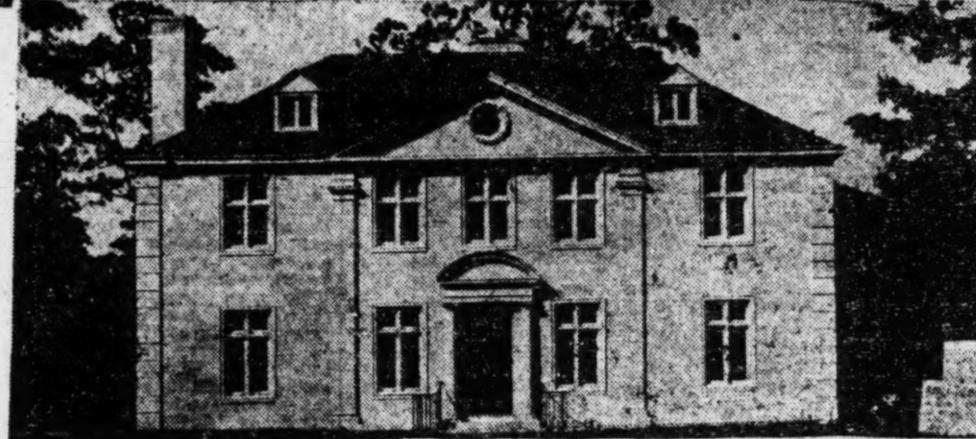

Atlanta has a plentiful supply of common labor of uncommonly intelligent class that can be used for any variety of common work or manufacturing industries. These workmen consist of both white and negro laborers. Atlanta is an open shop city.

There are forty-four hotels, with rooms for more than 3,000 guests, and representing an investment that totals more than $10,000,000. There are about 800 apartment houses, representing a total investment of more than $30,000,000 and affording rooms for over 6,000 families. Atlanta is known as the convention city of the south.

The Georgia Railway and Power company has now in operation four hydro-electric plants, developing 160,000 horsepower, and is constructing another plant that will deliver 88,000 additional horsepower.

Atlanta is the second largest mule market in the United States. It has the largest ostrich farm in the south. Trades with 90,000 southeastern merchants. Has eighteen public parks and public playgrounds. Has 270 churches. Twenty denominations. Has 125 educational institutions. An auditorium seating 8,000 people. Its tax rate $1.50 per $100. Atlanta is the leading golf center of the south. The most important automobile center in Dixie.

Atlanta's Business Is Too Large To Be Transacted in One Center

Top right: New business center at Moreland and Euclid avenues. Bottom: Handsome home of C. C. Case, on Habersham drive.

Far from being in the class of "one-store" towns, it would be just as out of place to list Atlanta among the "one-business-section" cities, for no city, perhaps, of its size in the United States, can show as many first-class, up-to-date and highly developed business streets and trading centers as can be found in Atlanta.

Just as truly as has New York its one Wall street and its circumference financial district, Atlanta has its Five Points and its adjacent banking center. New York, in its Fifth avenue, has within a limited section, its Tiffany's, its Macy's, and its other big stores, while Atlanta, with Whitehall and Peachtree streets, has its big retail houses. New York with its water front and its immense wharfs, has its most important shipping, confined to the areas covered by the two gigantic iron docks, while Atlanta's big wholesale business is also largely confined to the districts near the freight depots of the trunk lines that furnish the city with transportation.

Outlying Developments.

After spending a day walking over the newly developed down-town streets that have been built up with modernly appointed stores and business buildings to meet the demand for commercial space, the investigator can then take on "Arkwright Electric," or a jitney and drive in any direction his fancy might direct to find that a few blocks can be traversed on any street leading outward from the city's center without finding new buildings, from filling stations to factories.

These developments continue to be evident in most instances the full length of the street, getting less frequent, of course, as the thoroughfares near the city limits, but they are even considering frequency.

Where one may over the city, and in constantly increasing numbers as the weeks advance, one will observe the location of new business buildings, such as the Rogers stores that are in touch with all sections of Atlanta, the Piggly-Wiggly, the A. & P. stores and the Broyles establishments. Set down in the nest of these well-known grocery stores that serve an ever-widening circle of clients will be found other grocers, dry goods stores and always at the corner of these new business communities will be found a sumptuously appointed drug store.

Handsome Residences.

Atlanta can boast more of these handsome, attractive and convenient business communities scattered about over its residential sections than any city perhaps in the country and the fact that they all have an air of prosperity despite the hundreds of such establishments also prospering in the center of the town denotes not only the fact that the people of these communities as a whole convenience, but that Atlanta is enjoying a genuine wave of prosperity.

The project for reclaiming the muck land in the counties of Lowndes and Lanier," said Mr. Davidson, "has been in the hands of an engineer of Athens, whose name is Dr. Conger. Mr. Conger has now on the survey of the big ditch that will serve to carry away the stagnant water that inundates this fertile area, and the work of digging will commence not later than January 1."

Mr. Davidson, who promoted the above project, has great faith in the potentiality of south Georgia muck lands, which he declares are capable of raising any crops that can be produced in the climate zone, and he believes that the new plantation that is now being developed in Lowndes and Lanier counties will add many thousands of dollars to the total value of Georgia's agricultural products each year.

"These muck lands," said Mr. Davidson, "are as fertile as could be wished for, and they will raise great quantities of the finest products."

The man in charge of the legal part of the above drainage proposition is McCracken & Patterson, of Valdosta.

With the modern ditching machines and other drainage equipment that can be put to work, the proposition, that includes 25 miles of ditches, will be put through in record time.

DAVIS TO RECLAIM GREAT SWAMP

10,000 Acres in Lowndes and Lanier Counties to Be Opened for Agricultural Purposes.

J. T. Davis, of Atlanta, who recently figured in a big farm deal by purchasing the Porter interest in a magnificent Lowndes county plantation, has completed his final work of organization for an extensive drainage project in Lanier and Lowndes counties by which 10,000 acres of the finest south Georgia muck land will be reclaimed for general agricultural purposes.

This announcement was made by S. E. Davidson, of the M. C. Kiser Realty company, who acted as the agent for Mr. Davis in the above-mentioned purchase.

"The project for reclaiming the muck land in the counties of Lowndes and Lanier," said Mr. Davidson, "has been in the hands of an engineer of Athens, whose name is Dr. Conger. Robson Heads Rogers Renting Department

Holding the distinction of being the oldest renting man in Atlanta in point of continuous activity, Raymond Robson, formerly of Robson & Rivers, has just assumed management of the renting department of the L. W. Rogers Realty company.

With more than a quarter-century of valuable experience behind him as one of his chief resources, and with many score of friends and satisfied clients gathered throughout his many years of service to back him in his new connection, Mr. Robson is expected to fully vindicate the wisdom and judgment of his new employers in choosing him as the chief of this important department.

Mr. Robson entered the realty game in Atlanta when the town was young and when but few of the far-seeing and wisely prophetic pioneers even of that day could envision the wonderful development that has taken place in the "Gate City of the South." He entered the real estate circles here when the town was but a small village, when General George W. Robson, Captain John J. Woodside, J. B. Roberts, the Ansley brothers, Captain H. F. West and others formed a circle of business men of such integrity and sterling character that the business they founded and fostered could only be of the soundest, foundation and superstructure.

These pioneers, realizing that Atlanta dirt was practically all "pay dirt" and that whoever owned it owned a gold mine, were just the kind of men to lay the foundation for the greatest realty business that any city of the south has ever enjoyed.

Being intimately acquainted with the town and its people, and receiving much of his training through service with some of them, Mr. Robson carries with him today many of the sterling ideas and much of the business integrity that was inculcated by them.

"I have watched the progress of Atlanta," said Mr. Robson, "since the days of General George W. Robson, Captain John J. Woodside and other fine business men who were the real estate leaders in this great city."

"Although each of these men was conservative as a dealer, and despite the fact that they did not indulge in wild speculation, I am sure that they one and all realized the coming standard of Atlanta and its future value."

"Our renting department," said Mr. Robson, "is now ready for business, and we are prepared to handle this department in the most approved manner."

Mr. Robson stated that a little later in the year his firm will open a small subdivision, the details of which are to be announced at a future date. "We expect to have an announcement to make shortly with

JOINS JAMES L. LOGAN

The announcement was made Saturday afternoon that Henry R. Eichberg has joined the real estate concern of James L. Logan, one of the oldest and most progressive realty firms in Atlanta.

Mr. Eichberg enters the realty field with a large number of friends, and with a fine business training that will enable him to win success in his new undertaking. He is a native of Atlanta, being the son of one of Atlanta's pioneer citizens and business men who accomplished things when Atlanta was a small city.

Mr. Eichberg is regarded as a man of integrity and fine character, and his friends predict a large measure of success for him in his new connection.

NEW REALTY COMPANY FOR ATLANTA FIELD

An addition to Atlanta's already large real estate field is the Hollywood Land and Water company, which offers property in their own city, 15 miles north of Miami, Fla., which consists of 4,400 acres, and since last November, when the first building was erected, has expanded until now more than 150 homes and one hotel with 100 rooms have been erected.

With an ocean frontage of six miles and two ten-acre improved lakes the new owners bids fair to rival its namesake in beauty and natural advantages, according to L. L. Ludlow, who represents the concern here.

The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen have decided to hold their next convention in Hollywood and the land company has offered to build an auditorium seating 10,000 for the occasion. Other offices are located in New York, Chicago, Indianapolis, Tampa, Palm Beach, Jacksonville, with home office in Miami.

The novel illustrations are shown in the company's new quarters in the Healey building, occupying the entire sides of two walls. They show the town in perspective, both as it actually is and will be in the future.

where power is exerted on currency and credit movements that some inflation will be a good thing and should be arranged for. It must be admitted that our credit system is in admirable shape to meet business expansion. On the other hand, there is now an European market to draw off the surplus. Probably the greatest good from expansion would accrue to the farmer, and it is trite to say that when the farmer has sufficient purchasing power business is always good.

"Now let us look briefly to the fundamental conditions underlying construction. The volume of contracts awarded in September, 1922, was the highest September total ever recorded, and but 16 per cent under August, which in turn was a record-breaking month. This is in spite of a rail strike and coal strike. Residential building for September showed actual increase over August.

Workers Strike.

"There is a chronic scarcity of skilled tradesmen, plasterers and bricklayers being almost impossible to get. Even if construction in 1923 dwindles 25 per cent there will be still a skilled labor shortage and, consequently, no expectation of lowered wages could be logically entertained. The trend of common labor will be due to demand. Steel wages have increased 20 per cent. That shows which way the wind is blowing."

Mr. Brunner states that there is no reserve of building material on hand in the country today, and there is a question whether or not there will be a reserve created during the winter months when the mills usually catch up on their supplies of materials.

"Cement, brick, tile and other building materials require coal for their manufacture and production, and the present coal situation requires no comment."

That the present high cost of building is not all handed on to the consumer is Mr. Brunner's belief. He concludes his statement by summing up as follows:

"It seems evident that the considerable volume of construction which was done in 1922 will be done some where around the present price levels. There will be employment and constant buying power. The lack of rental quarters will not be replaced by slack. Those who bank on long sustained price levels about 80 per cent above pre-war times will go ahead and there will be sufficient numbers of these to produce business."

Home Evolution Is Interesting Study to Builder

Development of Rectangular Dwelling Traced by Writer.

It would be difficult for those who live in the beautiful and conveniently appointed residences of today to picture even in a small way the conditions that surround those who dwelt in the caverns and in the huge mountain crevices of "cave-man" days, says a writer in the Cincinnati Enquirer.

"In this day of handsome modern apartments and comfortable dwelling houses," the writer declares, "it is interesting to reflect that the earliest human dwelling places were probably natural shelter places, such as caves, overhanging rocks, densely interwoven foliage, etc., but the forms of human architecture had been developed by the time the progress of man reached the Neolithic period, and these primordial residences had much in common with the homes of burrowing animals."

The primitive man went down into the earth seeking warmth and comfort against the rigors of the winter, and the ability of living in caves had been developed by man after the huge animals, such as the dinosaurs and other formidable brutes, had disappeared from the forests. These huge beasts would have broken into the roofs of any residences that primitive man could have constructed, and in fact would have endangered him and his family in caves even that had thin walls.

Houses Were Round.
"It is indicated by research also that man's first houses were generally round in shape, and went downward into the earth from seven to ten feet. Over the tops of these pits was placed covers of this interlacing boughs of various kinds of trees which served to protect the people from the elements than from wild beasts."

"Entrance to the earliest homes was effected through tunnels that ran from the front of the structure to its center, and one large room, it is indicated, served for the whole family, as well as any domestic beasts that were mightily housed in the same.

These dwellings have been found in Germany as late as the first century of the Christian era.

"That man has clung to the idea of round or circular construction is evidenced by the various kinds of architecture even of today. The round Gothic windows, circular verandas, the oval-shaped rooms and even circular houses, show how the Neolithic architecture has clung to mankind throughout the ages."

Round Windows and Roofs.

"The bee-hive houses of Ireland, the circular mounds that were constructed by the American mound-builders, the round public building of Rome, and various structures in which the influence of the wheel-shaped architecture appears, indicates clearly that man has clung to this building idea throughout his career as a builder of houses."

"And in following this round building idea, man was carrying out one of the laws of nature, which never has created a straight line nor a square object or surface. All of nature's creations are built upon the plane or the flat upon the curved plane or surface."

"The rectangular form of building was man's own idea, and he departed from nature's beautiful lines to erect the square and cubical structures that have been so elaborated and beautified.

"It is not believed that man's longer or square sides of construction were introduced in the interest of appearance, but with the idea of affording more room and greater utility. It is also a well-known fact that the construction of square buildings is much easier than that of round or oval ones."

Round Roots Difficult.

"So long as the diameter of the house was held to within 18 to 20 feet, the construction was not so difficult as to be prohibitive, but when larger houses than that were demanded it was found necessary to adopt a different variety of construction than the round or circular house."

"The erection of a roof for a round house, about 20 feet in diameter, presented many obstacles, and as the sizes of the families increased and more room was demanded by constantly improving living conditions, the square structure was brought out because of the ease with which it could be erected and roofed.

"It is believed that buildings with square sides and sharp corners presented less surface to the pressure of the wind, making houses of this variety safer from the prevailing storms. This question doubtless required centuries of experimenting, but it was the Saxons, it is believed, who finally settled upon the oblong house as the most suitable for human habitation."

UNITED STATES STEEL SURPLUS EXCEEDS STOCK

Gary Denies Rumor Plan To Follow Standard Oil Is Under Consideration

BY R. L. BARNUM,

Constitution's Financial Correspondent.

New York, October 21.—United States Steel had at the close of 1921 a profit and loss surplus of $502,198,000 not including $140,898,000 of surplus earnings appropriated for improvements and betterments, which might have been charged to capital account. This means that there is a surplus of $642,000,000, which belongs to the holders of the outstanding $508,000,000, common stock. Early this week the common stock sold up to 111 1/2, the highest price touched since November of 1919 or just before the general decline in the stock market began. This high price of 111 1/2 compared with 76 1/4, the low for 1920, and 70 1/4, the low for 1921, was made on rumors that following the example of the various Standard Oil companies a stock dividend would be declared, probably when the directors met on October 31 to act on quarterly dividends and put out the quarterly statement of earnings.

Chairman Gary of the Steel corporation, however, promptly threw cold water on these stock dividend rumors. On the same day that 111 1/2 was touched for the common, Mr. Gary, when asked if there was any news of the dividend reports, said: "So far as I know the question has neither been discussed or raised."

More Cold Water.

The same day more cold water for the stock dividend craze came from President Cornish of National Lead. When stock dividend rumors about his company this is what he said: "I have nothing to say in the press that it was advantageous to declare plus in stock dividends as a means of reducing capital. I have no reliable information as to how the National Lead company or its stockholders would be benefited by such action. Of course the demagogues who complain when we pay 6 per cent might not complain if we were paying out 3 per cent although the total dividends would be the same. Our articles of incorporation would have to be amended if we were to declare all of our surplus as a stock dividend. We are naturally studying the situation but as yet have seen no reason for such a course."

Corporation Tax.

It did not take speculative Wall street long to shake off this cold water. Before the middle of this week, despite the denials from high officials in the administration that any corporation surplus tax was being considered, it was learned from Washington newspaper men that sentiment at the capital was rapidly growing in favor of raising funds for government expenditures by taxing rich corporations instead of the average individual.

During the war and after war period there was a tax on the surplus of corporations. Whether this tax is to be resumed and increased and whether such a tax could be defeated by a stock dividend are open questions. The interesting facts are speculative Wall street sees them and they serve the interest of oil companies, American Radiator, National Biscuit and others for reasons best known to themselves have just declared stock dividends and Wall street is flooded with rumors that similar action is to be taken by other corporations. On one side it was being argued in Wall street this week that stock dividends were of mutual benefit to shareholders because the assets remained the same and the holder simply had two or more stock certificates as the case might be, for one. Others said in effect: "You are welcome to your opinions; but give us the stock dividends. We know what has happened in Standard Oil and other cases where stock dividends have been declared."

Favor Dividends.

There is no tax on dividends, whether or not the shares are borne by stock dividends. But in some cases the evidence is in favor of stock dividends. Take for example Standard Oil of New York. That company's shares were selling in the open market in 1912 at $905 a share and the cash dividend paid was $20 a cent. For the first half of 1922 the $12,700 paid on the common stock was not much more than $2,000 a share. It is no question but that the company could declare an extra dividend, but whether it will do so, after having recently not even earned its regular 5 per cent and paid the unearned dividend from the profit and loss surplus, remains to be seen.

Irregular Prices Feature Short Market Session

New York, October 21.—Stock prices opened today with a show of strength but speculative selling and profit-taking in some issues and a brisk bidding up of others gave the market a decidedly irregular appearance.

The price movement reflected the play of opposing speculative forces. The week's daily price and trade reviews painted an optimistic picture of business conditions, but they had little effect on market prices.

High-priced stocks continued to set the pace on the upward swing. Mexican petroleum crossed 234, the highest price since 1919, but fell back later to 231 3/4, a net gain of half on the day.

Reading dropped back slightly below its night closing figure after establishing a new high figure at 84 3/8. Mixed changes took place among other standard rails, trading in which was less active.

Shipping shares were heavy. National Biscuit, National Lead, Bethlehem Steel A and Allis Chalmers were strong.

Interest in the foreign exchange situation centered on the further decline of German marks to 2 1/4 cents a pound. French, Belgian and Italian remittances also receded while sterling and the Scandinavian exchanges were quietly firm.

The clearing house statement showed an increase of $126,765,000 in remittances, discounts and investments and of $883,374,000 in the reserve of members held in the federal reserve bank, $54,376,000 in non-demand deposits and $12,781,000 in time deposits. The excess reserve totalled $23,953,720 as compared with last week's deficit of $2,332,280.

Dry Goods.

New York, October 21.—Several lines of cotton goods were up from the last week today, pending an upward revision. Yarns are being marked higher. Yarns are being marked higher. The demand for light wool fabrics, firmer and wool goods tended higher. Knit goods for immediate use were more active.

COTTON GOOD REVIEW.

Cotton goods markets have been strong and active with several advances reported. Some lines of wide sheetings are up 12 1/2 cents. Denims have been sold by the last week's statement as follows: to March 1 on a basis of 19 1/2¢ for 2 1/2 yards. Print cloths, sheetings, drills and other items are higher, and there has been an advance of 10 1/2¢ for 2 1/2 yards, unbranded. Buying for delivery into the first two months of next year has been continuing, with some buying and jobbing trades. Retailers are ordering wash goods for future delivery and have been repeating orders steadily to the jobbers, paying for prompt delivery of small lots.

2 Women Make Sex Their Issue In Senate Races

BY ROBERT J. BENDER.

New York, October 20.—Two women—one in Minnesota and one in Wisconsin—are setting political mine posts these days, though the country at large may not be aware of it, or particularly interested in it.

Mrs. Anna Dickie Olesen, in the former state, and Mrs. Jessie Jack Hooper in the latter, are among one of those "first-time-in-history" wives, candidates of a major party for the United States senate. Never before in this country has one woman, much less two, been nominated for a seat in the upper branch of congress.

And while interest generally is at low ebb in the campaigns this year, as testified to by the low registration figures, there is going on in Wisconsin and Minnesota a political fight which will ultimately extend to other states may revolutionize and elevate campaigns in general.

Some Big Issues.

Out in Missouri Senator Jim Reed and R. H. Brewster are exchanging barbs of a character which may make the ultimate decision in that contest dependent upon which candidate demonstrates the greatest capacity for creating abusive phrases about the other.

In New Jersey, the great question of which has the redder face and purples nose, Senator Frelinghuysen or Governor Edward M. House, by their respective supporters, in Nebraska the problem of which is worst, Bryan should support his former enemy, Senator Hitchcock, or that Howell, the republican candidate and alleged to be "ultra-progressive," should be supported by the conservative Updike grain and banking interests, dominates the political atmosphere. Similar "paramount issues" have been raised in numerous other campaigns.

But in Minnesota and Wisconsin there is another type of contest, singularly lacking in oratorical brawn, in exchanges of abusive personalities and defiant challenges on this and that. In these two states there is but one issue: Should a woman, rather than a man, sit in a senate seat as representative of a great commonwealth?

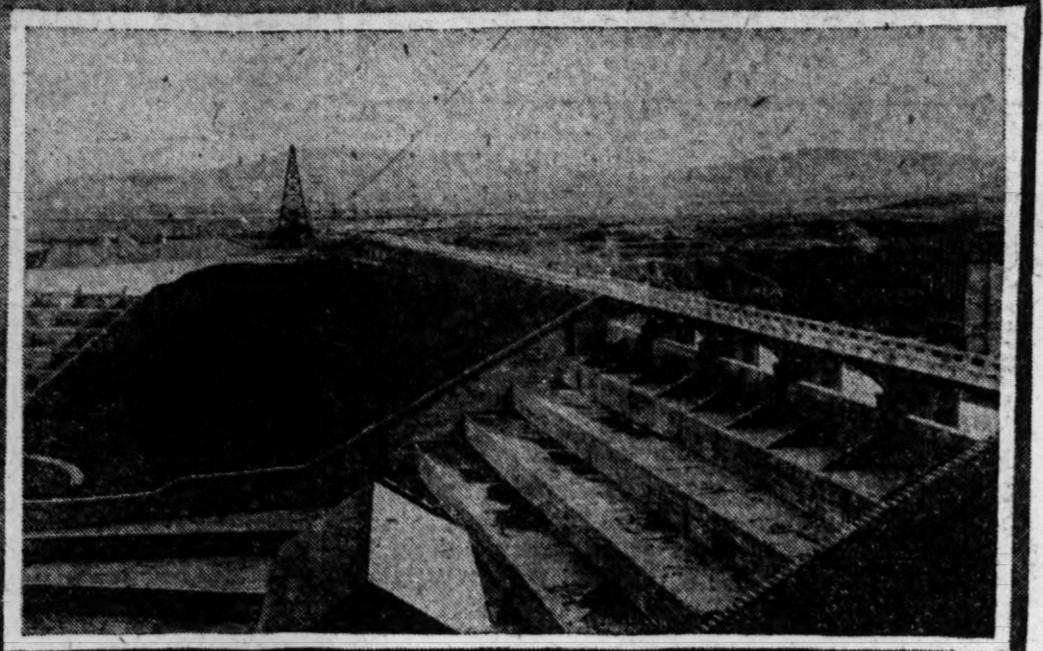

They are, relatively quiet campaigns because they are restricted to discussions of national issues. The misfortune in them is that, generally speaking, and this comprises the men's vote rather than the women's—the result will be decided, whenever wins, as due to the fact that one candidate was a woman, whereas the other was a man.

Blazing Trail.

Whatever the outcome of these contests, Mrs. Olesen and Mrs. Hooper are blazing a trail that will widen in future political contests.

Sensing their handicap because of their sex, both are campaigning "a mere" Mrs. Olesen has won part from the outset of her campaign that would postpone almost any man old enough to have senatorial aspirations. This

Native of Georgia Supervises Building Of Two Immense Irrigation Projects

View of the Lahontan dam at Fallon, Nevada, constructed under the supervision of D. W. Cole, civil engineer, formerly of Marietta, Ga. Engineer Cole was also in charge of the work on the great Shoshone irrigation dam near Cody, Wyo.

The engineer who supervised the work on the Shoshone, and the Lahontan, does two great western irrigation projects, was a Georgian, D. W. Cole, of Marietta Ga.

Born and raised in Marietta, he entered the government service when the work of the Shoshone dam at Cody, Wyoming, was started. He was appointed supervising engineer on the project.

When the work was completed, he was transferred to Fallon, Nevada, human dynamo is winding up one of the most intensive campaigns that ever has been waged in this country.

In 12 weeks she has covered nearly 16,000 miles in a "democratic" sedan, presented by democratic women of Minneapolis. She has addressed audiences in more than 200 towns and has delivered from two to seven speeches a day. She has traveled from early morning until late at night, making 100 miles a day, arriving at 11 p. m. to hear her.

Mrs. Hooper in Wisconsin, undismayed by the avalanche of votes rolled up by Senator LaFollette in the primary election, is vigorously campaigning the state as the democratic candidate. Her spirit may be further rekindled when it is known that the democrats failed to cast a sufficient number of votes in the primaries to nominate any of their candidates and hence all democrats are running as independent democratic candidates.

Both of these election campaigns the issues have been raised to a national level as perhaps in no other state in the union. Nothing of personalities—none of the petty personalities which is the stock in trade of the average campaign orator.

SIR PAUL AND LADY DUKES NOW IN PARIS

Paris, October 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—Sir Paul Dukes and his bride, who was formerly Mrs. Osgood L. Mills, of New York, are visiting today in the Paris home of Lady Dukes' mother, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, who warmly greeted them when they reached her last night on their return to the United States from New York.

Mrs. Vanderbilt is simply overjoyed over our marriage, and she wants us to remain with her in her Paris house just as long as we possibly can," Sir Paul told the Associated Press today. "I have decided to make my home in the United States and my wife and I have accepted Mrs. Vanderbilt's invitation to live with her in New York."

Sir Paul expects to devote his time in America to lecturing on Russia and international topics and to writing. Lady Dukes expects to assist her husband in his writings.

A motorboat which Sir Paul had at Nyc, N. Y., last summer was a factor in the romance which led to his sudden and secret marriage two weeks ago, he said.

Sir Paul, who was head of the British secret service in Russia in the early days of the soviet regime, said he was going to keep as far away from that country as he could.

Dr. Albert Hill
Of Relief Work

Dr. Albert Ross Hill, vice chairman in charge of foreign operations for the American Red Cross, will arrive Monday in Athens, Greece, and assume entire charge of relief work in Europe growing out of the Smyrna disaster and the emergency created by Turkish atrocities perpetrated by Kemal Pasha's troops, according to Harry L. Hopkins, chairman of the southern division of the Red Cross, a statement given out here Saturday.

Dr. Hill and Rear Admiral Samuel McGowan, retired, who will assist him, sailed for Europe Friday, October 13. They were accompanied by Ralph Renn, Red Cross director of accidents.

The Red Cross has already expended $150,000 for food, medical supplies and clothing for refugees, beginning with the dispatch of Major Clafin Davis from Constantinople to Smyrna with a medical unit and supplies at the time of the disaster there. Major Davis arrived in Smyrna before the Turkish army, according to an understanding arrived at by Chairman Payne of the Red Cross and James Barton, chairman of the Near East relief committee.

Options have been obtained on a series of floors and rooms due in Near East ports in the early future and Dr. Hill will handle them immediately for the Red Cross, Mr. Hopkins has been informed.

Acting on orders cabled last week by Chairman John Barton Payne, 5,500 cases of milk have been rushed to Athens by D. G. Swift, business manager of the American Red Cross in Paris.

The pressing need of winter clothing for refugees from Asia Minor, as reported by Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, representing the International Red Cross committee, is being partially met.

According to Mr. Swift's reports, 11,000 overcoats will leave England October 22 for Athens. One thousand winter outifts were shipped from America last week.

Red Cross chapters throughout the south have been asked to concentrate on production of clothing for women and children refugees, in a letter Saturday from Mrs. Victor M. Cluis, director of volunteer service for the southern division. Mrs. Cluis relayed to the chapters the message given to the Red Cross convention in Washington last week by Mrs. Anna Belmont, of New York—"Go back and tell your people to get out their knitting."

Red Cross Nurses.

American Red Cross nurses serving in cities throughout Europe, ordered by cable to report to Athens, are placing themselves at the disposal of Mrs. Charlotte M. Hellman, Red Cross nurse who has been in charge of child welfare work in Athens since the withdrawal of the American Red Cross commission in 1920, according to information received by Mr. Hopkins. The Greek nurses, trained in America are with Mrs. Hellman, with a unit of twenty training Athens young women also available.

Relief operations will be in charge of the Red Cross in conformity with a request from General Harding and a resolution adopted last week by the Red Cross central committee. Funds sufficient to satisfy the situation have been placed at the disposal of Dr. Hill for relief work, by resolution of the committee.

The Red Cross is to have general direction of funds raised in the Near East emergency fund appeal, as Major Davis arrived in Smyrna before the Red Cross roll call November 11 to 30, according to the understanding arrived at by Chairman Payne of the Red Cross and James Barton, chairman of the Near East relief committee.

WANT EQUIPMENT FOR COLORED "Y"
DORMITORY FLOOR

The committee of management of the colored Y. A. colored men's branch is conducting a campaign to install equipment in the new dormitory floor. This campaign will run till the first of next month.

Thursday evening at 7 o'clock the Senior Bible class, taught by Willis J. King, of Gammon Theological Seminary, held its first meeting, elected for the course and began the study of Curry's "Jesus and His Church."

And officials of the Atlanta point with pride to coming attractions. The "Bringing Up Father," a show that plays here annually and has a clientele all its own, appealing to lovers of cartoon comedies as the very best in its line.

Then come the big ones. The last half of next week will witness the appearance of "The Circle," with a quintet of stars—Wilton Lackaye, Amelia Bingham, Henry E. Dickey, Charlotte Walker and Norman Hackett.

"The Cat and the Canary" will succeed "The Circle," playing all of the week of November 6. This play is everywhere hailed as "out-battling" "The Bat" and pronounced one of the most thrilling gripes ever produced.

It is now playing to capacity houses in New York, Chicago, London, Australia and the Orient.

"The Circle" Praised.

"The Circle," as presented here by the Selwyns, is memorable for many reasons. The play is the work of S. S. Goodwin, and his best, and his best is to be ranked with the best of those who are writing for the English-speaking stage. It is high comedy at its height. It has moments that evoke laughter, not boisterous, but of the sort that rather pleases the auditor who laughs because he is keen enough to appreciate the humor of these moments. On the other hand, there are moments grimly alive and tragic. Mr. Merton's "The Moon and Sixpence" in short, it is drawing room comedy-drama, with not a suggestion of melodrama, but drama with the frankness of modernity, which recognizes facts and speaks of them.

It is possible to produce a play that can out-thrill "The Bat." The Ford Motor Company's "The Cat and the Canary" is the best, and it has accomplished this almost unbelievable feat. Here's a short excerpt from the criticism recently appearing in that paper:

"The universal comment appears to be thrown about the question as to whether 'The Cat and the Canary' is more thrilling than 'The Bat.' As a Foster.

Emotional Offering.

On November 13, 14 and 15 America's leading emotional star, Margaret Anglin, in her latest and greatest success, "The Woman of Bronze," will prove a high light in the local season.

The ever-popular Lassies White Minstrels have the stage for November 16, 17 and 18, and the famous burnt-cork master and his musical mates will draw the curtain on the season.

A host of other attractions of the same high type will follow one after another, all maintaining the splendid standard of the Atlanta theater.

An idea of the excellency of the coming production of "The Circle" can be gained from a single paragraph taken from a lengthy criticism appearing in The Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch, which says:

"The Circle" Praised.

Splendid Attractions Coming

Following a series of offerings that have delighted the hearts of Atlanta theatergoers, the Atlanta theater will be dark this week, and the popular amusement house will reopen next week and will continue its splendid line of attractions for the remainder of the season.

In the words of Manager Lewis Haase, there's a reason for the week of idleness.

"We could easily have secured a show to play here during the week," Manager said, "but we could not have been certain of the quality, due to the fact that we would have been forced to book it blindly."

"It's a comparatively easy matter to secure shows, but it's a mighty hard thing to get one of the type that we have been showing all season and will continue to offer throughout the winter. As we thought, it best to pick up the week dark in preference to picking up show that might not measure up to what we have been maintaining in other words, the Atlanta is going to present good shows or none at all, so that accounts for the break."

And Manager Haase should win the commendation of his patrons kind of service, though he is frank enough to say that any such show would probably injure the reputation for high-class shows—and high-class shows only—which his theater is enjoying.

Record Season.

That the 1922 season at the Atlanta sets a record for theatrical performance is evidenced by a review of the attractions that have so far appeared this season and a glance at those that are booked for early production.

"Just take a backward look and see if one can remember better shows than 'The Man Who Came Back,' Mitsu in 'Lady Billy,' the De Wolfe Hopper comedy, 'The Barber and Sullivan' with the Al G. Fielders and 'The Merry Widow,' which last week swept the city off its feet.

And officials of the Atlanta point with pride to coming attractions. The "Bringing Up Father," a show that plays here annually and has a clientele all its own, appealing to lovers of cartoon comedies as the very best in its line.

MILLER IS SECRETARY ARCADE ASSOCIATION

Board of Governors Plans Active Advertising Campaign for Arcade.

At a meeting of the governing board of the Arcade Co-operative association Thursday, W. I. Miller was elected secretary of the organization. Mr. Miller is a prominent young business man and is well qualified to fill the office to which he was elected, the board believes.

The association is planning an extensive program of advertising, each merchant co-operating with the other, and with such co-operation it is planned to bring to the people of Atlanta just what the association stands for.

A city in itself, a place where courtesy and values reign supreme, a place where the foundation is based upon the principles of good fellowship and the duty of serving society by giving value received. A firm belief in the Golden Rule, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you," is evidenced in transactions large and small, and a great many of the Atlanta citizens attest that the labors of the association are not in vain, according to members of the board.

"From its conception, the association has done truly magnificent work, and that it will function and be the life of the building, is not doubted in the least, and the association will soon be known as the people's business organization in Atlanta," Mr. Miller declared.

The next regular meeting of the association will be held on Thursday evening, October 26.

G. C. Green, recently elected to the presidency of the association, announced the following committees:

Finance committee: J. J. Bookout, chairman; H. H. Fulton, vice-chairman; T. H. Fulton, secretary.

Membership committee: J. R. Nix, chairman; A. Quarles, L. Boorstein, I. B. Gordon, G. A. Green.

WILLYS-OVERLAND SHOWS PAINT JOBS

The Atlanta branch of Willys-Overland, Inc., are showing several specially painted and trimmed jobs, of both the Willys-Knight and the Overland four, on their showroom floor. "There is some demand for fancy jobs, and we are prepared to meet this demand with our special jobs," stated an official of the branch, who continued: "Sales are far in excess of our expectations. In fact, it looks like the buying season has just really begun in the south. Our dealers over the entire territory report renewed buying activities from farmers and the smaller towns. This is very welcome, some condition, and it is our opinion that our sales will continue to mount toward new high levels during the entire fall and winter season."

The new low prices on Willys-Overland and Knight cars have probably contributed much toward the big increase in sales for this company. Both cars are now selling at the lowest point in their history, and the sleeve-valve Knight is selling at the lowest price at which any Knight motors automobile has ever sold.

Dr. E. C. Thrash, president of the Georgia Tuberculosis association, and Dr. C. C. Aven, of the advisory staff, and head of the medical staff of the Atlanta association, returned to Atlanta from Cuthbert Saturday where they had been called to take part in the exercises of "Tuberculosis day" held in that city Thursday by the Georgia Tuberculosis association.

Similar clinics are to be staged by the State Tuberculosis association in Rome and Americus in the near future.

Miss Annette McDonald, secretary of the State Tuberculosis association, whose home is in Cuthbert, was responsible for the program which was sponsored by the Randolph County Medical society under the efficient direction of Dr. G. Y. Moore, secretary, Dr. C. M. Stephens, of Waycross, and Dr. W. O. Shepard, of Bluffton, joined the Atlanta specialists and local physicians in the clinic. Miss Chloe M. Jackson, the executive nurse of the state association, also went to Cuthbert several days in advance to assist Miss McDonald and others in the arrangements for the clinic and especially in listing the patients who wished examination. She remains over for several days to look after those who need attention.

Dr. C. C. Aven, who gave a report that the clinic was one of the biggest and most successful that they ever attended, 147 patients being examined by the four doctors. The afternoon program of public health motion pictures and special addresses in the Victoria theater was the popular feature of the day and was well attended. A banquet was given in the evening by the medical society in honor of the visiting doctors, at which the plans of the local and state organizations were discussed and the membership and the Christmas seal campaign outlined.

THE CRANE-BAXTER CO. HANDLE LION BUMPERS

The Crane-Baxter company, at Spring and Baxter streets, have been named Georgia distributors for the Lion bumper. This well-known spring bar bumper is one of the most popular on the market, and the volume of business done in Georgia will appreciably increase the total business done by this well-known auto specialty distributing firm, which is composed of Bruce B. Baxter and Houseman Crane.

The famous line of "Alemite" products are the other feature lines of this company. The Alemite line is handled by the Alemite Lubricator company, which is a subsidiary organization of the Crane-Baxter company. In speaking of the acquisition of the Lion bumper line, Mr. Baxter stated that he felt quite fortunate in securing the line, and that it rounded out his line of products very admirably, and that he anticipated a very flattering volume of business on bumpers. The Lion bumper is built in models to fit all make cars and can be had in a variety of models with a wide price range.

Houston Crane states that their sales on Hartford shock absorbers has far exceeded their allotment from their factory, notwithstanding the fact that factory production has been greatly increased.

PORTER-MINEHAN CO., NEW HUDSON AND ESSEX DEALERS

New Hudson-Essex Dealership Formally Opens for Business

Porter-Minehan Co. Will Handle Popular Cars in Atlanta in Competition With Goldsmith-Grant.

The Porter-Minehan company, recently organized by Samuel C. Porter and Ralph J. Minehan, to handle Hudson and Essex cars at retail, in competition with the J. W. Goldsmith, Jr.-Grant company, state distributors, will open for business tomorrow.

They will occupy the two stores at 518 and 520 Peachtree street, and the large automobile service station building in the rear of these stores. The service entrance will be from North avenue.

Measures, Porter and Minehan, though occupying their service station, delivered several new Hudson and Essex cars during the past week, and it is predicted that with their formal opening they will rapidly become one of the large volume retail dealers in Atlanta.

Firms Congratulate.

Many prominent local firms have taken the opportunity to congratulate these young and progressive business men upon receiving this valuable franchise, a good number of firms doing this not only in person, but through the medium of the press.

There are probably no other two local automobile men, formerly holding subordinate positions, that have a greater number of friends either in the trade or in other business and social circles, than Messrs. Porter and Minehan.

Mr. Porter has been with the J. W. Goldsmith, Jr.-Grant company for a number of years, serving as general manager for the past two years. Mr. Minehan has been in the automobile business for about seven years, the past year as a retail salesman for the Goldsmith-Grant company.

Good Service Equipment.

Mr. Porter, who is president and general manager of the new company, states that they have arranged for a corps of trained Hudson and Essex mechanics, and that they have equipped their shops with the most modern and efficient equipment possible to secure. Their service space will compare favorably with some of the largest in Atlanta.

Mr. Porter will have active supervision of all the departments of the business, and he promises to offer the motoring public a measure of service in every respect worthy of the commendation of the most critical. Mr. Minehan will head the sales organization, which is now being formed. He is well fitted to handle this position, as his entire experience in the automobile business has been in the sales end.

Advantages to Owners.

J. W. Goldsmith, Jr., president of the Goldsmith-Grant company, who distribute Hudson and Essex cars in Georgia, states that he feels fortunate in having two men in his organization to whom he could give this valuable franchise.

The appointment of these men as dealers will be of real service to the present and future owners of Hudson and Essex cars. They are both entirely competent to handle the sales and service in an admirable way, and with the opening of their store, our owners will have the option of taking their vehicles to either organization.

"North side owners will probably find the new service station quite convenient at times, as it will be located nearer to their homes," said Mr. Goldsmith, who predicted an increase in Hudson and Essex sales in Atlanta of at least 90 per cent during the next year.

The J. W. Goldsmith, Jr.-Grant company will continue their retail sales and service departments as in the past, and will be in direct it is believed by both organizations

SCHOOLS' STUDIES WILL BE CHANGED

Junior High School System Demands Revision of Courses—Truants Will Be Rounded Up.

A complete reorganization of the course of study in the Atlanta public schools is being planned by a special committee of teachers, with the view of its inauguration when the junior high schools are opened.

When the plan is finished it will be submitted to the board of education to obtain its approval.

A reorganization of the curriculum is made necessary by establishment of the junior high school system and elimination of one grade from the present grammar school course of seven grades.

School Superintendent W. A. Sutton announced Saturday that the week of November 6 will be "Round-up" week, with the police aiding to get all the children in school who may have been overlooked by the compulsory attendance officer.

Miss Frances Russell, attendance officer, left Saturday to attend the compulsory attendance conference this week at Memphis.

DODGE BROTHERS BUSINESS SEDAN

Exceptional interest has been aroused by the practical arrangement of the interior.

The entire rear compartment furnishings—seat, seat cushions, back cushions, seat frame, foot rest, carpet and all—can be removed from the car in a few moments.

The front seat is then tilted forward, giving a gross clearance of twenty-two inches through the rear doors.

In this way, a space of sixty-four cubic feet in the rear compartment is made available for loading.

When the rear seat fixtures are back in place, the interior is complete and attractive in appearance. Its convertibility is not apparent to the eye.

Business men, farmers, salesmen, campers, tourists and everyone who has occasion, at times, to carry bulky articles or luggage, will readily appreciate the great utility of this construction.

The price is $850.00—delivered

85-GALLON STILL SILENCED FRIDAY
BY U. S. SLEUTHS

Federal Agents Sowell, Kincaid and Castile late Friday night seized an illicit still with an estimated 85-gallon capacity, in full operation, seven miles from Conyers, in Rockdale county, it was reported Saturday by Fred D. Dismukes, director of prohibition for Georgia.

The still was hidden in a secluded valley, the agents reported. When the officers made their appearance no one was near it, approximately 4,500 gallons of fermented mash were found and destroyed, it was announced.

J. B. Kincaid, of 75 Peachtree street, and Jerry Hefner, who gave his address as Alexander street, were arrested by United States Deputy Marshal Bishop, Saturday morning, charged with having in their possession illicit liquor.

The two men were riding on an L. & N. train when the officer boarded the Conyers train and questioned them as to the contents of their suitcases, and they are said to have easily admitted possession of liquor. Two one-gallon tin receptacles containing moonshine liquor was found, the officers claimed.

ATLANTA LOVERS OF ART BUYING OIL PAINTINGS

Unusual opportunities for the sale of pictures exhibited at the Southern fair in the Atlanta Art Association by the director, Mrs. E. W. More, who reports that two sales have already been recorded and a prominent local art patron is negotiating for a third one.

The first purchase was made by Mrs. Joseph Moody, who secured "In the Park," a California painting, done exclusively by Miss Virginia Williams. The painting shows a fountain, playing in the midst of the beauty of a California park, attracting much favorable comment from the thousands who have viewed the exhibits.

The second sale was from the group of three beautiful pastels by Floyd S. Knight, the Atlanta artist who has been doing landscapes in the north Georgia mountains. Armond Carroll, "The Mountain Cascade," which has been much admired by visitors to the fair.

A canvas sent down by one of the northern artists is now under option. An Atlanta patron is the prospective purchaser. The canvas is one of the most popular of the entire collection.

GREAT FIRE SALE CONTINUES NEXT WEEK

The great fire sale of the L. F. M. store has been held as a commercial side. The great army of clerks and helpers employed by this firm have been eating in the store, taking no lunch hour, since the big sale started. In speaking of the sale, Mr. Fitzpatrick said: "I believe this is one of the most successful legitimate fire sales ever offered the people of Atlanta. It's great. And we feel mighty good about it. We have been doing a great deal of work, and co-operation of our employees. Without them we could have done nothing. We are practically running a restaurant in the store for their benefit. We serve them their meals daily, and have since the start.

Course this is the best done at the store's expense. Monday we open the store again, and we will take care of everybody who comes and you can tell them that Fitzpatrick says go—be on hand early.

FORWARD PASSING OF MIDDIES DEFEATS TORNADO

Georgia Tech Goes Down
Game Here in 1923 Off

Barron Watched Closely by Entire Navy Team, Succeeds in Getting Away Several Times—Clare Frye Stars.

BY PAUL WARWICK
Annapolis, Md., October 21.—(Special.)—The seafaring gentlemen who attend the United States naval academy at this place refused to be flustered by a tornado, whether it was Golden or not, and plowed on through to a 13 to 0 victory over Georgia Tech's delegation here this afternoon.

Bob Folwell has evidently added some of the naval air service to his coaching staff, for the attack that flew overhead worked exceptionally well and sent the boys from the hills in Atlanta to the Navy. The Navy answered 16 forward passes and got away with ten of them for a total yardage of 150 yards. This category includes one 150 that caused a run of some 40 yards for one of those two touchdowns that Commander Conroy and Boatman Barchet are chuckling over tonight in their binoculars of marmalade or whatever it is that the tars go when they want to chuckle.

Red Barron, during most of the moments of the game, was stopped colder than Sunday night supper. At times the brick-topped flash eluded the forward and a section or so of the Navy secondary defense for one of those dashes that have won gallantry plaudits from me. It could not do all by himself and was often tossed for substantial losses way back of his line of scrimmage while linemen not dumped were getting rid of Midshipmen way up the field, who were never called upon to throw their arms around the shapely limbs of Tech's captives.

Occasional Burst.
An occasional burst for 5 or 6 yards by Pinkey Hunt was just about the only other offensive measure put up by Tech. Tech's two goals, however, but only one flip reached its destination. That one netted the Jackets 40 excellent yards just after the first Navy touchdown and it looked for a brief spell as if the southerners were going to rally and show the fledgling Admirals something or other. But the persistent work of such people as Taylor, who inhabit the right-hand flank of the Navy, tossed the rally into the discard.

Despite the sad necessity of admitting that Tech was outclassed in all departments, the first downs in the first half were even—five each. And there was more fight needed to hold the salts scoreless in the second half than may have been expected, just like the game. The game ended with the ball on Tech's 5-yard line. Clare Frye and some of his immediate neighbors in the Tech line had halted the Navy advance on the 1-yard line a few minutes before and held the sailors for bows. But a puny punt by McWhorter, who had replaced Brewster, who had replaced McWhorter in the second quarter, allowed the navy to threaten again, if you get that replace.

If the writer knew what size laurel wreath would fit old Clare Frye he would purchase it himself and ask permission to adorn that worthy brow. There is the hero of Tech's battle against the Navy in the year of our Lord 1922.

Red Barron did his best, but the circumstances have issued an edict that the hero of that game must be chosen for his defensive work. Some room must be assigned for the Navy being limited to small portion when touchdowns were handed out, and the responsibility for that success must be laid at the feet of Clare Frye. Cocky as a bantam rooster, standing back of the line with his head held high, Clare Frye has always looked the fighter. He has a seat in his eye that makes the game on the other side of the bell to come at him. He was fought before, but never with the glorious success and fervor he displayed Saturday afternoon. He tore through the line and dumped play after play that the Navy backs expected to gain some knots. He would rush along and spike his stick to the ground several yards further toward the point the navy was trying to attain.

Back to Barron.
The story thus far seems to ignore Red Barron a bit too much. To one who is accustomed to seeing the litho form of Barron snake down Grant field for several yards whenever he wills, it seemed that Red was stopped cold. The navy team was undoubtedly laying for him. But he evaded several times for gains that ran from four to 18 yards. He had never run with at least three first downs on single dashes. He was doing it all alone. The inference he should have had was bowled over before it had a chance to help him. In reality, he played a heroic game, for he stuck by the guns, carrying the ball on almost every other play, from the time the first whistle sounded until the fracas was called to a disastrous close.

The racing offered was of the highest class and apparently pleased the crowds each afternoon. It is very probable that the running program will be repeated at the fair next year. There was nothing short about the manner in which the navy players were carried out, and every jockey, owner and horse had to toe the mark under the strenuous administration of Judge Ross.

Navy Worried.
That's one of the times when the navy got worried. Secretary Edwin Denby didn't say so exactly, but the supremacy of the high seas was threatened then, and when Pinkey Hunt grabbed off that forward pass and ran some distance with more speed than he usually does, faster, that is when the designs were insulted, the midshipmen mad, the commanders choleric, the lieutenants quarelling, and the quartermasters quarreling. It seemed for a moment that the flotilla was about to flutter and founder. For a moment or so the Navy was shocked to the quarter-decks. The mizzenmasts were skipping and the bowsprit, whatever it was, but the rally was murdered, burning, and the squadron didn't quaver.

Reflection insists that the most insatiable article offered the midshipmen was the egg that Jack McDonough threw over the bunch of navy beans. It looked appetizing to the absent cohort of Tech supporters. The Wop Romans and his crew, but it made the navy sick. So sick, in fact, that they refused to allow Jack to touch such another entry. The midshipmen of the game Red Barron came near getting away with several snap-hangs just over the center of the line, but the consistent alertness of the navy's secondaries thwarted all his efforts.

The game was a record affair in one respect, at least. There was not a single penalty imposed on either side. Mike Thompson was doing theudging, and he did it well, but even the best of eagle eyes were unable to find cause for penalization. Not even a 2-yard affair for too much time out was allowed to creep into the score of the afternoon.

Barchet, the diminutive fellow that the navy sent off, is quite all that we have heard, thank you. He looks too small for a fullback in the additional manner of viewing that

RACES CLOSE AT LAKEWOOD

BY BROWN WHATLEY.

Showing the most dazzling display of speed after a heart breaking start Croesus came up from the rear and topped the feature event of the entire meeting yesterday at Lakewood when he won the Chamber of Commerce handicap, the third race of the afternoon.

The knowing ones were fooled in every event on the program yesterday and the dark-horses had things all their own way. Ray Atkin sprang the biggest surprise of the meeting when he came in claiming the big end of the purse in the second race. A fifteen to one shot at the last minute the barrier lifted, he was in the fight from the start and in a thrilling finish nosed out short of George W. and Aunt Dode who took second and third money in the order named.

Legacy won the first race after flattening the barrier, holding his lead all the way and showing a clear pair of heels to Alf Vezina who lead Douglass Fairbanks by a nose. The fourth and last race was won by Thistie Queen with Bread Line and Fireworks placing a desperate fight for second place.

Seven starters went to the post in the first race of the afternoon and after a rather ragged start with Legacy out in front by two lengths there was never any doubt about the winner.

Legacy drew four to one odds and her winning was the occasion of much surprise among the "well informed." Alf Vezina was the favorite and finished in second place, just nosing out Douglas Fairbanks who finished third.

Eight Starters.
Eight starters answered the call of the bugle in the second event and with George W. as favorite, taking six to five in the betting, the little brown gelding Ray Atkin responded to the urge of Jockey Horn and led the field to the wire and beat George W. by a narrow margin.

Third money was claimed by Aunt Dode, who fought desperately down the stretch for a money position. The horse Ray Atkin was the longest shot of the week, running 15 to 1, but had only a very few bidders.

The Chamber of Commerce handicap, the feature event of the meeting, offering the largest purse was run over a mile and distance and drew six starters, with Blackstone and Mary William the favorites. Croesus was a 2-to-1 shot when the betting closed and was almost left at the post. After a dead start he trailed the field by three lengths all the way down the back stretch, passing into the last turn when he took the pole and with a burst of the most dazzling equine speed ever shown by a thoroughbred chunk. The Orange and White attorney, 10 to 1, was the only which completed, five falling to the ground for no gain, and five being intercepted by Georgia runners, who averaged taking the throws back for 10 yards.

To little Quarterback Clayton, Vol field general, go the losers' laurels of the day. His 38-yard drop-kick for goal in the second quarter was one of the prettiest looks he has in his career, being compensated from a very difficult angle. It was easily discernible that he derived the maximum out of the offensive of the Vols.

Joe Johnson Bennett, Atlanta's own, played the game of his career at tackle. Once he smashed through the light infantry of the Tennessee defense and moved for a 10-yard gain, but the horses that shipped to you was decided enigma to the Judge James P. Ross has rendered the most efficient service in his capacity that has ever been afforded by an official in the racing stand at the local track.

The racing offered was of the highest class and apparently pleased the crowds each afternoon. It is very probable that the running program will be repeated at the fair next year. There was nothing short about the manner in which the navy players were carried out, and every jockey, owner and horse had to toe the mark under the strenuous administration of Judge Ross.

ROCKMINISTER WINS STAKES

Latonia, Ky., October 21.—The west triumphed over the east when Rockminister won the Latonia championship stakes worth $35,000 over a distance of a mile and three-quarters, at Latonia today. Lucky Hour was second and Surf Rider third.

The race was run in record time for this classic, it being 1.15 seconds better than the time of Cleopatra which was the winner in 1920.

Lucky Hour set the early pace and was one length ahead of Rockminister at the mile and a half post with Bunting third three lengths back.

Surfing into the stretch Rockminister forced the Luck out and won by a length from Lucky Hour. Surf Rider came fast down to the wire to capture third money.

Rockminister is owned by Monfort Jones, and was coupled in the betting with Surf Rider. The betting on the Jones' entry was $14.60, $5.20 and $4.50.

BAYLOR DEFEATS ARKANSAS, 60-13

Waco, Texas, October 21.—Apparently humiliated by the fact that their goal had been crossed for the first time this season by Arkansas University hardly before the game had well begun, Baylor university came back with vengeance today and sent the razorback home defeated by the score of 60 to 13. In previous games Baylor, like most of the game Red Barron came near getting away with several snap-hangs just over the center of the line, but the consistent alertness of the navy's secondaries thwarted all his efforts.

The game was a record affair in one respect, at least. There was not a single penalty imposed on either side. BY EARL WATSON, JR.

Athens, Ga., October 21.—(Special.)—The fighting Volunteers of Tennessee left Sanford field today with the Red and Black of Georgia floating in dubious glory by the count of 7 to 3, after the most intensified offensive efforts of the Bulldogs had been thrown back by the amazing strength of one of the lightest line ever to appear here.

Against that bantam but battling line the Bulldogs launched every manner of attack that weeks of drill by the coaches had taught the with only the result of a 10-yard gain.

Legacy won the first race after flattening the barrier, holding his lead all the way and showing a clear pair of heels to Alf Vezina who lead Douglass Fairbanks by a nose.

His punting, too, averaged right near 40 yards. To the credit of Georgia came out of the fray a moral winner. Any club in the country, not barring Centre's far-famed crew or the week's triumphant eleven, would have considered it a well-earned margin to have faced the spirits of East Tennessee today:

FOOTBALL'S SYSTEMS OF ATTACK BECOMING UNIFORM

Intersectional Battles Played Important Part In Effecting Changes

East Learned About Forward Passing From West and Southern Teams Showed Rest Of World the Way in Shift Plays.

BY WALTER CAMP.

New York, October 21.—A great deal of discussion is taking place and has taken place as to the major points of difference in football as played in the four sections—east, middle west, Pacific coast and south. As a matter of fact, there are certain points of divergence but not nearly as marked as they were several years ago.

In the first place, the east is, as a rule, strongly conservative and when the forward pass first came in they did not take the big chances with it that were essayed in the middle west and in the section lying between the coast and the middle west. That section also experimented very largely with extraordinary formations, such as "spread-eagle" plays and the starting of the attack both in extended order and in separated groups.

Some of these "spread-eagle" plays were also used in the state of Pennsylvania quite extensively, and with veteran material did seem to be extremely impressive for a time. The Pacific coast did more towards strategic sudden lining up, such as the so-called "dead man" play. This after all was a development of trials used sporadically in the four sections since that time, but the Pacific coast and the northwest carried them out with much greater precision of detail and led up to them in certain positions on the field.

Open Style Favored.

The middle west experimented far more rapidly and largely with the forward pass in all its forms than did the east, and there was a time for two or three seasons when their men were exceptionally facile, not only in making the pass but particularly in receiving it.

The south, owing somewhat to the influence of Heisman of Georgia Tech, developed more largely along the line of shift plays, although Minnesota, under Williams, also made much of them.

Intersectional contests have introduced the developments of one section to another very freely in the last few years, with the result that the game in all sections takes on a greater similarity, and it is much more difficult to state absolutely that one section is ahead or behind another in any particular development.

The following features do, however, stand out. Notre Dame last year carried the timing of plays, both shifts and forward passes, to a greater height of perfection probably than any team in the country. Georgia Tech had a stronger and more united shift in which the linemen took part. And Penn State, with Killings, had the quickest sharp backfield shifts.

Chicago demonstrated to Princeton the mystifying effect of changing formations, sometimes merely as a blind, at other times massing their interference.

Deceptive Plays.

Harvard, in the attack by which it won, showed one of the most deceptive of plays in which the position and the point of attack change after the kick is snapped. Iowa combined the kick, forward pass and run, with excellent precision. Centre, with which it had large chances in individual plays, had learned through contact with Harvard the year before to build up a defensive line at the same time. Lafayette and Washington and Jefferson showed the advantage of tremendous power in line play.

Altogether as the situation stands, the big eastern teams are likely to strike harder through the middle of the year, to demand more precision against line play, while the other sections are much stronger, not necessarily in the mere execution of the forward pass, but in the masking of the man who is to receive it, either by sending him in one direction, and then having him cut in and turn to receive the pass, or by sending one man ahead and delaying another man and even following the pass with this third man.

Make Fewer Plays.

It is also the strong impression of the writer gathered from watching the teams that as a rule the big teams of the east make fewer plays or tend to play rather more slowly than the western teams. They are also rather more conservative in the use of plays according to zones, and the use of plays for defensive weapon.

Double-swepted teams, as illustrated by the Navy when he was there, by his record out on the coast, and his late work with Cornell, showed the backs getting up to the line more rapidly and hence needing smaller openings, but that has not been seen as Dobie has been able to do it with eastern teams as well as with western teams. On the whole, intersectional contests have improved the game quite markedly by this interchange of methods.

Hanover, N. H., October 21.—A new wrinkle has been introduced into the Dartmouth spring baseball team's trip with the inclusion of the vacation series with Penn in Atlanta, Ga., 1,000 miles from the home grounds of both the Red and Blue and Dartmouth. The Green also will meet the Navy, Columbia, the University of Georgia and Georgia Tech, the last two in a brace of contests each.

J. T. Gilman, '05, of Boston, Mass., has been elected president of J. T. Garrison, '00, of New York City, as president of the Dartmouth Athletic council for the coming year.

A new ruling in the award of track letters will allow athletes to gain their track "D" by winning either a first or second place in one of the dual meets of the year. Hitherto only a first place was an automatic. The action was made retroactive, giving Shem and Stearns, who won second places in the dual meet with Penn here last year, their track letters.

Twenty-five members of the sophomore class have been elected to compete for positions as managers of Dartmouth teams. Fifteen men will be awarded assistant manager positions next spring and will automatically become managers of their respective sports during their senior year.

The addition of several former Dartmouth athletes has brought the personnel of the required recreation and athletic corps of instructors up to a total of 13. Earl Thompson, world's champion hurdler; Ralph Ballou, for three years, and Gibson McDermott, football and basket ball player, are among the new members of the staff.

Two special trains have been chartered to carry the Dartmouth student body to Boston on October 27, the day prior to the Harvard contest in Cambridge. Another special train will be secured for students following the team to New York for the Cornell battle two weeks following.

Among the 13 representatives from this country at the international meet, she helped the United States to come out second in points made, behind France, which had a record of 100 points.

SPORTING EDITOR'S COLUMN

BY CLIFF WHEATLEY.

The first echo from the runners' meeting, which closed yesterday at Lakewood, is "Let's have another!" The plebs doesn't come altogether from the boys who occupied space on the lawn either. Bookie attendance at Lakewood during the meeting was slim enough to please the most exacting of our genial reformers.

Lovers of horses were apparently surprised at the class shown by the numerous bangtails that were sent to the barrier. They need not have been. The purses were big enough to attract any owner that had not already tied up his stable engagements on other tracks. Four hundred dollars isn't swooshed at, not even by the most prosperous of the magnates.

Some of the starts might have been better had a recognized starter been brought to Atlanta, but we learn lots of things through experience and officials of the Southeastern Fair association are entitled to pick up some valuable pointers in this same hard school.

Judge Jimmy Ross' work was just exactly what the experts declared it would be—perfect. He is every inch a gentleman, a close observer of everything that goes on from the time the horses are brought out of their stalls until the field thunders with the roar and as honest as the day is long.

That Atlanta citizens need but to know a sporting event is above board to give their support to it was displayed in the rise of attendance figures as the meeting wore on. On the first day spectators were as scarce as the stars in the sky. Congressman Gump's wife and daughter, as a spinner at the weekly meeting of her sewing circle.

Compare that gathering to the mob that hurled "They're off" across the lake as the thoroughbreds started their dashes yesterday. It's like entering a wiener against filet mignon in a money-spending bout. Atlanta went through its running race revival in fine fashion. It's always nice to see old friends meet again.

PLENTY OF BUSINESS.

Ran across one of the members of the American Legion's boxing board yesterday and discovered that Atlanta is going to have a very good year in the matter of fist-fighting, despite the fact that J. Walk Miller and one or two of his fighters have turned themselves into a road company and are gunning for business in other sectors on the line.

There is the affair the latter part of this month between Battling Bill, the Navy's favorite, and one of the easterners' most prominent. A recent setback at the hands of Sailor Friedman hasn't dented Miller's faith in the belief that the Battler is destined for big time.

J. Walk and John J. Optimism have been partners for years. Anybody pitted against one of the leading lightweights, would put a paying crowd at the Auditorium and it probably wouldn't be a bad idea to bring the top-notchers down as soon as possible.

DO HUNCHES PAY OFF?

Tom Wilson, Kiltie Maiden's assistant at East Lake, was a devout follower of the cult rabbit's foot. He was until the other day, Friday to be exact. Tom discovered that thoroughly rung ones are not interestingly interested in this sort of stuff. The result is that Tom is going stick to golf, leaving the horses to Billy Lotz, Bill Stickney and other of the real experts.

Coming to town on the street car Friday Tom's mind strayed off golf for an instant, and turned to moving pictures mainly because two sweet young things that seat directly behind him had been vamped by cinema celebrities. One was a Madeline Valentino, "simple adorable," but the other flapper talked loudest and won her, with her entry, Douglas Fairbanks, in the argument over which carried home the largest pay envelope every Saturday night.

Tom enjoyed the show immensely and chuckled now and then over some remarks he had heard until he reached the lawn at Lakewood. Tom then took off off the laughing gas. This was serious business.

"Douglas Fairbanks" was one of the entries in the first race. It was too good to be true and Tom's hand just naturally went toward his pocketbook. He now wishes that he'd suffered some mild form of temporary paralysis. He waited until 6 o'clock "Dough" to come under the wire, then he borrowed carfare from press box hangers-on and threw away his faith in hunches.

LOOKING AHEAD.

Baseball writers are not highly excited over this trip to the Orient being made by certain big league ball players, except that some new terms will probably be stolen from the nations responsible for curiously named inns and impossible laundry marks. He soaks and apple on the nose and wended his way over the world, and it is one of the favorites that may be replaced by something even more confusing from the Far East. It is hard to think of losing such a tried friend and true, however.

Sparks Wins Second in Swim Meet at Y.M.C.A., And Is Elected to Head Aquatic Committee

J. C. Dusenbury and D. Sparks receiving medals for championship records in the recent 2,000-point contest of Y. M. C. A. I. C. Matheny, physical director, is congratulating them.

BY TOM HUFF.

The recent meeting of the aquatic committee of the Central Y. M. C. A. decided that a 5,000 point contest ought to be the next activity of the swimming circles of the Y. M. C. A. So, too, in the near future a swimming meet will be started with 5,000 points as the goal, including every possible individual aquatic stunt.

During the recent activities of the swimming groups it was decided to put a swimming team in the field to meet all comers. The results of the 2,000-point contest proved that the Y. M. C. A. has some of the best stars in the south, and the Y. M. C. A. swimming committee wants to prove that to everybody.

Sport will not be the only object of the committee, says Sparks, for a swimming teachers' or leaders' class will be elected from the Swimming club. Also, a life saving team will come from this same group.

Final dates will be announced at the next meeting of the committee.

"Pup" Phillips Signed to Coach

Draughon's Basketball Machine

Mighty Team of Past Two Seasons Will Go Into Approaching Campaign

Minus Stars.

BY LENORA ANDERSON.

Ran across one of the members of the American Legion's boxing board yesterday and discovered that Atlanta is going to have a very good year in the matter of fist-fighting, despite the fact that J. Walk Miller and one or two of his fighters have turned themselves into a road company and are gunning for business in other sectors on the line.

Year before last the team was especially noted as being about the best of its kind in the city. Last year Draughon's records was good—but not so good as it might have been. And this year, with Mr. Phillips as coach, they expect to have a team second to none.

Thirty girls have signed up for basketball and from that number will be picked two teams, one to fight the out-of-town colleges and one to battle with the local high schools. Draughon's team has never gone for local games before.

Played Colleges.

"Our team have been so good that high school have been afraid to play us," said Mr. Harrison, assistant principal of the college. "We have had many players from Fulton who have had the benefit of school's training in basketball, and quite naturally the new players at Fulton would hesitate to line up against such a team. It was the same way with the other schools. We had to take out of our own town, but short with little or no gain. The ball changed hands quite often, the team either being held for down, passes intercepted or forced to turn.

Forward passes were used by both sides considerably, many of the efforts successful. Carrollton resorted almost entirely to passes during the final quarter, most of which were accurate, but not short with little or no gain. The ball changed hands quite often, the team either being held for down, passes intercepted or forced to turn.

In the beginning of play Carrollton received and was plowing through Carrollton to what looked like a touch-down. However, Carrollton got the ball under his own goals and in turn down the field. Carrollton scored a touchdown against Quarterback Stacey.

Reese ran first blood, scoring a field goal from the toe of Quarterback Stacey within four minutes after the game opened. The team was short-handed, however. Reese buckled over for Vandy's first touchdown shortly after the second kick-off. Texas fumble paved the way for this score. Wakefield kicked goal.

Reese ran Vandy's total to 13 when he made a 45-yard broken field run for their second touchdown. The try at goal failed. Texas' first and only touchdown came early in the second period, when Culp bucked over for a 10-yard gain by Marley and a penalty against Vanderbilt ball in scoring position. Robertson subbed for Edward, kicked goal and Texas won.

In the first period Vandy completed its first pass of the game, Neely to Bomar, and was good for a gain of 50 yards.

With the ball on its five-yard line, Texas fought desperately to prevent a score, but the irresistible Reese evaded all tacklers and chalked up his third touchdown. Wakefield kicked goal.

A. A. C. EXPECTING ITS GREATEST BASKETBALL TEAM

Adds Pep to Bean's Gang;
Westmoreland, Scott Lost

Clifton, All-prep Center of Last Season,
Joins Team—Howard Jackson, Sunday School League Star, Out For Place.

BY LOY WARWICK, JR.—With a promising outlook and a very strong list of candidates and regular men the Atlanta Athletic club staged its initial practice for basketball recently. With the exception of Westmoreland and Scott the entire last year's squad was back on the floor in wonderful shape.

According to Coach Joe Bean a number of new men will be added to the lineup this year and as a result, a younger and "peppier" team will represent the club. With this insertion of fresh material they should be fully able to take care of the difficult schedule that is confronting them.

M. L. Clifton, who starred in prep circles last year making all-prep center and conceded to be one of the fastest and best floor-coverers around the country, is one of the additions. Clifton was with Tech High last year.

The other new name is Howard Jackson, who comes from the Sunday school league. He starred with the Central Baptists last season.

In Fine Shape. . . .

The men returned from the old team are in fine form and handle themselves with the sureness and accuracy that can only be done by men who have been through the basketball mill. Some of these fellows have been playing basketball for years and have represented many a team of the A. A. C.

Take Rufus Bass for instance. He is recognized as one of the best men that ever played the game. Despite his playing, he gets credit upon credit but he plays his game in such a manner as to help the whole squad. He fits in just right and when he picks a chance to shoot, he usually rings one. Rufus is a sure-shot and has the fine art of getting and staying away from his man down to perfection. And fast! He's a regular speed demon.

Steve Hartney is back and will assume his regular job at guard. Steve can stick with his man. Don Bass is away from his Hartney. Hartney is another one of those men who have been through the mill. You can't make a basketball player in a season, but they have been made by continuous working. When you look Steve Hartney over you see a finished product.

Louis Morrison warrants special mention as a center. He starred along with the rest of the club last year and is considered well educated in the art of basketball. Morrison is a wonderful man on covering the floor and edging in difficult shots. Last year he scored the tip-off nine times out of ten.

Graves Is Back.

Johnny Graves is back and is doing his stuff at guard again. Graves is just about the smallest man on the team but is fast and sticks like poor relatives.

Scappy Sullivan is another back on the list. Sullivan is one of those crack guards and can be written down along with the rest of those who know basketball from A to Z.

A forward of exceptional ability is Jim Lowry. He's in fine shape. His conditioning, and is expected to do a lot toward making a success of the team.

Gilbert Frasier is an old Tech star and is one rare center. He is capable of taking care of his end of the game with ease.

Taking the squad as a whole it is about the best that the Athletic club has ever boasted. Coach Bean thinks that with steady practice they will develop a team that will be capable of taking care of any of their opponents.

Expect Hard Schedule.

The way it looks from the schedule they are contemplating on taking a very big bite of basketball, but we can chew it from Joe Bean that they can chew everything they bite. Its a little early in the season but it looks as if the other teams are a little easier to chew than the picky little opponents, and the charges of Coach Bean are to be much admired for even attempting the schedule they have.

The probable schedule will be about like this: Newberry college, December 10; Baylor college, December 23; Wabash, December 30 (Wabash won the western inter-collegiate championship last year); Georgia Tech, January 5; Camp Benning, January 6; Birmingham Athletic club, January 13; Mercer in Atlanta, January 27 (a team from Mercer in Macon, February 3; Georgia in Atlanta, February 16; Georgia in Athens, February 17; Birmingham A. C. in Birmingham, February 24).

In this schedule you will find some of the strongest basketball squads in the whole country, and yet this A. A. C. bunch isn't worried.

Johnny Graves is back and is doing his stuff at guard again. Graves is just about the smallest man on the team but is fast and sticks like poor relatives.

Scappy Sullivan is another back on the list. Sullivan is one of those crack guards and can be written down along with the rest of those who know basketball from A to Z.

A forward of exceptional ability is Jim Lowry. He's in fine shape. His conditioning, and is expected to do a lot toward making a success of the team.

Gilbert Frasier is an old Tech star and is one rare center. He is capable of taking care of his end of the game with ease.

Taking the squad as a whole it is about the best that the Athletic club has ever boasted. Coach Bean thinks that with steady practice they will develop a team that will be capable of taking care of any of their opponents.

Expect Hard Schedule.

The way it looks from the schedule they are contemplating on taking a very big bite of basketball, but we can chew it from Joe Bean that they can chew everything they bite. Its a little early in the season but it looks as if the other teams are a little easier to chew than the picky little opponents, and the charges of Coach Bean are to be much admired for even attempting the schedule they have.

The probable schedule will be about like this: Newberry college, December 10; Baylor college, December 23; Wabash, December 30 (Wabash won the western inter-collegiate championship last year); Georgia Tech, January 5; Camp Benning, January 6; Birmingham Athletic club, January 13; Mercer in Atlanta, January 27 (a team from Mercer in Macon, February 3; Georgia in Atlanta, February 16; Georgia in Athens, February 17; Birmingham A. C. in Birmingham, February 24).

In this schedule you will find some of the strongest basketball squads in the whole country, and yet this A. A. C. bunch isn't worried.

Louis Morrison warrants special mention as a center. He starred along with the rest of the club last year and is considered well educated in the art of basketball. Morrison is a wonderful man on covering the floor and edging in difficult shots. Last year he scored the tip-off nine times out of ten.

FOUR GOLF TOURNEYS PLANNED BY THE CONSTITUTION

Miss Rainey Wins Singles In G. H. S. Tennis Tourney; Doubles Title Settled

Martha Maddox and Ruth McCullough Succeed in Defeating Miss Beacham and Miss Garret for Doubles Crown.

BY FLORENCE SMITH.
Short and snappy were the finals of the Girls' High tennis tournament, played Friday afternoon at Piedmont park, at which time Rosalind Rainey of the senior class won the singles, and Martha Maddox and Ruth McCullough, of the junior class, won the doubles.

Good sportsmanship, both in winning and losing, and excellent form distinguished this tournament which is one of the most important athletic events of the year at Girls' High.

Sixty-Four.

Each of the girls played such a stiff and hard game that it would have been difficult to pick the winners up above the semi-finals come off but the results of the semi-finals showed that Jane Kiehl, of the sophomores, and Rosalind Rainey, of the seniors, would have to fight for the singles championship and Esther Garrett and Azalee Beacham, of the freshmen and Juniors, for the doubles.

The trophies will be presented later in the year.

BASKETBALL GETS UNDER WAY AT BESSIE TIFT

Forsyth, Ga., October 21.—(Special)—On Saturday last the freshmen at Bessie Tift lost to the varsity in the first basketball game of the season. The score was 18 to 0.

Varsity line-up was as follows:

On Thursday afternoon the organization of the golf club was completed with the following officers: President, Grace Pearman; vice president, Pauline Parker; secretary, Louise Wells; corresponding secretary, Lois Summerall; treasurer, Florence Johnson.

There are about 75 new members and much enthusiasm has been manifested.

Under the direction of Dr. Macon and Mr. Wellborn the club should make much progress.

INTEREST IN GIRLS' CLASS

The Y. W. C. A. class for school girls is practically the first one ever to be organized for the physical upbuilding of girls in the twenty years existence of the Y. W. C. A. in Atlanta. The gym work for them is straight Swedish gymnastics combined with corrective exercises for posture and breathing. Foot exercises are given to remedy the weaknesses developed by high heels and pin-toed shoes. Basketball and other competitive sports are involved in their training.

The business girls and women's class is an organization solely for the girls and women who are kept indoors all day under heavy mental and physical strain. The girls do various body exercises and games that are care-free. Those that have joined the class work hard to regain their strength that was lost in too much work and too little exercise of the right kind. They are always willing to enter into any kind of strenuous exercises that are ordered for them realizing that the way back to good health is being shown them by the instructor.

A recent addition to the class was practically a physical wreck and has enrolled to regain the health that she lost in her fight for a business success. She says that if the rebuilding of her body means business failure she intends to have good health again regardless of cost.

The girls who have joined the classes have realized that soon they will be in broken health and unable to do their work if they continue to spend their nights "double-shuffling" to the mooning of a demented saxaphone or sitting night after night at the movies. These girls are whole heartedly in all sorts of sports during their leisure hours and the girls that put in day after day of hard work are the ones who register as regular as the fall comes around.

Eligibility Rules.

Membership in any Girl Reserve is obtained by the same methods, no mean reputation, tells us that she started playing tennis when she was a little girl, with her father and brother, and that she has been playing ever since.

"I like horseback riding," said Miss Milner, "but tennis suits me down to the ground. I am an outdoor girl anyway. Anything in the nature of sports appeals to me and, as I said, tennis heads the list in my humble opinion."

Miss Milner has been shooting about a year, she said, and is widely known as one of the best in the state. Never having been especially interested in any other sport, she has concentrated on trap shooting with the result that her record is most enviable. Golf, tennis and other popular recreations have never meant much to her.

"I like trap shooting more and more each year," she said, "and am planning a hunting trip with my husband this winter. I am where we haven't decided."

It would seem that friend husband had started something when he started Mrs. Wright on trap shooting.

THEY LOVE SPORTS BECAUSE—

MRS. T. T. WILLIAMS.
A Constitution reporter asked Mrs. T. T. Williams why she has begun playing golf and she said she didn't know. Then she went on and proved that she did know, only she didn't know it.

"I started playing just for the fun of the thing," Mrs. Williams said, "and incidentally to improve my health—but don't put that in because it sounds like an advertisement for a patent medicine."

Mrs. Williams went on to say that she was crazy about the game and that it had done her lots of good. "I am fond of all outdoor sports and golf is my special favorite," she said. "I have been playing for about seven years now and don't intend to stop for many years to come."

We hope she won't.

Hockey Coaches.
Hockey coaches are being sent from England to certain colleges in the United States, and Agnes Scott is one of the last to receive them. October, when Professor Farmer, who has been assigned to this college, will arrive. For this season there has been unusual interest and enthusiasm shown in hockey this fall, and it is hoped that there will be great results from the additional training and instruction received from Professor Farmer, the official representative of the English Girls' Hockey Association.

After the hockey and basketball is taken up, which lasts until spring.

When good weather and long days come again baseball and track come into prominence. There are interclass baseball games for several weeks, leading up to a field day. The champion ship baseball game is played and the trap meet held on this day. Trap, skip-and-jump, badminton, racing, darts, throwing are features of the meet. Tennis is played during the whole year. There are two cups offered, one for doubles and one for singles. Swimming and biking are also year around sports. There are early morning hikes and cross-country hikes which are taken by large numbers of the girls.

MISS VERA MILNER.

BILL STREIT BOOSTS STAR

BY HERMAN D. HANCOCK.

The visit of Bill Streit, of the Birmingham A. C., was a source of no little excitement to the members of the A. A. C. team and Coach Sammthers of the A. A. C. cross country squad. Bill came boasting the mighty Richter, winner of the Birmingham invitation meet last year. He said that Richter was in the pink of condition, and that the other athletic clubs would have to make much better time this year if they were to be in the race. The young, youthful road runner from Birmingham.

Daily workouts are being held and the added stimulus of the prospects of having Richter or Spencer, of Mississippi A. & M., walk off with the meet has made teams take on new life. Coach Sammthers is still looking over Atlanta for possible material.

Atlanta runners will have the first test of their ability when they meet in the second annual Southern A. A. C. road race, which will take place between the halves of the Tech-Auburn game Thanksgiving on Grant field. This run is for the George Adair trophy. All colleges and athletic clubs in Georgia, Alabama, South Carolina and Florida will have teams in the race. There will be more than a hundred entrants.

The second meet will be the B. A. C. invitation. Last year the local team was beaten because of an unusual streak of bad luck. Even Stokes, who had beaten Richter in Atlanta, had an off day and did not score a single point in the runs. Stokes and the other members of the team feel that they have successfully shaken the jinx and are going to bring the Birmingham trophy back to the A. A. C. this season.

EMORY FOOTBALL. Emory football schedules will be continued on the university athletic field at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, when the freshmen and junior-senior teams meet. Immediately following this game will come a game between the sophomores and the theological team.

The solo team, which was winner in last week's encounter with the junior-senior team, drew a bye and will not be in action Monday. The standing of the teams is even, except that the lawyers got away to an early start by winning their last game. The other teams tied in a grueling no score game.

Every loyal Emoryite will be out to support the teams. There is considerable rivalry between the schools this year as in former seasons. Classes are larger and the games are more interesting, as they produce better and more developed ball.

WILLIAMS DEFEATED BY YALE, 38 TO 0

New Haven, Conn., October 21.—Williams, winners here this afternoon, 38 to 0, led Yale, who turned captain, Jordan, who scored two touchdowns before being replaced by Cochran in the second period. Yale showed improvement today. Coach Jones used 25 Eli players.

Only once did Williams threaten the Yale goal, when, in the last period, Mallon succeeded in completing a long pass from the center of the field to Chandler, substitute fullback, who raced to the 8-yard line before being brought down by Hart, a third string Yale right end.

AGGIES MEET DEFEAT BY WAYNESBORO

Waynesboro, Ga., October 21.—(Special)—Waynesboro High defeated the First District Aggies on the local field Friday afternoon by the score of 14 to 12. It was an evenly fought game. Hagan and Wall did the feature work for the aggies. L. E. Hatcher and L. C. Edmonson did the scoring for Waynesboro. The whole team was doing its prettiest work. This is the second time Waynesboro has defeated the Aggies this season but they have a plucky, hard fighting bunch. Hagan and Patterson did the scoring for the Aggies. Waynesboro plays Washington High here next Friday. Washington is said to have one of the best teams in this section of the state.

A. & M. DEFEATS UNIVERSITY, 19-13

Jackson, Miss., October 21.—Mississippi A. & M. football team defeated Mississippi university here in their annual game today 19 to 13 in a hard fought battle. High lights in the game were the ground gains of Barnett for the Aggies and the sensational return of Barbour for Kenosha on October 27. John Wagner will conduct the bout, which will be supported by three other contests yet to be arranged.

Joe Burman, local bantamweight, who will meet Joe King, of the 118-pounders, in New York November 16, is working every day at the Arcade. Joe realizes he has the chance of his career and intends to be in the pink when he goes east.

ATLANTA OVERWHELMED PAINCE COLLEGE, 30-0

The Atlanta university seems to have no limit to the number of victories she adds to her list. She won another one yesterday afternoon by defeating Paine college, 30 to 0.

There were rumors of the strength of the Paine line to the effect that it could not be penetrated, but all such predictions were shattered, for the Crimson and Gray went through that much talked of line with apparent ease.

Paine soon realized that nothing could be done in the way of scoring the Atlanta university from wall and attempted several forward passes, but all to no avail.

Atlanta scored 9 points in the first and 20 in the second. The game was practically a runaway for the Atlanta university throughout.

WINDER HIGH BEATS GAINESVILLE, 19 TO 0

Winder, Ga., October 21.—(Special)—Winder High defeated Gainesville High in a hard game here this afternoon by the score of 19 to 0. The entire Winder team played good ball and the game for Winder were the end results, half back, J. Robinson, Haze Sanders, half back, and the splendid manner in which "Pee Wee" Robinson directed the team, and also the powerful line backer of Ned Arnold. Winder star fullback, the line men all deserve special mention.

For Gainesville Captain Blackshear, the outstanding star, Porter and Pilgrim also played well. Winder plays Commercial High of Atlanta here next week, and Fulton High the following week.

AND HE FINED him his share of the next riot for not keeping in shape, and after that they had to sleep standing up so all the team went into telephone booths and asked for numbers.

WE REMEMBER when Kid Gleason fought six times because they said that he was a Son. Once and Johnny Ever would have chased in if Johnny had both legs broken and had to walk on his thumbs.

AND NOW look at baseball.

Hug's Retention Way to Stars BY HUGH S. FULL Discordant Element Depart

The retention of Miller Huggins as manager of the New York Yankees is a bigger thing than a vindication of the little manager. It is a declaration of principles and a warning to ball players that, if it places the disgraceful showing of the Yankees in the world's series upon the shoulders of those to whom it belongs—Bob Meusel, Babe Ruth, Scott and some of the others.

It is a warning, not only from Colonel Huston and Colonel Ruppert, but from organized baseball, that they please, retain, to submit to discipline and defining authority, and that men must obey Huggins and give him the best efforts to the team or get out of baseball. There is no room in either major league or in the minors either for players who accept and insist upon exorbitant salaries, and then refuse to give their best efforts to the team.

In the passing of the discordant elements from baseball—and the colonels will be up to the stand they have taken by the entire body of organized baseball.

There is no charge that the Yankees did not do the best they could in the world series. While it looked as if some of them were not trying, they probably were doing the best they could, but they had neglected their affairs, loafed, attended to outside affairs, played the bright lights and ignored discipline too long. Those who wanted to get along, they were. They were all in. We thought that their rightful showing against the Boston Red Sox at the end of the series was merely a let-down after winning the championship, but we were mistaken. The team was all in, and could not play ball.

Just as the owners are commanding to take a firm stand in their efforts to enforce discipline and to demand the payment of worth from the high-salaried stars, along comes Ray Cannon with his union, which means more trouble.

AIMS OF UNION. According to Cannon, who is a successful lawyer, and who used to be a newsboy and a fairly good semi-pro ball player, the object of the union is not to antagonize the owners, but to aid them. However, many of the ball players do not take it in that tone of voice, and some of them are quite willing to their conversation, and want to organize to "demand" their rights.

The right to organize is not questioned. Nor is the idea of union labor involved. The owners ought really to welcome the idea of a players

HOMECOMING FOR GEORGIA

Athens, Ga., October 21.—(Special)

What seems to be the most brilliant week-end in the history of the University of Georgia is that which is being planned for the "Home Coming Day," November 18. It will center around the Georgia-Vanderbilt football game, and the assembling of the students of the various departments of the university, from Atlanta, Macon, Savannah, Augusta and all over Georgia, according to union wage—as the minimum wage is to the level of the median, and the first step in the first year, and the first increase would mean the end of the year.

If any figure the worth of a ball is the manager. It is a declaration of principles and a warning to ball players that, if it places the disgraceful showing of the Yankees in the world's series upon the shoulders of those to whom it belongs—Bob Meusel, Babe Ruth, Scott and some of the others.

A Fashion Show of

Glorious Silks; Rich Velvets and Dazzling Brocaded Metals

Ravishing things that do their share towards making the fashions of 1922 the most elaborate in many a season.

Metals are strongly stressed and strike the dominating note for the evening style of the moment. Metal tissues, plain and gaufre, and vivid metal brocades are much in evidence.

The greatest interest is centered in velvets both for street and evening wear. These are shown in all shades from the rich, autumnal browns to the softest of shell pinks.

The silks most popular are Metalesse effects, "blistered" patterns and crepes of every kind. Besides the favorite browns, blues, grays and black, these are shown in rich paisleys.

Imported Velvet Brocades

Done on grounds of chiffon, georgette and crepe, in turquoise, henna, copen, orchid, jade, American beauty, navy, brown, black. 40 inches wide. Gorgeous things fit for the wardrobe of a princess.

News and Features of the Screen and Drama

CONDUCTED BY L. E. WINCHELL

METROPOLITAN HAS 'SHERLOCK HOLMES'

John Barrymore Is Star of Conan Doyle's Famous Story.

The most fascinating detective story ever written and one of America's foremost dramatic actors are combined in the Metropolitan's feature for this week, Sir A. Conan Doyle's "Sherlock Holmes," being the prime screen attraction, and John Barrymore the star of the piece in the romantic title role. Not since his unforgettable dual role in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" has John Barrymore been given a screen part befitting his great talent until the happy circumstance which placed him in the stellar role of this world-renowned story. For many "Sherlock Holmes" exudes the studious, whimsical, romantic and courageous character that Sir Conan Doyle had in mind when he wrote his famous detective story—and withal he gives a performance that holds the interest till the very fade-out.

In his musical setting for the picture Conductor Reisinger has included some unusually attractive numbers. The most interesting perhaps being "The Man Who Played," composed by Paul Nixon, cellist of Rome, Ga., whose compositions have achieved fame throughout the country. Another is "The Dance of the Demons," from "Prince Ador"; Mendelssohn's "Fingal's Cave"; "Silent Night" from Humperdinck's "Christmas Tree Suite" and many other standard classics.

The presentation-overture promises to be another treat in that several of the orchestra's soloists will again appear in familiar melodies. This time they will be chosen from old highland folk songs, the overture being, "Songs of Scotland." The number opens with a fanfare of brass playing "Bluebells of Scotland" with counter-melody on the chimes played by Frank Verdi, the orchestra's tympanist. "Loch Lomond" will be offered as a trumpet solo and will introduce William B. Scott, the latest addition to the already famous Metropolitan orchestra. Wallace Jackson will again appear as a soloist playing "Bonnie Doon"; and "Annie Laurie" will be interpreted by Mr. Dule, trombonist with the orchestra. Other Scotch songs in the overture will be "Comin' Thru the Rye"; "The Campbells are Coming"; and "Auld Lang Syne."

As a special number Mr. Reisinger will present Josef del Greco, oboe soloist, in a novelty composed for the saxophone by Mr. del Greco and played by him on that instrument.

The latest issue of Kinogram News will complete the bill.

Absent-Mindedness.

From Everybody's Magazine.

A prominent New York lawyer was trying a witness through a hard cross-examination when the subject of absent-mindedness arose.

"What do you think is absent-mindedness?" asked the lawyer.

"Well," replied the witness in a slow, deliberate tone, "if a man who thought he has left his watch at home, took it out of his pocket to see if he had time to go back and get it, I would call him a little absent-minded."

EUGENE O'BRIEN IS FEATURED IN FILM OFFERED AT LOEW'S

making rapid progress and has attained a devoted following. In "John Smith" she gives abundant promise of going far. In this one appearance she proves conclusively that she has more ability to sense a part than is shown by the average motion picture actress.

"John Smith" was written and directed for Selznick by Victor Heerman, and is a story of absorbing interest.

Ellis Butler Signed.

Ellis Parker Butler, the famous humorist, is to take a fling in a new literary field—motion picture advertising. The noted author of "Pigs in Pigs" recently attended a private pre-release showing of Constance Talmadge's new starring vehicle, "East Wests," and became so entranced over it. The result was that he signed a contract with Associated First National to write a series of advertisements to be run in the Saturday Evening Post. He will now attempt to prove not only that "East is West," but that it is splendid entertainment.

Alamo No. 2 Picture Monday and Tuesday To Be "A Man's Home"

"A Man's Home," at Alamo No. 2 Monday and Tuesday, is one good picture. It is peopled with real human beings who act just as real people would have acted in real life. Not one of their acts, not a single one of their thoughts transgresses the laws of logic.

As for the story itself, it not only awakens real warm sympathy for the principal characters, but also grips the attention as few pictures so far produced have gripped it.

The plot has been constructed so well that from the time the picture starts until it ends there is not a single dull moment. It is pure substance—not a foot of padding.

It is a society drama in which the wife of a wealthy man becomes friendly with a pair of crooks, a man and a woman, whom she thinks honest people.

In a fair raid, engineered by them, she is fleeced of a big sum of money.

Her husband telegraphs her to come home, and she invites her friends to go along.

The crook woman, under the wealthy man's roof, comes face to face with the young hero with whom she had had an affair while the young man was in college, to hush up which the young man's father had paid her a large sum of money.

The young hero is about to marry the wealthy man's daughter. The crook woman sees an opportunity to exact from the wealthy man a large sum of money.

The wealthy man, to whom the hero had, before his engagement to the daughter, confessed about the affair, to prevent a scandal tries to buy her off, but the crook is not satisfied with little money.

His daughter's innocence, however, melts the crook woman's heart, and she determines to leave; and when her partner attempts to blackmail the wealthy man's wife, she turns against him.

New Swanson Picture.

Impersonating "Notables of the Headlines" was a popular pastime for a certain group of players at the Lasky studio recently.

Based upon Rudyard Kipling's famous poem, "The Vampire," the screen adaptation has been made with an eye toward writing about present day life. There is a modern note which surpasses the usual method of delivering a dramatic theme.

A Fool There Was.

One of the principal reasons for the success of the William Fox production "A Fool There Was," is the fact that motion picture fans have realized the tremendous advance in cinema making by comparing the new version of the famous drama with the one made years ago. The only similarity is in the title.

A striking realization of the rapid strides in motion picture art is immediately to the spectator in watching the unfolding of the 1922 drama.

Settings, gorgeous and modern, and refined in taste, lighting, direction, gowns and clothes; and the general appearance of the new picture makes the old drama look like a dime novel with a paper cover.

Based upon Rudyard Kipling's famous poem, "The Vampire," the screen adaptation has been made with an eye toward writing about present day life. There is a modern note which surpasses the usual method of delivering a dramatic theme.

If there is anything in this production theory, let us by all means have a high tariff on marks.

THE HOWARD THEATER HAS 'BURNING SANDS'

Story of the Desert, Featuring Wanda Hawley and Milton Sills.

The big George Melford Paramount production of "Burning Sands," playing at the Howard theater all week, is packed with dramatic punch and scenes.

Soft nights on the desert, the gay life of Cairo, dark skins and white, love and intrigue, mingle in "Burning Sands," featuring Wanda Hawley and Milton Sills. A desert story which treats the native Arabs as human beings, and which is tremendous, appealing, and dramatic in "Burning Sands," a George Melford production of Arthur Weigall's successful novel adapted by Olga Printzlau, and Waldemar Young. This Paramount picture has as its central character, Daniel Lane, a student and philosopher who lives among the Arabs and who by his insight and sympathy, leads to freedom those at the ordinary man never does, and finds in them much to admire. Lane is a splendid character, sympathetically portrayed by Milton Sills. The other featured part, that of Muriel, was allotted to Miss Hawley. Muriel is the present-day type of pleasure-loving, materialistic young woman who refers to herself as "emancipated," but who is really a slave to her whims and desires. She is an English girl, the daughter of Lord Blair, his majesty's "chief commissioner" to Egypt and the Sudan. Muriel, petted and spoiled, accustomed to admiration and flattery from every man, meets Lane, and out of the encounter of these contrasting characters grows the drama.

In connection with the feature picture, "Burning Sands," Enrico Leide has arranged a unique prologue which is called "Desertland," presenting Rely Eakin, soprano, and the Howard chorus, in a new version of "Where My Caravan Has Rested." This is an Enrico Leide production.

The Howard orchestra with Enrico Leide and Lloyd Bemus conducting, will render the overture, "Sounds From the Orient," a fantasy by Enrico Leide.

Unusual Picture.

"Forsaking All Others," a picture soon to be released by Universal, is unusual in the fact that it has no villain. There isn't anyone in it who can properly be termed a "heavy" villain in "movie parlance"—although the two character roles, played by June Belvidere and David Torrance, are both as "heavy" by giving the action through mistake and mutual interference. The romantic leading roles are played by Colleen Moore and Cullen Landis. It is said that very fine portrayals are given by all four of the chief players.

"Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" is the title of the farce which will be presented by the popular Forsyth Players this week. While the humor is exceedingly broad at times, the play has many situations in it that are exquisitely funny.

Reginald Irving is a young husband whose wife apparently loves him and idolizes him solely because she believes absolutely in his lurid past, and even more lurid present. She is convinced, for example, that Reggie has had a million love affairs and is engaged every moment in planning others. Reggie, on the other hand, has about as little worldly wisdom as could be found outside of an old woman's home. Nevertheless, he loves his wife and realizes the source of his attraction for her tries manfully to live up to his unsavory reputation, even to the extent of writing love letters to himself and signing them "Toodles." Reggie's attempt to protect himself is about to be discovered by a handwriting expert, engaged by his wife, when his best friend contrives a plot so that Mrs. Irving shall catch her husband with another woman. The woman whom the friend selects is a former chorus girl and at present writer on the society scandal sheet, "Social Gossip." Reggie, after much objections, agrees to go to a hotel and represent as Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, with another woman. From here the plot thickens with complications. A mistake identity occurs and Reggie finds himself in the hotel engaged for Mr. and Mrs. Smith, with three different women, two of them, friends of his wife. He is discovered all right by his wife, and also by the husband of one of the women, and from then on, oh boy! can you imagine what happens to Reggie?

In "Java Head," George Melford's latest French bathing suits. Wide-true Joyce, who had a conspicuous part in "Manslaughter," will play the part of Taou Yuen, the Chinese wife. This will be her first experience in a character part.

William H. Powell, who plays Duke in "Java Head," has been added to the cast of Elsie Ferguson's latest Paramount picture, "Outcast."

Reid Stops Fire.

Wallace Reid proved recently that the coolness and presence of mind he exhibits on the screen, are genuine, when he extinguished a blazing automobile which began to burn during a scene for "Clarence," William deMille's new Paramount production.

The insulation on the big machine which is used by Reid in the picture burned away and suddenly the engine burst into flame. Wally sprang down and with handfuls of sand and the extinguisher succeeded in quelling the blaze before it had done much damage.

The scene doesn't appear on the screen.

Among others in the cast of "Clarence" are Agnes Ayres, May McAvoy, Kathryn Williams.

Recent Funmaker of Ziegfeld's Follies to Present "The Laugh Factory."

ers as Lew Fields and Nora Bayes and has only recently been with the Ziegfeld Follies. His act, called "The Laugh Factory," promises to be one of the biggest in Atlanta this season.

On the same bill will be Peggie Carthart, concert violinist, former soloist with the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra; Ryan, Water Dancer; Linger, danced fun makers; Herbert Ashley, whose six-foot is every inch a laugh, and Tony & George in a unique acrobatic act.

Elkins, Fay & Elkins headline the last half. They have an act that is a melange of melody, mirth, and syncopation. With them are Cook & Revere; Earl Foster and Ethel Rae in a clever and laugh making playlet from the pen of Wilbur Mack; Grace Ayer and Brother in a beautiful skating act, and Don Valero and company, sensational Italian wire dancers.

This promises to be a big week at the Lyric with two excellent bills supporting headliners that have played on all the big time in America, one of which has just closed a successful European tour.

Willie Solar is the headliner for the first half of the week. He has just completed a tour of England and its provinces and France. He was formerly with such eminent funmakers.

LOEW'S GRAND OFFERS BIG MUSICAL FEATURE

Seven Versatile Artists Offer Songs and Dances of Old South.

Notwithstanding the excellent programs seen last week at Loew's Grand theater the offerings for the coming week promise to be equally as good in every respect. Two bills of five acts are divided between the first and last halves of the week, the change program taking effect on Thursday.

Vaudeville entertainers who have won fame in their chosen calling will offer a most pleasing variety of acts, music and comedy predominating.

As the topliner for the show for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the delightful vaudeville success "At the Peacock" has been booked. A company of seven girls are present in this clever musical revue of southern days before the war. Five of the troupe are pretty girls who will charm with handsome costumes and singing and dancing numbers. The atmosphere of the offering is carried out with elaborate scenic sets and the appearance in the cast of two old-time dark characters. Songs, comedy, dances and violin selections make up a pleasing twenty minutes of entertainment.

On the same bill are the two clever comedians Fox and Britt. Their sketch "Fishing for Fun" has been created for laughing purposes only and accomplishes its end from the very first appearance on the stage of these two. They are comical. Their jokes and songs are bright and new and should make them extremely popular with audiences at Loew's.

Hazel Haslam and Adin Wilson in "Samson and Delilah" have a unique playlet. It is a novelty and has comedy lines somewhat different from those usually found in vaudeville skits.

Roy and Helen Walzer will offer "Just Kids," a comedy skit with songs and dances and one of the best acts on the program is presented by Roy and Helmer, two of America's foremost gymnasts called "A Physical Marvels."

The feature of the long screen bill is Eugene O'Brien in his latest hit, "John Smith." The story is blithely human and full of gripping dramatic situations. The cast is "hand picked" including such favorites as Mary Astor, George Fawcett, William Ferguson, Vivian Owen, and the director, Victor Heerman, who also wrote the story. He is a producer of rare skill and feeling for what is best.

Miss Lee Smith Is New Engenue At the Forsyth

Those who attend the Forsyth theater this week will find a new engenue in the cast of "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" as presented by the Forsyth Players, in the person of Miss Lee Smith. This charming young lady comes from Savannah, where she has been the leading lady for the past five weeks. Previous to that she was leading lady in stock at Wilmington, Dela. Miss Lee has been on the stage for five years playing with the Broadway companies in "Listen Lester" and George Cohan's "Royal Vagabond," and also the Chicago production of "Oh Boy."

Miss Lee made her debut in stock two years ago on Staten Island, New York, under Walter S. Baldwin and this is the first time since then that she has been in his company. She has blue eyes, auburn hair and weighs 108 pounds. She is one of the most attractive of Forsyth's engenues and will make her first appearance Monday night in the role of "Nita" in "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath."

In general people's mental activity varies from season to season in the same way as physical activity, but there is an interesting difference in one respect. In the latitude of New York, for example, people do the best thinking about the end of November or beginning of December, that is, a month or six weeks after their physical strength is greatest. In the spring, on the contrary, the best mental work is done in March, a month or two before the physical strength reaches the maximum. This means that people's minds are most stimulated in weather somewhat cooler than that which most stimulates their bodies.—From "Principles of Human Geography."

On the Other Side of the Bridge. By Gertrude Capen Whitney, the author of "I Choose and Yet Speaketh He," which will be accorded the special treatment by her and friends and readers who have found her work both full of enjoyment and inspiration.

"On the Other Side of the Bridge" is the story of a young woman, who, faced with disaster, moves to the east side of New York—"The Other Side of the Bridge"—but who, nevertheless, has will and belief enough to conquer all obstacles.

The story concerns her and her mother's adventures with new neighbors and unusual surroundings.

Of course there is a pretty love story woven into the plot, but the real interest of the story lies in its fine spirit of inspiration and achievement.

The theme of this charming little book is given by the author herself in her dedication. She dedicates it to "those whose spirit, ranging on both sides of the bridge of society, and of life, concentrates the power and the glory of its essence in the little duties of the every day."

Mrs. Whitney is well-known in the south, having lived for many years in the little city of Augusta, where she has a wide circle of friends. Her summer home is in Maine, and in this attractive place she has written many of the beautiful inspirational thoughts that have been woven into her lovely stories of real life and work. The Four Seas Company, Boston.

NEW FICTION.

Picking Up Women With Major Miles. By L. H. Yates, author of "The Autobiography of a Race Horse." "As long as a fellow puts his brains to workin' he has a gamblin' chance in any company," says Major Miles, the hero of this story.

George Horace Lorimer says, "All good Kentuckians," and some who were not so good, knew Major Miles, who lived, moved and made his bed in the period between the passing of the gold millionaires of '49 and the advent of the steel magnates of 1901.

The major had a code—and while the major is getting to be an old man he has not forgotten the blue grass belles and the Kentucky horse racers. (Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.)

LONESOME TOWN.

By Ethel and James Dorrance, authors of "Old Town." The Range," and several other splendidly written western stories. It is a story from Montana to New York but this true westerner, who has just made his fortune in the oil fields, thought it was "just down the line." It was the place where the rich gathered, the place to spend money, the place to find life, but life did not recognize him and in a city of millions he found the meaning of "a stranger."

"It's Lonesome Town—Lonesome Town on the Subway."

But a romance is a romance whether in the Golden West or in the great metropolis of the north, and both love and adventure were not far away when Peter Stansbury Paper, of Hellroaring Valley, Montana, was at his lonesomeness. (The Macaulay company, New York.)

Cappy Rich.

By Peter B. Kyne, author of "Kindred of the Dust." Cappy, your old friend appears upon the scene in some of the most thrilling experiences of his whole life. This book is one that will be read many times by many people. (Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, New York.)

Her Unwelcome Husband.

By W. L. George, the well-known English writer, whose last book did not receive such a warm welcome in the U. S. A. This time he writes about a different kind of a heroine. Cappy, the hero, is called "the famous English feminist" and he evidently is making a stir as she can be through the stroke of his well-known pen. Mr. George is also a lecturer, having recently made an American tour. (Harper & Bros., New York.)

The Van Room.

By J. C. Smith whose stories have become "best sellers" among the most popular fiction. He writes in a humoristic style that does not fail to reach the heart of his readers. In this story he weaves the same "old story" but with so many personal touches that it presents a 1922 appearance—it is the call of beauty against the call of money. It is a story of the struggle for the possession of a famous painting. "The Van Room." Among those who are active in the chase are June, the girl who is the object of Cappy's affections, and a famous English feminist" and he evidently is making a stir as she can be through the stroke of his well-known pen. Mr. George is also a lecturer, having recently made an American tour. (Harper & Bros., New York.)

THE VEHEMENCE FLAME. By Margaret Deland, author of "The Iron Woman," and several other well written stories which have made her a very popular writer. The subject around which she has woven her new story is an ever-day subject—it is one that is discussed not infrequently but at the popular humor parts. It is a big question, a big theme, and one that will, without exception, we believe, have a few thrills but many heartaches. (Harper & Bros., New York.)

THE FLAMING JEWEL. By Robert W. Chambers. A new adventure novel of the Canadian woods. This is a tale of complete relaxation and the reader well knows that Mr. Chambers never disappoints him. (George H. Doran company, New York.)

THE CAT'S PAW. By Robert W. Chambers. A new adventure novel of the Canadian woods. This is a tale of complete relaxation and the reader well knows that Mr. Chambers never disappoints him. (George H. Doran company, New York.)

THE ALTAR STEPS. By Compton McKenzie, author of many interesting books among them being "Poor Relations," which met with such success—out all of the author's books have been "best sellers." (Doran's Book, New York.)

ONE THING CERTAIN. An American novel of the aristocracy of the soil, by Sophie Kerr. Sometimes ago we received many inquiries as to "Who is Sophie Kerr?" The author of "Painted Meadows" has won success and all her writings are "sellers." (Doran's Book, New York.)

PRIZE STORIES OF 1921. By O. Henry Memorial Award. Chosen by the Society of Arts and Sciences. It is a silver trophy and a memorial for O. Dan Quin of the Navy. By Edward L. Beach, formerly Captain U. S. N. and Commandant Marine Navy Yard, etc. Jackie illustration by Worden Wood.

Dan Quin starts at the bottom of the ladder and makes good. It is an interesting story about navy life. And while it is intended for boys, equally as many men have found it interesting.

Captain Beach is now on the staff at Stanford university—the only professor of American Naval History outside Annapolis. (The MacMillan Co., New York.)

Mitch Miller. By Edgar Lee Masters, is the best story for boys that has been written in "our generation" by any American author. While it is not the story of Tom Sawyer or Huckleberry Finn, it is with interesting and thrilling and all boys will enjoy it. Illustrated by John Sloan. (The MacMillan Company.)

At Hillside High. By Earl Reed Silvers. This is a lively story of a crowd of healthy, well-nourished boys during their high school days. Their work and their play. It is a story of basketball and track, and relates the story of how Ward Jackson fought for the honor of his school and for the cleaning up of its athletics. (Appleton's Pook, New York.)

Dad's Tomorrow. By William Heyliger, author of "High Benton" and "High Benton, Worker," in which all boys are very much interested, and which has placed Mr. Heyliger in the front rank of juvenile writers.

The first announcement is sufficient to cause a thrill: "Two boys with boxing gloves face each other at a vacation camp." It is not one of those friendly bouts that all boys enjoy, but a real, hard-hitting, all-out struggle.

Mary Anderson de Navarro writes from England. "It is a thing of great interest and beauty. I shall wait impatiently to see it on the stage, and Dr. Henry van Dyke says, 'It is fine—splendid story of the American boy and shows their connection with the industrial problem.' RIVAL POLICIES OF TWO BIG FORMER ALLIES UPSETTING WORLD

England and France Must Harmonize Aims To Avert World Chaos

Much to Depend On Brussels Conference, Says Simonds, Who Points Out That Results of Rivalry Between France and Great Britain Have So Far Been Disastrous For Both Nations.

BY FRANK H. SIMONDS.

Washington, October 21.—The armistice of Mudania brings to a close another tense period in contemporary history. It resembles in general the armistice of Riga, which closed the Polish-Russian war of two years ago, and it has the further resemblance that it practically outlines the territorial terms of peace, just as did the former armistice.

Indeed, if one is to look for historical parallels, it would be difficult to find a closer resemblance than that between the Polish and Greek disasters, up to a certain point. The Polish catastrophe was the consequence of an expedition to Klev, which may be compared to the Greek adventure to Angora. The Poles went to Kiev, as the Greeks went to the outskirts of Angora in the hope of reviving an ancient empire, the Poles striving to restore the Poland which existed before the first partition, the Greeks, the Byzantine empire.

Poland in her campaign was backed by the French; that is, French policy looked with approval upon the establishment of a great Poland on the ruins of Russia. Greece had the tacit support of Great Britain and the creation of a strong Hellenic state upon the ruins of the Turkish empire was a thing highly desirable from the British point of view.

Neither Would Accomplish Task.

But on the military side neither Poland nor Greece could accomplish singlehanded the task it undertook. Both armies were overcome in the same fashion and the parallel in all ways runs closely until the Greeks were back upon Smyrna as the Poles were in the last line before Warsaw. Only here there is a difference, the French did support the Poles, sending Wiegand, Marshal Foch's right-hand man, and vast stores of war material. The British on the contrary left the Greeks to their fate.

Freedom of Straits, Remaining Problem.

Had the French acted as the British have, Poland would either have been destroyed, or at best condemned to the narrow limits outlined by the famous Curzon line. Had the British supported the Greeks, Thrace, at least, might have been saved. But the difference lay in the fact that while public sentiment in France supported Poland, British public sentiment demanded peace at substantially any price and further support of the Greeks insured the gravest kind of trouble in all of the Mohammedan lands of Britain from the Nile to the Ganges.

Whatever haggling there may be in the conference which will settle the terms of peace in the Near East now, they will be of relatively minor importance and they will not concern the Greeks. Greece will have to resign the territory east of the Maritsa river and that narrow strip west of the stream and between the Bulgarian line and the city of Adrianople, thus giving up control of the short stretch of the Orient railway which after leaving Bulgarian territory follows the west bank of the Maritsa until it crosses over just north of Demotika.

In addition Greece will at least have to defend her rights to the rest of the west bank of the river right down to the sea. Unless all signs fail a determined effort will be made by the Bulgarians to recover this portion of their territory won in the Turkish war of 1912 and lost in the world war. By the treaty of Neuilly this territory was assigned to Greece, but it was stipulated that Bulgaria should have uninterrupted access to her old port of Dedeagatch on the Aegean, her single port on the open sea.

In the discussions which preceded the treaty of Neuilly, Bulgaria strove earnestly to retain an outlet on the free seas and she was supported by the representatives of the United States and for a time by those of Italy. Italy is certain to support Bulgaria now, and France may if recent reports are to be credited. Great Britain, on the other hand, may be expected to stand behind Greece and it is more than likely that Greece will have the support of Rumania and of Jugo-Slavia, both of which are naturally opposed to any aggrandizement of the nations which virtual moratorium which has been granted Germany will expire and France will be free to act, since Germany cannot pay and has in the meantime violated the terms of that agreement which covers the moratorium; there is no question of the right of France to take military measures.

On the other hand, it is clear that France is less anxious now than ever to have recourse to such methods. On the contrary, she will go to Brussels with a very sweeping program for the reduction of the German reparations figures. She will advocate what the American experts at Paris and ever since have steadily insisted upon, namely the elimination of that portion of the reparations claims which are personal. She will similarly advocate the cancellation of interrelated debts and the deduction of the amount thus gained from the total of reparations.

If the United States were willing to consent to cancel its share of these debts, then the total of German reparations would be reduced enormously; it would be brought down to the point where there would no longer be any warrant anywhere for the argument that Germany cannot pay, but even with the United States standing aiso, the reductions would be very considerable. The Belgian and Italian shares would be eliminated and the French reduced by upwards of $4,000,000,000. Allowing for pensions, which would be similarly eliminated, the French claims would hardly exceed $10,000,000,000, while the British would be under $1,000,000,000.

But in this scheme everything depends upon the British consent. You have the very clear alternative, either British consent to join France in renouncing pensions and to join France similarly in the cancellation of interrelated debts, and the British sacrifice would be very much greater than the French or the French will, in desperation and against their wish, invade Germany and take such profits as they can, with the moral certainty that such a course will bring chaos to Germany and economic paralysis to almost the whole continent of Europe.

Yet hope of statesmanlike action by the British government has been terribly shaken by the Balfour note. This note was a clear indication that the existing cabinet did not dare to propose cancellation of debts as between Britain and her continental allies and therefore fell back upon an attempt to shift the burden of blame from British to American shoulders. If this feeling continues, then it is plain that there will be no British proposal which can meet French needs.

Two Sides To Reparations.

To judge from present indications there should be very little trouble in winding up the present phase of the Near Eastern question. Such trouble as there is will grow out of the safeguarding of the freedom of the straits, but this is, after all, practically impossible. If the Turks are to have both shores of the straits—and they are—then nothing can prevent them from closing the gateway by artillery, if they ever choose to take this step. You may destroy the fortifications and proclaim the neutrality of these shores, but the fact as contrasted with the fiction will lie with the Turkish power, which cannot be questioned.

Herewith we are right back in the situation of the nineteenth century and of the years in the present century before the war. The Turk has become again a factor. He has a strong army, he has political control of the territories on both sides of the straits and what is from the British standpoint even more serious, he has rehabilitated himself in the Mohammedan world. His capacity for trouble in Mesopotamia, Palestine and Syria is unmistakable, his influence in India and in North Africa will be injurious to all Christian countries holding territories there, British, French and Italians equally.

For the moment, however, the real interest centers upon Franco-British relations. The Turkish affair, whatever its eventual outcome, represents a sweeping victory for French diplomacy over British and for Poincaré over Lloyd George. If there are signs that the victory may ultimately prove disastrous for Poincaré, there is no mistaking the accumulating evidence that the whole Turkish fiasco has been terribly expensive for Lloyd George, the more so because it follows closely upon the blunder of the Balfour note and the failure of the pro-Russian policy at Genoa and the Hague.

But in two months France and Britain are to meet in Brussels in a conference which will have far greater immediate importance than that which will in the meantime adjust the eastern troubles. At this conference the old familiar financial question is to come up in what may be the decisive meeting. By the first of the year the two-thirds. Germany cannot pay the present sums and it is folly to ask her. But, on the other hand, there is a sum which Germany can pay and a point beyond which reduction is an injustice to French inhabitants of the devastated areas and to French taxpayers. It is not enough to reduce imports to possible figures, it is just as necessary to reach agreement in the matter of the collection of the possible.

It must be quite clear, however, that if France and Britain cannot agree at the Brussels conference, if we are to have a renewal of the hostilities which have marked all the other conferences for nearly four years, then the hope of reconstruction in Europe goes glimmering. If there is a battle of Brussels as there was a battle of Genoa and of Hythe and of San Remo and of Spa and of Heaven only knows how many other places then we shall come in all human probability to the end of things.

And by this I mean that the European situation is such that the postponement of settlement is the worst possible evil. The existing conditions in Germany and France are such that there must be improvement or collapse within a relatively brief period. The reparations problem hangs like lead about the neck of both countries and despite the gallant efforts of the French and the dishonest but determined evasions of the Germans both countries are sinking.

It is idle to attempt to prophesy and we have had so many critical moments in the last nine years that prophecy seems futile and usually proves foolish. Yet for four years, ever since the armistice, France and Great Britain have been drifting apart and we have had one after another an endless series of disasters and catastrophes which might have been averted or at least limited, had the two nations worked together. It is a mistaken notion that either can get along without the other as the Turkish episode has demonstrated.

In the Polish affair British sympathy was with the Reds and against the Poles, while the French took the other side. There was no authority to restrain the Poles and we narrowly escaped the arrival of the victorious Reds on the eastern frontiers of Germany. In the case of the Greeks there has been no escape. There was at the beginning no French as well as the Italian troops withdrawn and left the British facing the victorious Turkish army, nothing was left for the British but to fight or to consent to those terms which are disclosed in the armistice of Mudania.

This armistice, these terms, moreover, constitute for the British the most humiliating surrender in recent history and they insure for the future endless trouble and turmoil all over the east, where the British empire has enormous and vital interests. I do not believe France will gain anything by this counter-offensive, rather she seems to me bound to lose Syria and to face troubles of her own wherever she has Moslem subjects from Beirut to Casablanca. Yet is it a fact that without French and Italian assistance Turkey could not have triumphed and Britain would have escaped her present disaster.

The British attitude in the matter of German reparations has been mainly responsible for encouraging the Germans to resist all payment and makes it certain that there will be no payment until France and Britain are reunited and ready to act together. The British policy with respect of Germany has been just as expansive for France as French policy with respect of Turkey has been for the British. If you could know what is going on behind the scenes all over the world where British and French policies are fighting each other and blocking all progress, you would be able to appreciate a little of the extent to which the present conditions in the world are due to this rivalry.

France May Not Ratify Treaties.

ments of immediate causes of friction promises to go for nothing because in the French mind British diplomacy triumphed over French and was able to enlist the United States in support of a program which insured British supremacy in the Mediterranean over French and Italian naval strengths combined. The French parliament, so the cables announce and they confirm all I was able to hear in Paris, will not ratify the Washington treaties or will only ratify them after affixing reservations which deprive the naval terms of value, because of the real or imaginary advantages which the documents give the British.

Moreover, our Washington conference, which promised to be useful if not a very far-reaching contribution to the cause of peace, was turned into a beer garden, thanks to the efforts of the rival propagandists and the translation to our shores of the Anglo-French quarrel in Europe.

All of which goes to show that practically nothing can be done in the world in the way of real reconstruction until France and Great Britain can find a common ground for action. Most British statesmen believed in the Paris days that it would be possible to drop the French alliance and replace it by the American and European combination upon the success of which depended the restoration of British prosperity and the ending of the frightful burden of unemployment.

When I came back from Paris last spring, after some weeks devoted to a study of the European situation, I was convinced that Europe was steadily sinking and that supreme disaster was at least in sight. All that has happened since has not alone confirmed that view but obviously quickened the pace toward ruin.

Since the United States is out of the world situation there are just two great powers in the world and each of them, while possessing adequate strength to block the other, lacks sufficient strength to impose its will either upon the other or upon the rest of the world. The British, with infinite skill have endeavored to prove to prove that their policy was right and the French policy wrong and to enlist the support of the world and of the United States in particular for their policy. American opinion, in my judgment, inclines much more to the British than to the French view, but since we will not use force, financial or military to back up British or American world counts for nothing in it does today.

The Brussels conference will represent almost the last chance of reaching a solution in advance of a catastrophe. No solution will be possible if either the British premier or Poincaré undertake to win in the conference a political victory which will assist him on his home front. Nothing can be accomplished if Britain and France face each other as antagonists as has happened in all preceding conferences for three years.

Whatever Americans may think no purely British solution of world problems can possibly prevail, while it is perfectly patent that the French must greatly modify their position—and as I have indicated they are prepared to do.

Now we are to have one more great test, it may easily be the last before a general catastrophe, if it follows the lines of the previous conferences. In a sense every conference in the past 3 years has been the most important since that which made the treaty of Versailles on the morrow of the victory over Germany, but in every way it seems to me the Brussels conference will be the most important since that of Paris.

Hundreds Attracted to S. S. B. Depository Booth at Fair

Among the most interesting booths noted at the Southeastern fair was that of the Southern School Book Depository pictured above. Throngs of visitors from all sections took a great deal of interest in the display of this booth, showing a display of Bonnie-B'air netting.

The Southern School Book Depository has recently taken over the distribution of this hair net in the south and reports a wonderful business already started with the line.

In addition to the Bonnie-B'air, many fine lines of toys, stationery, and holiday goods were displayed in the booth and all aroused great deal of favorable comment from those who saw the display.

Dealer co-operation is one of the policies this company stresses. It spares no pains to secure for its customers the best obtainable in fast-selling merchandise. It goes further in backing the merchant to the limit in stocking help and up-to-the-minute service.

Originally established in Atlanta 22 years ago, the Southern School Book Depository first confined its business to supplying the school systems of the south with text books necessary to their curriculum. It has steadily expanded, however, until now it conducts, in addition to its book business, a stationery business of the most progressive order. There are now branches of the company in Dallas, Texas; Memphis, Tenn., and also in Jacksonville, Fla., and one in Mississippi.

Dealer co-operation is one of the policies this company stresses. It spares no pains to secure for its customers the best obtainable in fast-selling merchandise. It goes further in backing the merchant to the limit in stocking help and up-to-the-minute service.

The Ragan-Malone Co. also says that it was one of the biggest weeks in their history. Unusual demands from the buyers for women's cloths, hats, shoes, and stationery, trade.

J. R. Little of the firm of Daugherty, Little & Redwine Co., was enthusiastic in a conservative way over the large trade enjoyed by his firm. R.

R. Rambo, of the John Silvey company, said that business was exceptionally good and that sweaters and other knit goods were in great demand by the buyers who visited his store.

R. Orr Co. reported unusual activity in the ready-to-wear department, buyers from all over their territory purchased hundreds of dollars worth of men's, suits, cloaks, dresses, coats, while men's and boys' suits and overcoats were sold in countless numbers, every house man being busy and getting orders ready for shipment.

The Sparks Paint and Varnish manufacturers, now being distributed for the southeastern states by the Sparks Paint company.

No doubt you are familiar with the three widely known lines now incorporated under the DuPont oval, which is said to make a paint and varnish line of unequalled quality under one label. The lines represented are as follows: Products manufactured by the old Harrison Bros. & Co. plant at Philadelphia; the Bridgeport Wood Finishing company's stains and fillers and varnish manufactured by the old Chicago Varnish Works.

The Sparks Paint company has made many friends by their courteous attention given to small as well as large orders through their service, prompt delivery. Christmas Card Talk Never in the history of the use of greeting cards has there been such a demand for something different from the stereotyped—as there is this season.

Those who are particular want something that is distinctive and free from "bargain counter characteristics," in other words; they want originality and elegance combined with high-grade material, with greeting that represents an individual expression.

In the specimens which the Stevens Engraving Co. exhibit this season the capable designers and the experienced workmen have co-ordinated the highest interpretation of their arts—and the result shows a wonderful selection of new designs and striking ideas.

A postal card addressed to the J. P. Stevens Engraving Co., Atlanta, Ga., will bring you samples, or their complete display may be inspected at 103 Peachtree street.

New Bridge Course By Atlanta Woman Announced Today

Of great interest to bridge enthusiasts over the entire country comes the announcement today from Mrs. Annie Adair Foster, long considered an authority on bridge in the south, the completion of her new bridge course to be taught by mail.

A clever bridge player herself, Mrs. Foster for the past six years has devoted her entire time to the study of this fascinating and popular game. In Atlanta alone Mrs. Foster has successfully trained over a thousand people the game of bridge. Even as far back as 1904 she was considered an authority on bridge. Her advice is constantly sought both night and day, over long distance to settle differences of opinion that arise in other southern cities. The one solution to all bridge problems has been "Ask Miss Annie—she'll know."

Students In Other Cities.

Mrs. Foster has had her students not only from Georgia but from a great many other cities. These people come all the way to Atlanta just to study her methods of playing bridge, and the requests she has had from various cities to conduct classes would compel her (if she accepted them) to become a regular "traveling man." Declining to forsake her own home, Mrs. Foster has decided upon a way to give her knowledge and bridge experience to the public. She is the author of "Modern Auction Bridge Made Easy," and has taken for her pen name "Adair Foster." This work consists of a series of six booklets which cover every phase of bridge. In this convenient form the seeker of bridge knowledge is not compelled to read through endless pages for concrete information. Beginning with the underlying principles of the game, Mrs. Foster carries one in a most interesting manner to the most complex problems of the game.

As Mrs. Foster said: "If I could only be in several places at once and teach 24 hours a day, I might be able to direct classes in all the cities in which I have received requests. Finding this impossible I have done the next best thing and arranged my classes so that I can direct them through the mail with the same degree of success that I have experienced through personal teaching."

Mrs. Foster has not stopped with the six lessons, but gives her students who study by this method her own personal attention. She will answer by personal letter any questions that confront her students.

In commenting on the increasing popularity of bridge, Mrs. Foster stated: "Up until the present time bridge has been a game of the wealthy class only because of the time and great expense involved in securing intelligent instruction. Today bridge is fast becoming the most popular diversion of all circles. Wherever society gathers a knowledge of bridge is essential. In the best clubs of the country it is a common occurrence to find the card room as popular as the ball room."

Bridge Knowledge Essential.

Whether it is a quiet game at home, or a formal social occasion, the skilled bridge player is always in demand. To be at home with people of culture and refinement, it is essential that one play at least a correct game of bridge.

For the first time in the history of the game has a complete, practical course in lesson form been provided that would enable anyone to become a proficient bridge player in a few weeks. It is no longer necessary for one to suffer constant embarrassment when called on to play bridge, because of a lack of knowledge of the game.

Miss Brantley

Weds Mr. Corkran.

An event of wide interest to a host of friends was the marriage of Miss Anna Pauline Brantley and Henry Lee Corkran, which took place Saturday evening, October 14, at 6:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. E. Following the reception the bride and groom left for a wedding trip to Jacksonville, Fla., and on their return home, will be at home to their friends at 310 Jackson street.

U. D. C. of Georgia To Hold Convention In Decatur This Week

Georgia's most prominent women, the Daughters of the Confederacy, will be the guests of Atlanta's neighbor, Decatur, on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, and the calendar of many Atlanta women is already crowded, therefore, for those three days with the events of the annual convention. The membership of the United Daughters of the Confederacy is a remarkably full roster of the genuine aristocracy of the south, and their program is significant in its listing of the many activities of the order, which is pre-eminently for the guardianship and preservation of the truth of southern history and literature through education, memorials, the compiling of histories and censorship.

The president of the Georgia division is Mrs. Frank Harrold, of Americus, one of the state's most representative women by birth, social force and the charm which is traditional of ideal southern womanhood. She is a sister of Governor-elect Clifford Walker.

The meetings, beginning Tuesday night, will be held at the Methodist church in Decatur. Social features of the convention will be a luncheon at East Lake Country club Wednesday; reception at Agnes Lee chapter house, Decatur, the same evening; a barbecue at Stone Mountain Thursday and a 5 o'clock tea at Agnes Scott college the same afternoon.

Atlanta Chapter To Entertain.

Atlanta chapter will entertain the state officers at luncheon Tuesday at the chapter house.

The Atlanta program of social activity is likewise full, with Mrs. William Healey's tea on Monday the initial event. She will entertain at her home in honor of the prominent women of national position, members of the world service council, Y. W. C. A., who will be the principal speakers at a regional conference, Y. W. C. A., to be held at the Georgian Terrace. Mrs. Edw. M. Townsend and Miss Mabel Cratty, of New York, will be the honor guests.

Mrs. Alfred Davis' luncheon on Tuesday at her home on Peachtree, will honor the same visitors, and on Wednesday the board of directors of the local Y. W. C. A. will entertain for Miss Cratty. Mrs. Townsend and Mrs. Robert E. Speer, of New York, who arrives for the latest part of the conference on Wednesday afternoon, the Georgian Club of 1922, will sponsor a meeting of the young society women of Atlanta, to hear an address by Mrs. Townsend.

An elaborate and beautiful event of Monday evening will be the dinner at "Wingfield," to be given by Mr. and Mrs. John M. Slaton in compliment to Miss Anne Hart and Dr. Murdoch.

On the visit of Miss Louise Wells, of Chicago, national president of the Women's Overseas club, with Mrs. John T. Toler, will be made the occasion for delightful entertainment, beginning with Mrs. Toler's tea on Monday.

Mrs. W. M. Camp will give a large tea on Wednesday in compliment to Miss Mary Wooldridge, whose marriage to Willis Everett, Jr., on November 1 is being anticipated by a number of entertainments for the popular bride-elect.

On Wednesday night the marriage of Miss Anne Hart and Dr. Murdoch, will be solemnized at All Saints' church, and the bridal party will be entertained afterward at the bride's home.

Season Opens At Capital City.

On Thursday, the 20th, the Capital City club will be the scene of an elaborate dinner-dance, the first formal expression of club entertainment since the closing of the roof garden. It will be the opening of what promises to be a gay season at this popular center of society life.

Thursday will be the day, too, when Mrs. William Healey gives her luncheon to the officers of 1922, at the Piedmont Driving club. She has invited their mothers, also, in order that they may have early opportunity to know one another.

On Friday Mrs. J. P. B. Allen will give a bridge-tea in honor of Miss Mary Wooldridge, and on Monday, October 30, Miss Erskine Jarnigan and Miss Hattie Poole will give a luncheon for Miss Wooldridge.

Miss Virginia Pogram will be one of the sponsors for Georgia Tech in the game next Saturday with Notre Dame, the football game to be the important social event of the weekend.

Outstanding events of the week following, as already announced, will be the annual Hallowe'en dinner-dances at the Piedmont Driving club and East Lake Country club.

Dinner-Dance At Capital City.

The formal opening of the ballroom at the Capital City club will be a social event of Thursday evening, and will assemble several hundred guests upon this occasion.

The Pogram Sorenders, a famous orchestra, will furnish the music for dancing, and there will be a number of visitors present.

Among those who have made reservations are Dr. Henry W. McDonald, Hamilton Douglas, Jr., C. J. Johnson, A. P. McCallie, Jack Foster, J. C. Baldwin, Jr., C. J. Powell, Ben Lumpkin, John Smith and Dudley Woodward.

Dinner Parties At Driving Club.

The Piedmont Driving club was the scene of several very lovely parties at the dinner-dance Saturday evening.

The club rooms were effectively decorated by greens in artistic arrangement, and profusion of yellow chrysanthemums.

One of the largest parties was that given by Mr. and Mrs. Marion Smith, who entertained in honor of their five debutante cousins, Miss Martha Boynton, Miss Emily Davis, Miss Emmie Nixon, Miss Sarah Orme and Miss Mary Shedd.

The guests included Miss Pauline Ware, Miss Katherine Haverty, Miss Margaret Morgan, Miss Douglas Paine, Miss Anna Inman Grant, Charles George Weston, William Rawson, Urban Woodberry, on from Burlington, W. M. Tupper, Frank Owens, A. W. Hill, Esmonde Brady, Hugh Inman, Eugene McNeal, J. K. Ottley, Jr., Dick Courts, Rankin Manley, George Weyant, Homer Thompson, Rhodes Haverty, DeSales Harrison and Murray Shedd.

Another charming party included Miss Marlowe Stearns, Miss Grace Goldsmith, Miss Helen Estes, Captain Charles Estes, Captain Horace Smith, and Lieutenant Fondren.

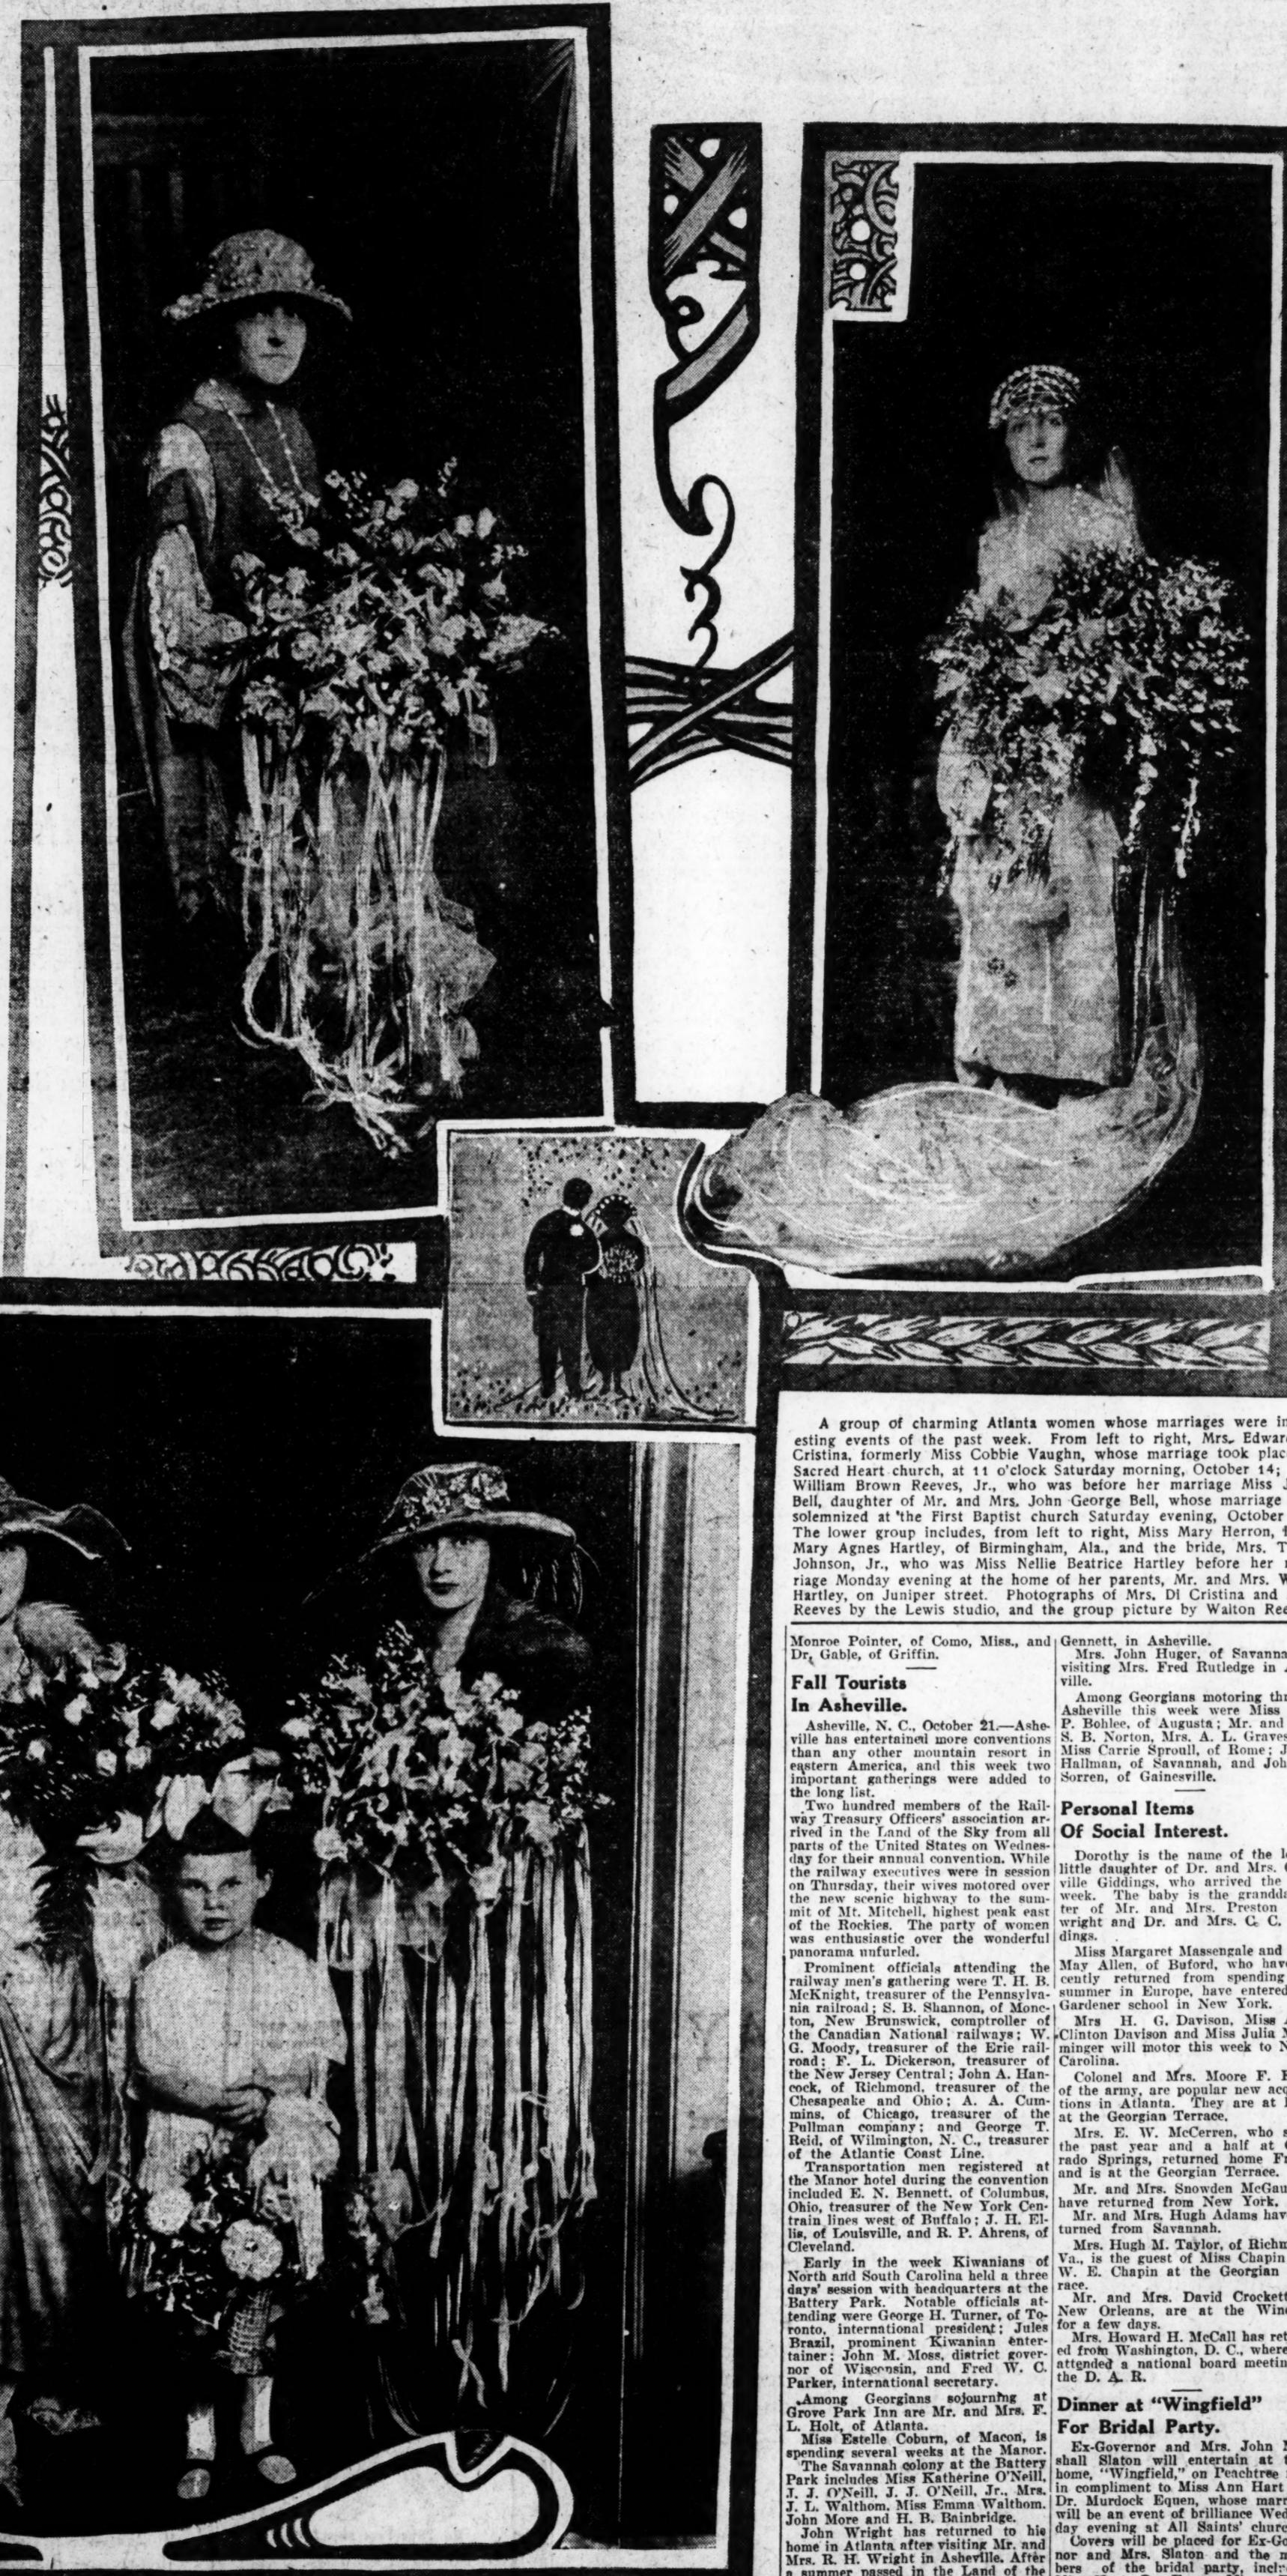

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Jenkins entertained at another delightful party. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Harris Woodward, Dr. J. G. Williams, and Franklyn Farnum.

Miss Wells to Be Feted Guest.

Miss Louise Wells, of Chicago, national president of the Women's Overseas Service League, will arrive today to be the guest of Mrs. John T. Toler, at her home on Piedmont avenue, for a few days.

Miss Wells spent the past week in

The charming Marie Tiffany makes no humdrum visits to Atlanta, surrounding herself with ceremony and the temperamental exclusiveness of the usual artist, seeking publicity through apparent avoidance of it.

On the contrary, Miss Tiffany rather glories in being human, and it was this quality which drew her into pretty incidents which were not down beforehand on her Atlanta program — this planned to be two recitals and a quiet visit with Miss Nan Stephens.

General John J. Pershing came to town while Miss Tiffany was here and she was asked to sing at the impromptu reception for America's most distinguished soldier, following the review at Fort McPherson.

The newspaper photographers saw a good news picture in the general and the prima donna posed together, and neither the general, nor the prima donna seemed averse to such juxtaposition. The general added a graceful incident, however, when he called a group of Atlanta women into the picture: Mrs. T. T. Stevens, Mrs. Charles Rice, Mrs. B. M. Boykin and others. They demurred a moment. "This is just to be you and Miss Tiffany," but the general, who had remembered some of them by name and by the war work they did which he had long since learned about, insisted: "You are not putting yourselves forward," he said. "It was your work that did it."

At noon Friday, Miss Tiffany, with Miss Stephens and a party of Atlanta friends motored to Stone Mountain that Miss Tiffany might try for herself the sounding board value of the granite face of the great rock, of which she had heard much, and about which she had been enthusiastic because of the natural advantage it gave for the placing of an open air theater.

With her back to the rock, she sang "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny," and every note carried to her audience a quarter of a mile away.

St. Louis, which has made such capital of its open air theater, had nothing like the natural advantages of Stone Mountain as the site for an amphitheater, and the larger dramatic forms she desired, and she feels that Atlanta is wasting valuable time and material every day that her citizens fail to develop this unique site for all it is worth.

Poetic Drama In America.

The Drama league will hold the first regular meeting of the season on Tuesday afternoon, promptly at 3:15, at Edenton hall, on West Peachtree street.

This opening meeting will be devoted to poetic drama in America. Five minutes' talks on Richard Hover, Arthur Davison Fiske, and Alfred Krenberg will be made respectively by Mrs. Richard Battle, Malcolm Vaughan, and Mrs. Henry Peebles.

Rev. W. W. Memminger will read Starkey Young's lovely little poetic prose play, "The Twilight Saint," and Mrs. Gainer Turner will read "The Shoes That Danced," by Anna Hempstead Branch. An exquisite little play that deals with the painter Watteau, his pupil, Lancret, and Pierrette, whom both love.

The Drama League Study class will meet this week on Friday morning at 10:30 at Edenton hall, on Peachtree street. Mrs. Boyd will pilot a course in Russian drama, and will read Gogol's "Inspector General," a lusty Russian farce.

Membership in the Drama league requires no election and is open to the public upon payment of two dollars, which sum covers the right to attend all meetings of the study center and the study class, and also includes a subscription to "The Drama" magazine. It is hoped that the membership this year will reach the league's former proportions of 600 or 800, in which case several speakers of distinction will be brought without extra cost. The league has been recognized for ten years as one of the leading cultural elements in Atlanta.

Mrs. Jones Given Delightful Party.

A delightful event of Saturday afternoon was the Halloween party given by Mrs. Willis Jones for her son, Willis, Jr., on his eighth birthday at the home of Mrs. Lena Swift Huntley on Peachtree road.

The house was prettily decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums in white rockers, baskets and grapevine vases. At intervals were large pumpkin heads with Jack-o'-lantern faces cut in them and were lighted by electric lights.

In the dining room the table had a Halloween cover and in the center a large Jack-o'-lantern.

Unusual conveniences were at each place with extra seats and the tables carrying out the Halloween idea.

Mrs. Jones received in a handsome gown of white georgette. She was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Huntley, who wore lavender chiffon.

The guests included a number of little friends of the honor guest.

Mrs. Roger Wilson To Direct Guild.

Try-outs for three new one-act plays to be given by the Little Theatre guild in November will be held at the chamber of commerce hall on Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock, and all members of the guild are invited to come to try for the different parts.

Non-members of the guild who are interested in its work of dramatic expression are invited to come Thursday night, with the privilege of presenting their names for membership, if they desire.

The resignation of Mrs. Dora Jackson, tendered to the governing board at its last session, was read with regret, and the Mrs. Jackson's professional duties prevented her giving the necessary time to the dramatic direction of the guild. This necessitated the immediate appointment of an acting director, and a happy selection for this work was Mrs. Roger Wilson.

Mrs. Wilson is a graduate of the Emerson School of Oratory, and has had a large experience in the work for which the Little Theatre guild stands. It is expected that the guild will ratify Mrs. Wilson's appointment at its next regular meeting, Monday, November 6, in order that rehearsals on the plays may go rapidly forward.

The new charter of the guild, adopted at a recent meeting, allows a full participation by all the members in the work of the guild, and, at least four in number, are to be given through the year and all of the allied arts are exemplified.

Witches' Club Tag Day For Business Girls' Home

On Saturday, October 28, get up on the right side of the bed and go downtown with a Polynesian smile on your face and copious change in your pocket. For Saturday will be "Witches' day," members of the Witches' club, bedecked in gay Haloween costumes, will be on the downtown street corners, from early morning until nightfall, and you will have your chance to give to the limit to one of the most worthy causes that has ever asked the support of Atlantans.

The Witches' club is well-known to the people of the city as the organization that maintains the home for business girls, called the Eliza Manse. Home, on Fair street, a place that many girls from small communities who have come to Atlanta to work have found "the right kind of a place to live."

The home is primarily for girls who have someone at home dependent upon them, and who, therefore, cannot afford to pay much for board and lodging. Of the 30 girls who cross the threshold every evening after the day's work, there are few if any who do not have to share their evenings with members of their family.

But a real home is afforded these girls, even if they do not have to pay much for it. Every evening, after a wholesome meal in a pleasant dining room, the girls can have music or entertain friends in a large sitting room. In the summer time they can enjoy an old-fashioned flower garden with a porch, made inviting by a swing and chairs, potted plants and ferns.

The home is presided over by a kind, motherly woman to whom the girls can go for counsel and guidance. Though the matron's duties are many, she is never too tired to add extra touches and plan little festivities to enliven Thanksgiving, Christmas, and those days when girls wish for home.

"Seven years' ministrations of charitable work in all walks of life have brought the witches many things," said Miss Jimmie Louise Cruse, publicity chairman, Saturday, "and we believe in this home we are doing a valuable service."

"Last year, thanks to the generous donations of Atlantans, we were enabled to pay off the first mortgage on the The Eliza Manse home."

"Now we are faced with a second mortgage on the home that falls due in November, and if we succeed in paying this mortgage it will mean that a home for business girls is owned, the only institution of its kind in the city that is bought and paid for."

"We want to continue the home. To do so the generous aid of the public is needed. Saturday, October 28, will lift that atmosphere and place in our hands that will be in the near future a home for business girls."

Members of the Witches' club who will collect for the home on Witches' day are:

Dr. Thorne Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe university, will speak on his impressions of European conditions as he saw them to the Y. W. C. A. Business Woman's league, at the Y. W. C. A., fourth floor Peachtree arcade, Tuesday night at 7 o'clock. The business women will meet for a dinner, supper at 6:30 o'clock, and Dr. Jacobs will speak at 7 o'clock. Fall Session At North Avenue.

The fall session of the North Avenue Presbyterian school in its new location on Ponce de Leon avenue is well under way. The recently completed building makes it possible again to have the school a unit. Last year, for lack of space it was necessary to keep the elementary and grammar grades in the old quarters at North avenue and Peachtree streets. The reunion of the two schools on a commodious, shady campus and in three adequate buildings is a distinct advantage, both to students and faculty.

The re-consolidated school makes for efficiency in all departments, but especially has one of the newer departments, that of piano and harmony, under the direction of Mrs. Isabelle Shropshire Wall, profited by the new arrangement. Among other improvements, the new organization is of vital importance. It forms a center of school life. It is a hall of splendid proportions, well lighted and ventilated. The fact that it is seldom empty is sufficient evidence of its popularity. Basket ball practice has already started with excellent team material.

Few student activities have called forth more interest than the recent "Sip-Sip" contest in the high school division. The seniors carried off the honors in this competition.

The election of officers for the student organization and of editors on the "Annual" staff was an event of no little significance. Two separate tickets, the gold and the green, were presented by the nominating committee. Two political factions were organized, each with its particular campaign leader and stump speakers. They were arranged properly managed and protected. As a result of the election the gold ticket defeated the green ticket.

Following are the student officers: president, Martha Ridley; vice president, Louise King; treasurer, Mary Ellis, and secretary, Elizabeth Flinn.

At Harris P.-T. A.

The Harris Street P.-T. A. met.

Thursday afternoon with thirty members and several visitors present. An interesting program was rendered by the pupils of Miss Taylor's room.

The business meeting was called and splendid reports from the various committees. A large book entitled "Stories From Shakespeare" was submitted by Miss Boyd as an addition to the library.

Miss Freeman, the trained nurse who examines the East Point school children, gave us an interesting talk on child welfare from the physical standpoint. She illustrated her lecture by charts, emphasizing proper food, fresh air and plenty of sleep for the children. She explained that malnutrition affects the child's health as well as in a general way, and that decayed teeth should be treated or extracted, and diseased tonsils and adenoids should be removed. She told us of Dr. Cross's clinic for tonsillectomy operations conducted in East Point by the newest methods. After this talk Mrs. Losche, chairman of the social committee, took charge and served refreshments.

ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 15, 1922

Floyd Knight's Paintings At Miss Cobb's Studio

Miss Marion Otis, director of the art department of the Carolyn Cobb Community Workers, announces an exhibition of paintings by Floyd S. Knight in Miss Cobb's studio at 502 Grand theater building, Wednesday afternoon, October 25. The pictures may be seen between the hours of 3 and 5 o'clock.

Mr. Knight was born and reared in the mountains of Tennessee and is now living and painting in the mountains of Georgia. To interpret the marvelous beauty of these mountains is the work to which Mr. Knight is consecrating his life. Responding to an inquiry concerning his work, Mr. Knight writes:

"You ask me of my purpose in painting the hills of north Georgia.

"There is a story written large across the far blue hills. It is the story of ten times ten thousand years—years of battle, years of victory, years that have sculptured these hills into altars where each passing day ends in sunset fires, a sacrifice to the living God. They have painted those hills with years of color, which all the artists of all the ages may spend their days upon and never fail to find something new, something fine, something strangely wonderful.

"And there is a story in the sweetness and sternness of the tall chanting pines—a story and a message voiced by snowy cascades and singing brooks. There is rugged romance wild and free in the whisper of the wind over moss-padded boulders, through the gesturing arms of gnarled old oaks—across bare bald mountain tops. There is deep thought in the age-worn cliffs—limestone, and grey, and orange, a cascade of color, mystery and opulence of joyous melody in the illusive lure of violet blue and gold over mist-hung valley and sun-kissed ridge.

"There is legend and story and song—there is history, history of the ages written in epic poetry, written by storm and sunshine across the faces of the mountains.

"To make the world see this—is my object. To interpret the history of the hills—in terms of rock and pine, of cloud and singing brook, in expression of joy and sadness, sweet serenity and majestic silence, of humility that is proud, of beauty that is stern.

"To give some hint, some halting suggestion, some clew which those who will may follow for themselves—this is my hope."

Here Are Roses that Will Bloom from Spring to Fall

Rose plants from Glen Saint Mary are grafted in the field, and are far superior to "own-root" plants. From such plants you will get blooms all the year, unless it be on the coldest days of winter. The root-stocks are hardy, strong-growing and especially adapted to the soil and climatic conditions of the South.

Well-known and well-tried varieties are the only Roses we consider worth growing. Exactly what such Roses mean to you and to your garden is explained in our book, "Southern Planting Facts." If you would like a copy, send your name and address.

Decatur Ready For State Convention

During the coming week, October 24-26, will be held the 28th annual convention of the Georgia division United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Ever since their invitation was accepted last October in Waycross, the Agnes Lee chapter of Decatur has been busily planning for this time. All during the hot summer months when other chapters in the state had been meeting, the hostess chapter for the convention, this year has held regular monthly meetings and the program which was printed last Sunday, gave proof that everything has been planned for the comfort and pleasure of the visitors, and the business of the convention planned to the best advantage by our capable president, Mrs. Harrold.

Early in the week, from every part of the state will come these representative women of Georgia, each one to do her part in making a success of this annual meeting of our great organization.

A Few Convention Reminders.

One credential slip is to be presented to the credential committee, Mrs. W. C. Vereen, Moultrie, chairman, at First Methodist church in Decatur Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The other credential should be mailed to your state president.

Meeting of the executive board will be held on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at First Methodist church.

If it is impossible for a chapter to send a delegate to Decatur do not fail to send your report to Mrs. Oscarde McKenzie, Montezuma, Ga., the recording secretary, at or before the convention.

Chairmen of state committees must hand reports to the secretary typewritten and to the secretary transacted through their departments before adjournment, else such reports will be excluded from the minutes. Let reports be as brief as possible on account of the expense of printing the minutes.

The Georgia pin flags for celebration of Georgia day have been obtained and the chairman will have them at Decatur for sale and delegates are urged to get them while there. They will be 20 cents per dozen or $2.25 per gross. If each chapter will take one gross, the committee will be able to meet the additional expense incurred.

Historical Essay Contest.

The chairman of historical essay contest, Mrs. Lucius Lamar, of Dawson, asks that all chapters who have not notified her of the number of essays entered in the historical essay contest, please let her have this information as soon as they reach Decatur. The Selden banner will be awarded to chapter sending in the most essays under this contest, so it is of the utmost importance that Mrs. Lamar be furnished this data. Unfortunately this request came too late to get in last Sunday's paper, so please every chapter president help in this situation.

The medal offered in the historical essay contest was won by Miss Margaret Meaders, of Dahlonega, this being the second time that she has won it.

An Educated America;

How Bring It About

A distinguished American educator has recently declared that it is possible to make America an educated nation in ten years, and he proposes the methods by which it can be done, and then "puts it up" to America to do it.

in Georgia, which does not hold an admirable position among the states in standards of literacy and scholarship, there is functioning a second machinery for education in addition to and in co-operation with county, and city systems, which, in combination with this government machinery, should easily make it possible, if both sets of machinery are made to operate at the top of their form, to bring Georgia in ten years to the top rank of educated states. This second and co-operating machinery is the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Education for the sake of self culture is a good thing, but education with the motive of the development of the individual for greater usefulness is ideal, and that is the purpose of the educational expert above referred to, as it is of the federated club women.

The Georgia federation has a program of varied activity, and for the sake of system, its work is divided into departments, divisions and committees, each with its own specified part of the work to do. In a convention like the annual meeting in Athens when the work of every section is co-ordinated, it becomes impossible to escape the observation, however, that the trend of federation activity is directly or indirectly always educational.

Always, too, the educational work of the federation looks to better citizenship.

There are four main projects of the federation which are purely and distinctively educational in the sense of schooling. There is the Mary Ann Lipscomb Tallulah Falls school, through which the federation is doing a work for the mountain children of Georgia which has always been excellent, but is now coming into the national limelight, and is to be doubled in its capacity for doing. The work of this school laps very distinctly over on the citizenship program of the federation, state and national, for its aim is distinctly the making of good Americans.

Then there is the student aid foundation, which enables girls through loans to get a college education and make themselves more useful citizens.

Scholarships are another direct contribution to the increase in education and again a more enlightened citizenship.

Finally the illiteracy program of the federation contributes plainly and without need for explanation to the raising of the standard of public training for life and an intelligent participation in government.

The reports at the Athens convention emphasized all over again that other kind of educational work which is almost, if not quite as important, as the actual schooling the federation provides for. Propaganda might better describe it if the word had not gained some disrepute.

There is the legislation the women desire, for instance. The federation's legislative work means the education of the public, schooled and un-schooled (for both kinds vote) in the necessity for the kind of laws the women want; necessity, that is, for the sake of the public welfare. The department of public welfare itself has for its chief medium the spreading of information which helps to teach health and morality, and the truth that we are, or should be, our brother's keeper.

The same thing applies to the work of the fine arts department, and it is the whole of the work of press and publicity. At Athens the club women themselves were even educated while they ate, for the luncheon at the College of Agriculture was an actual demonstration of one phase of the college education for the home, as was the dinner at the State Normal school.

The federation system is good. The importance of intensive operation is greater. And it will take the team work of all the fifty thousand club women to bring the system to its height of efficiency and thus help to effect an educated state.

Mrs. Marshall Reports On Motion Pictures.

As chairman of the division of moving pictures of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs it gives me great pleasure to report the growing interest manifested throughout the whole state in the recent movement inaugurated by club women for clean, wholesome pictures, and only clean, wholesome pictures, in every theater in every community, town and city. We are all vitally and personally interested in the class of pictures being shown in our respective communities. The motion picture show is our most liberally patronized place of recreation and amusement. As an institution that is here to stay it touches every home in the land; it influences and affects vitally every member of our family. It is therefore emblematic right and proper that the women's clubs of America, both national and state, should take the active leadership in the movement to correct and eradicate the evil influences that had crept into this industry, influences that threatened the very morals of every community.

The demand for corrective measures is nationwide. We are a unit in demanding that only clean, wholesome pictures be produced and exhibited; pictures free from immoral and indecent suggestions. The problem has been how to maintain and preserve the good from motion pictures and to keep out the evil. This is the purpose of this movement and this is the object of our effort for the past year.

The State federation two years ago asked for state censorship, but we have failed to strike a responsive chord in our state legislature.

I feel that we have made substantial progress in this department during the past year. The plan we have made is and will continue to go into operation in one field of education and organization. We have sought to create a community demand for higher standards of pictures. Through the district chairmen we have brought the movement to each club by seeking to have each and every club in the federation appoint a live and active committee to assist and co-operate with the local exhibitor in the selection of his pictures. Through the local exhibitors the pictures are carried to the producer, and thus ultimately through active and intelligent co-operation between consumer and producer we hope to accomplish our full purpose.

We have had the active assistance of many clubs in furtherance of this plan, but it will take much work and time to bring it to a successful conclusion of every club in the federation. At ready, however, we have active better films committees in all of the cities of the state and in many of the larger towns, and almost without an exception they have won the co-operation of local exhibitors. In this connection I beg to call attention to the splendid work done by the Atlanta committee of the Atlanta Motion Picture Association.

"May the enthusiasm of these ardent women never wane!"

Dalton Editor Praises Clubs On Good Work

The Dalton Citizen of recent date comments editorially on the evolution of "Women's News" in a recent issue and congratulates the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs that their activities are of such general interest as to take the news of it out of the "society" column.

"There was a time," says The Citizen, "when all things pertaining to the activities of women were somewhat out of place unless found on the society page of a newspaper, but the serious study women are giving to the world's work, and the expedient and dignified way in which big problems are handled, has changed old-fashioned ideas. We are glad to give recognition this week to the meeting of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, at Athens, for out of it will come great good for Georgia."

The question nearest the heart of this spiritual assemblage is education, and the women are not contented with evolving plans, but are putting their hands to the work and are, with funds which they raised, building schools, equipping and maintaining them. Several years ago the federation conceived the happy thought of establishing an industrial school for girls at Tallulah, and with the meager funds then obtainable a small-scale school was started. The single-unit school but proved the need for a larger educational plant to care for the growing classes of mountain girls, and the women of Georgia are undertaking to raise $50,000 for the extension of "The Light in the Mountains." They have the slogan, "Give Georgia for Tallulah," their slogan, and the project is assured, for any accomplishment is possible where the concerted effort of Georgia women push the work.

The girls who enroll at Tallulah are a pure Anglo-Saxon type, endowed with strong bodies and retentive minds; imbued with the love of home and of country, and are well educated in the principles of patriotism and un-Americanism. Americans, born and reared in the mountains. They lack merely educational facilities to fan the spark of useful knowledge into a burning torch that will shed its light at home and afar. Graduates from this school have turned their talents into channels of helpfulness, and the girls and their interests have more than repaid the investment made at Tallulah. It is definite work like this that shows the deep undercurrent of sacrificial service flowing through women's organizations.

"Many noted women, from without the borders of the state, are at this 26th annual convention of the Georgia federation, one of whom is Ida Clyde Clark, editor of the Pictorial Record. She has given the division of American co-operation articles and editorials which stressed better education for Americans as work women are peculiarly fitted to put through. Other phases of federated work are laudable, and raising the standard of Georgia. We hope at intervals to touch on other notable achievements being brought about.

"May the enthusiasm of these ardent women never wane!"

should revive their concern for the young Americans who were willing to give their all for patriotism. She quoted General Paul Malone, United States Army, the principal speaker of the night before, who had declared that the direst influence to soften the heart of the nation was that which might have that his sacrifice had not been appreciated, must come from the home.

"We wish to add that north Georgia, particularly Dalton, is having a great deal of success in its work.

other, especially during the formative period, there have been years when data has been more or less carelessly held together and as a result there is no complete history of the state body accessible.

Realizing the acute need of such a history of D. A. R., given in year, since the organization in 1890, Mrs. Max E. Land, retiring state regent, introduced the following resolution at the state conference held at Valdosta in April:

"Whereas, finding that the yearly state conference proceedings of the Georgia society, D. A. R., filed in the state capitol as official records of the minutes and work of the state society since its organization are incomplete, I recommend the appointment of a committee to look through the files, securing needed copies of the proceedings or, in case that is not possible, have the minutes that are lacking typed and filed therewith as a matter of record."

Pelham.

A very interesting meeting of the Hawthorne Trail chapter, D. A. R., was held on Thursday afternoon of last week at the home of Mrs. D. V.
Thompson, where Mrs. Thompson and her mother, Mrs. M. F. Brimberry, were joint hostesses in entertaining the chapter.

Mrs. C. A. Stevenson was elected chapter regent in the place of Mrs.
S. H. Floyd, formerly regent, who recently moved to Alabama and whose resignation was received with much regret.

After the program, a delightful two-course luncheon was served by the hostesses.

Vienna.

The first meeting of the John Dooly chapter, D. A. R., since May was held at the community house on Thursday of last week with Mrs. Frank Bivins as hostess.

The meeting was called to order by the regent, Miss Emily Woodward, and the usual business of the organization was discussed. The secretaries reported the gold medal offered by Mrs. M.
Rushin to the high school seniors for the best record in American history.

Clarkson.

The Baron DeKalb chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was organized in Clarkson in 1912 and now has 27 members, most of whom reside in Decatur, Clarkson and Atlanta.

The officers are Mrs. A. L. Wade, regent; Mrs. N. A. S. Moore, vice regent; Mrs. Diana Burgess, recording secretary; Mrs. W. W. Milam, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Frank Armstrong, treasurer; Mrs. A. S. Johnson, historian.

This chapter has given liberally to the Martha Berry school and is always ready with its quota of contributions to the work of the organization.

It was the first chapter in Georgia to distribute the immigrant's manual and has done other Americanization

The New Girls' High School— Where Shall It Be

In putting the senior Girls' High school at the south end of Grant park or any other site so far away from the center of the city have the authorities taken into consideration the many questions that the many parents of these many girls are asking?

In ten years, the contention is, we shall need a senior high school on the north side of Atlanta, as well as on the south side; haven't we any faith in the growth of Atlanta?

Certainly, answer the thousands of parent taxpayers, we have faith in the growth of Atlanta, but our faith, especially until the last bond election, has been sorely tried and we would rather have one high school that will be used for ten years, and may be used much longer, convenient for both ends of town.

Schools have not sprung up to meet the needs of automobile drivers. The reward is to remote. Money is paid for gasoline to make the machine go, but we have failed to take into account the reward that proper educational equipment means to future citizenry. . . . It isn't (at least, not now, and we can't see fifteen years hence) dollars and cents!

According to the program of Dr. Strayer and Dr. Engelhardt, as we understand it, the idea is to have junior high schools. These schools care for children who have finished elementary work and are ready for a certain amount of high school, thus practically taking the place of a seventh grade, an eighth grade and a first year high. They have then finished standard education without having to stop after the first or second year high school, leaving an uncompleted course of study. If, then, the junior high takes care of the first grade of the high school, and if the first grade is approximately one-third the number in the school now, won't that relieve some of the present congestion in the senior high school?

Parents feel that the only fair thing to children and teachers is a central location, where time and nervous energy is not consumed by long crowded street car rides. It takes numbers of girls now twenty-five minutes and upward to get to school, standing up in crowded cars; why incur the unnecessary?

Years ago when one child was bad in school and caused the teacher to stop a minute and correct him, her favorite appeal was, "You're not wasting one minute, but sixty (we have improved some, haven't we?), and that's a whole hour." Analogies may be formed in your own mind.

Calhoun P.-T. A. Members Are Honored as Chairmen

Two members of Calhoun P.-T. A. have been signally honored. Mrs. J. C. Mellichamp has been made chairman of the American citizenship committee of the parent-teacher associations of Atlanta. She is most enthusiastic over the plans for the coming year. The schools are already teaching the American creed, the pledge to the flag and the constitution of the United States. Mrs. Mellichamp wants a flag-pole and a flag for every school. To teach the spirit of democracy and the love for right is the real object of this organization—to instruct not only our American-born citizens, but to take up work actively with the foreigners.

The program has been approved by the state superintendent of schools, the city superintendent, the board of education, the Protestant ministers of the city. Father Horton and Rabbi Melchamp is indeed honored and will support Mrs. Mellichamp in every way.

Mrs. Porter Langston, who is chairman of the better films committee for the Calhoun P.-T. A., has been made chairman of the Saturday morning matinees. Last May the attendance was 300, and now there are never less than 750, and there have been over a thousand attending one performance. In addition to these paid admissions, there are always present, free of charge, 100 tickets for children, and also 100 tickets are distributed by the Associated Charities. It is the only children's matinee in the United States which has been successfully run throughout the summer. In making her report to the Calhoun P.-T. A., Mrs. Langston attributes this unusual record to the special publicity given the matinee by the newspapers through the copy furnished by Mrs. Clarence Beuus, publicity director, and to the most efficient chaperones provided by Mrs. N. P. Lemon, chairman of the chaperones, as well as the careful selection of interesting and appropriate pictures for the children to enjoy. Mrs. Langston has herself reviewed every single picture, made every appointment, every contract and planned the biggest and best piece of construction work for the day.

The matinees are given by the better films committee as a civic service which the mothers of Atlanta are appreciating and supporting.

Parent-Teachers Indorse Plan for Junior Republic

The Parent-Teachers' Association of Georgia, after an address by Crawford Jackson, general secretary, has unanimously indorsed the south-wide movement of the Juvenile Protective association to establish the Junior Republic of the South, a self-governing village for wayward boys and misdirected girls. Action was taken at the recent Macon convention of the parents and teachers.

It was stated here Saturday by officers of the association that members of the parent-teachers in various sections of the state have taken great interest in the plans to establish the Boys' Republic and will individually and collectively give their support to the movement until it is completed.

Indorsement by the parent-teachers follows similar lines taken recently by the Georgia Chamber of Commerce and other organizations, which see in the movement a rare opportunity for the advancement of child welfare. Both the present governor, Thomas W. Hardwick, and Governor-Elect Clifford Walker have endorsed the Junior republic movement in the highest terms.

Supplant Reformatory.

The Junior Republic of the South is to be located on a 100-acre tract of land in Campbell county, three and a half miles from the Fulton county line. It is believed that its establishment will ultimately do away with the necessity for reformatories for boys except perhaps for the very worst cases.

Under plan for the republic, it is stated, there is no strict attempt to becoming a citizen of the institution. This will be more than a reformatory, child welfare leaders claim. It is stated that the boy or girl who goes out into the world from the Junior Republic, instead of being looked down upon, "will carry the stamp of real heroism."

Character building, general school education, trades or vocations, practical work will be taught the boys and girls in the republic. It will not be sectarian. It will accept boys and girls who are Protestant, Catholic or Jew.

The Juvenile Protective association has launched the movement to establish the Junior Republic, has been engaged in child welfare work throughout the south for many years. In 1921 and in three months of the present year, together with the efforts made forth in previous years, the work of the association, according to the general secretary, Rev. Crawford Jackson, formed agencies that aided 14,000 children, and of this number 83 per cent, it is stated, are making good or showing progress. This includes the work of some of the juvenile courts, which were established several years ago through the efforts of the association.

Will Need $100,000.

The Junior Republic will be built and equipped largely by public subscription, by the free will offerings of people throughout the south, as the work of the juvenile association has been south-wide for a number of years. It is estimated that $100,000 will be needed for the erection and equipment of the buildings.

"Did you ever stop to think of the return (not in dollars and cents) you would get on a $100 investment in a boy or girl in the Junior Republic, an investment in character building?" asked Rev. Crawford Jackson in discussing the movement. "Dollars are not big enough to measure it. Watching the boy develop into the man he was destined to be would go deeper than your pocketbook. It would reach deep down into your heart and bring a great reflex joy over an investment well made."

The return on your investment would show daily dividends in building the empire of humanity. The institution will offer a wholesome illustration of practical citizen building for the south and the nation."

Tech High P.-T. A. Plans Programs.

Since its first meeting of the fall, Friday night, September 22, Tech High P.T.A. through its various committee chairmen, has taken many steps forward. The first object has been to bring about a complete enrollment of all new parents as active members of the association; and the second object looks to the best and most definite programs of parent-teacher work for the monthly meetings.

In Dr. William Torrence Stuchell, as president, Mrs. Howard McCutcheon, vice president; Mrs. J. K. Martin, secretary, and Professor S. M. Hastings, treasurer, the association's selection of a leadership for an active and interesting program for the objects is already well in evidence.

The last Friday night of the month has been settled upon as the time for the regular meetings, and the place the Central Congregational church, corner Ellis and Carnegie Way.

State Executive Board Meets With Mrs. Jones

The executive board of the Georgia Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations met October 18 at the home of the president, Mrs. Bruce Carr Jones, in Macon. Those present were: Mrs. Fred Wessels, Savannah; Mrs. I. J. Hofmeyer, Albany; Mrs. Frederick Williams, Macon; Mrs. Charles Robertson, Atlanta; Mrs. Bascom Murrah, Macon; Mrs. John R. Riddle, Atlanta; Professor May in McRae, Marietta; Mrs. F. C. McCutcheon, Atlanta; Mrs. Charles H. Hulbin, Macon; Mrs. Joseph L. Wells, Savannah; Mrs. Arthur Tufts, Emory university; Mrs. J. E. Andrews, Atlanta; Mrs. Fred Stokes, Forsyth; Mrs. T. J. Cater, Macon; Mrs. John Wilkinson, Hogansville; Mrs. James H. Spratling, Macon; Mrs. B. F. Fleming, Bainbridge; Mrs. A. E. McDonald, Marietta; Mrs. Ben S. Dasher, Macon.

Owing to heavy rains, Mrs. Harris Dews and Mrs. Clinton Bryant, of Athens, (Home Service and Home Economics) who were coming in a car, were detained, but previously reported further nutrition work will be stressed during the year.

Mrs. Ida Clyde Clark, of Pictorial Review, recently brought out the fact that the press of Georgia is more liberal to women's organizations than that of any other state in the union, and realization of this is due to the generosity of our Georgia newspapers and magazines that our work has received such splendid recognition nationally, a whole-hearted appreciation for our work.

Realizing there are over 4,000 schools in the state with P.T.A.'s in only 210, Mrs. Wessels, chairman of the association's selection of a leadership for an active and interesting program for the objects is already well in evidence.

Mrs. Fleming presented one of the most enthusiastic plans for proper recreation and social standards, feeling as most of the chairmen also expressed it, that hers is the most important committee in the work.

The last Friday night of the month has been settled upon as the time for the regular meetings, and the place the Central Congregational church, corner Ellis and Carnegie Way.

PEOPLE AND THINGS OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

BY LOUISE DOOLY

The College Education And Business Success

Is a college training essential to the highest success of the woman in business and the professions?

Is the average college education deficient in the opportunity for specialized training which would fit the graduate for an immediate place in the business or professional life?

These two questions imply a diametrically opposite point of view, and there are arguments and proofs that either one may truthfully be answered both in the affirmative and in the negative.

This department, which has always advocated and urged that every woman get all the education she can, and has emphasized as frequently as possible that the outstanding success among women in business and the professions are glad to refer back to their basis of education as the foundation of what they have been able to develop into, proposes still farther to stress this condition with a series of instances of Atlanta women with the college background who have found it the prompt and essential stepping stone to positions of dignity in their particular work.

The strongest proof that the value of the higher education for women as for men is coming to be popularly regarded as almost as necessary a medium for ranking achievement by women as by men, lies in the fact that the experienced business and professional women themselves all over the country are putting education forward as their watchword. They know what it will do for them, they know what its lack means, and they are going after it for the young women just coming on. The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs is making education its slogan, and the Georgia Federation is in line.

The three young women presented today as stepping immediately into positions of dignity and earning value, are all secretaries of the Y. W. C. A. These secretarial positions hold more of responsibility than is usually implied in the term. They are executive, and deal largely in personnel work. They require the gift and the training of leadership.

From week to week other instances will be provided.

Novelties and New Singers For Metropolitan Opera

The fall announcements of the Metropolitan Opera company cannot fail to be of direct local interest, since they give Atlantans at least an opportunity to speculate as to the bearing these novelties and new singers may have on Atlanta's annual engagement of the Metropolitan in the spring.

Two novelties will be presented: Amico Allegro, in Italian, libretto by Giuseppe Adami taken from the comedy Genio Allegro by the Brothers Quintero, music by Franco Vittadini, which has had a successful career in various European theaters; and Mona Lisa, in German, libretto by Beatrice Dowtry, music by Max Schillings, which has been popular in Germany and Austria of recent years.

Six Revivals.

In addition, there will be six revivals with completely new casts on stage. The revivals are: Romeo et Juliette, Thais, Guglielmo Tell, L'Af-

Holdings Colony For Farm Women Starts in England

A Small Holdings Colony for educated women is an experiment in England which will be watched with some interest by women everywhere.

The plan was intended to give educated women farmers and gardeners a start who had a small capital and were eager to make a beginning on their own account. Ex-service women were favored as a rule.

Farm and Garden describes the experiment which is sponsored by the English Women's Farm and Garden association as follows:

"The committee found themselves faced with a difficult problem in the selection of an estate that would prove suitable to the wants of either gardening or farming small-holders. It had to be on good land, near a market, available, costing up into small lots without too great expense, and containing separate housing. An added difficulty was that in 1919 the price of land had reached an exceedingly high level. The donors, however, were anxious to have the estate ready for ex-service women. After a great many fruitless journeys about the country, an estate of ninety-three acres was finally purchased at Lingfield in Surrey.

"Wire Mill, Lingfield, comprises twenty-two acres planted with bush apples in full bearing; a lake of fourteen acres and a wood of four acres; seven acres of arable; thirty-six acres of grass land, and some rough grazing. The main house is a large modern residence containing eight bedrooms, three sitting rooms and it has a large garden. The estate also contains cottages on the estate and a small mill. It is situated on a good high road, motor buses connecting it with Lingfield and East Grinstead market, stopping at the gate.

"The small holdings committee of the Women's Farm and Garden association had always felt convinced that an entire living could not be made from this type of small-holding run by women. They were most emphatic, therefore, in only selecting candidates for the holdings. The small plots are included in addition to the capital invested in the undertaking. This ruled out many well-trained and otherwise suitable women, and seemed hard at the time, but the two years of the Colony's existence has proved how wise the committee was in making this stipulation.

"Unfortunately, 1921, the first year for the small-holders at Lingfield, included a very long dry spring, followed by a summer drought. The effects, of course, have been depressing and the fall of prices serious."

The committee is helping, and some of the work being done is in favor of eight acres worked by two partners who keep three cows, poultry and a sow. Part of the milk is sold in the neighborhood and the rest made into butter. Five other holdings are being utilized as dairy, and even the lake is made profit-bearing, through hiring out of boats and fishing privileges and refreshments for fishermen.

GEORGIA W. C. T. U.

MRS. LELLA A. DILLARD, President, Emory University, Ga.
Mrs. Marvin Williams, vice president, 431 Greene street, Augusta; Mrs. Mary Harris, L. D., state field secretary, Cawfordsville; Mrs. Julius Magath, corresponding secretary, Atlanta; Mrs. D. Dr. Armor Welcomed to New Zealand

MRS. AUGUST BURGHARD, Macon, State Director of Publicity, Georgia W. C. T. U.

Dr. Mary Harris Armor, of Georgia, the loved state W. C. T. U. field secretary, and the honored lecturer and organizer of the National W. C. T. U. Christian Temperance Union, who is helping in the New Zealand prohibition campaign with her unsurpassed eloquence, exact scientific knowledge of what alcohol is and what it does to an individual, community, state and nation, who has studied conditions and lectured in every state in the United States before and since prohibition, and visited and lectured in Canada, England, Australia and Wales and observed conditions in regard to drink evil in a number of other countries, has been accorded a cordial welcome by the temperance organizations, churches, civic officials and others in New Zealand.

She has been entertained by members of parliament and has received many flattering social courtesies. She predicts that New Zealand will become a prohibition nation at the coming election.

New Zealand newspapers give liberal space to reports of Mrs. Armor's lectures.

The following letter written at Masterton, N. Z., and dated September 5, was received last week, and will be read with interest by Dr. Armor's thousands of friends and admirers in Georgia and elsewhere:

Mrs. Armor's Letter.

"The last time I wrote you was just before we visited the Cook Islands or rather Rarotonga, the capital of New Zealand, and I can never forget the thrill I experienced when I saw a crowd with flags and white ribbons and banners lined up on the dock to meet me! As the boat docked I could see Mrs. Don's bright face and hear them all singing, 'Praise God, from Whom All Blessings Flow.' It affected me most deeply. As soon as I could pass the customs, I was in the arms of our blessed white ribboners, and no one ever had a more royal welcome.

"Mrs. Don, the national president, is truly a great woman, a woman of brains, spiritual force, great common sense and much enthusiasm.

"She had come hundreds of miles to meet me. Many presidents of local unions in other parts of the dominion had come also to welcome me.

"The next day they gave me a welcome at the W. C. T. U. headquarters, just a family affair. Then I went to the meetings of both the alliances and the W. C. T. U.

"On Friday evening I had a welcome from the Pioneer club and the next evening a public welcome at one of the large churches."

Newspaper Reports of Meeting.

Mrs. Armor sent a copy of The New Zealand Times of September 4, which contains an account of this meeting with the headlines, 'Dr. Mary Harris Armor, America's Leading Woman Orator, Addresses Great Temperance Gathering. Public Welcome Last Night.'

"With me begins, 'a public reception to Mrs. Dr. Mary Harris Armor, who is on a tour of New Zealand in support of a prohibition campaign, took place at the Wesley church, Taranski street, on Saturday night. There was a numerous attendance, presided over by the mayor, R. A. Wright, M. P.'

"After quoting from the mayor's hearty welcome this article continues:

"The welcome was indorsed most cordially by Mrs. Don, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union; Rev. J. Dawson, on behalf of the New Zealand alliance; Rev. H. E. Bellhouse, of the Ministers' association; Miss Kirk, of the Wellington W. C. T. U.; W. J. Gandin, of the Order of Rechabites, and by a Mr. Kelly, (Mr. Poutama) from Rototuna, who sang a Maori song of welcome and made an eloquent plea to New Zealanders in general to save the Maori from the evil influence of liquor."

The article quotes at length Mrs. Armor's speech and ends with: 'Dr. Armor concluded her address amid loud applause.'

There is a report of Dr. Armor's meeting at the town hall as follows: "The town hall was filled last night when Dr. Mary Harris Armor, of America, addressed a prohibition rally, presided over by Mrs. Rachel Don, president of the National W. C. T. U., of New Zealand."

After describing the songs and music by the Silver band the paper stated:

"Brigadier Bray of the Salvation Army led the gathering in prayer, and the chairman informed the meeting that at Petone that afternoon Dr. Armor had addressed a but gathering, which had responded unanimously to her appeal. All who are prepared to vote New Zealand dry, bands up."

Dr. Armor was introduced by a Maori woman, who waving a real maori spear and the emblem of making a clear path for our coming generation. Her heart, she said, bled because of some of the pakehas, who they called "living devils" and who had introduced the liquor. The Maoris had no right to vote on this issue, and therefore, they came to the pakehas. (Applause).

Dr. Armor spoke at first with a Maori robe on her shoulders and a taiaha in her hand, as a tribute to the lady Maori who preceded her.

New Zealand's Going Dry.

Mrs. Armor's letter continues:

"I went to hear a 'wet' man, Rev. M. Heathcote, of the Unitarian church, speak one night. He was a marvelous oration, principally lies about America. How I did long to reply to him then and there. But the chairman would not even allow questions.

"I had packed houses and most enthusiastic audiences. By every token I feel sure New Zealand's going dry.

"Bula. (Mrs. Armor's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Holcomb Armor, of Birmingham, Ala., who is accompanying her on the trip,) and I are arriving to meet the prime minister when we had been here only three days. We found him a very pleasant gentleman. He is not taking sides but I think his sympathies are with the 'dry's.' He is the big man of the dominion, you know.

"We also met several distinguished members of parliament, and were twice entertained at tea in the parliament building by honorable members.

"We heard a splendid prohibition speech by a member of parliament. Mr. Isell, the great prohibition leader in parliament, and afterwards had tea with him by his invitation in the parliament building.
